was very honest and sincere. Not just a show, not to uplift one's self, but to uplift our Creator...to acknowledge the resurrection of Jesus Christ. How can you tear that motive apart? Your criticism completely astonishes me. You re mind me of Holden Caulfield from The Catcher in the Rye Like Holden, you can't seem to find one nice thing to say to find one nice thing to say about anyone. Foerything you see must really disturb you if all you ever see is the bad in people. You managed to cut down anything and everything you could think of about the musical. Mr. Wallace, your review didn't do anything but reveal what an insecure and negative person you really are. There was a lot of hard work and effort put into the musi-cal, and I'm sorry if in your cal, and I'm sorry if in your opinion it was just a big 'Hollywood' display. I hate to break it to you, but that musical was solely done for the glory of God and to celebrate His grace and mercy upon us. I'm sorry if you misread every the state of the source of the state of the source in the state of the source is the state of the s ery single person in that sanc-tuary. I wish now more than tuary. I wish now more than anything that instead of just going into the performance with a negative attitude and premeditating the outcome of the performance, you could have paid attention to the message and looked at all of the positive things about it. Now, I'm not some professional "review person," I'm just a 16-year-old girl who was extremely offended by your article and lack of respect for God and other people. I will pray for you, that God would change your hard heart and change your hard heart and teach you optimism and love for other people. Remember, the people who took part in the musical are humans; they have feelings, too. Why does a skin form on top of milk when you heat it up?

Milk is a pretty unstable liquid. Treat it badly, heat it too high too fast, and all hell breaks loose. The sticky skin is casein and calcium clumping together as water evaporates from the surface. Skim it off, and our ew shisking away untrients. That soorched stuff on the bottom of the pan is casein and sehey that sinks when it's heated. More lost nutrients. Nighty night.

HE PITHY REFERENCE IN VANITY FAIR WAS the first public mention I'd read about Koch's use of SEAL combat swimmers to spy on fellow yachtsmen and America's Cup competitors. I had, however, heard some serious scuttlebutt about the espionage whispered through the boozy atmosphere of McP's Irish Pub in Coronado and among the tables of a sushi shack behind McP's. called the Fish Factory, where SEALs who like their food raw meet to eat.

"I board a sealer officer from the flood Shed showed up at the resemp miter healthy the ke'd been raise hard and put away wet."

It was during a mid-afternoon lunch at the Fish Factory several months ago that I'd learned the scattlebutt was much more than rumor. My mess-mate and source - let's call him Jack Straw from Wichita — was a retired SEAL enlisted man who knew firsthand how a not-so-merry band of SEAL pranksters in the hire of Koch had gathered intel he'd used to snatch the cup. Jack had been so close to the action that I'd classify him and his info A-1 if I were using the Navy code for such

Through mouthfuls of sashimi, Jack told me how a retired SEAL officer and CIA operative had recruited SEAL Team guys, past and present, for a screwy but potentially profitable commando op: to recon the underwater hulls and especially the keels racing sloops that were being prepared in various boat basins and marinas of San Diego Bay for the

"The ops began in July of '91 and continued right up until the goombahs and Koch squared off for the cup in May of '92," Jack said. "We must have done more than a hundred dives; and for every dive, we did surveillance to get the hot cock on defenses, sailing schedules, how the syndicates put their sloops in the water, how they hooked them up to their powerboats for tow, how they took them out of the water. We drew time lines." Jack paused to drain his Kirin and ask the attentive Japanese waiter for another. "The ops became just like real sions - we even prepared fiveparagraph patrol orders, although not everybody thought that was necessary, especially the salty enlisted guys who didn't like zeros anyway."

who set it up was a zero.

How many zeros, officers, "It varied. Of course, the Then there was an officer from the East Coast, but he only came out a few times just to tell us how fucking easy the ops were. He didn't stay long enough to be interrogated by the Harbor Police, nearly get decapitated, or have to worry about how to keep things going after Dave Billings bought it. Except for the first two clusterfucks Billings bought it. Except for the first two clusterflicks in July against the goombahs, it was the enlisted who did the diving, took the risks."

Jack left unsaid what we both knew he was thinking, "As usual." He surprised me when he added, "Of course, Marlon almost fed the officer who had recruited, paid, and directed the SEALs in Koch's silent service for nearly a year. Marlon is not his real name. Jack and I called him that because of his head. which was as sloping, slick, and hairless as an egg. That head reminded us of Marlon Brando playing Colonel Kurtz in Apocalypse Now. But unlike Fatso Brando, our Marlon was in great shape. Like a lot of retired SEALS. including lack, Marlon was a compulsive long-distance runner and had the air of concentration camps about him.

Marlon told me the accident had happened in the bay while he was test diving a new rig for the Teams. Said the Team doc saved him by hustling him into the recompression chamber at BUDS and taking him down with pure O₂.

"The part about the Team doc and recompression chamber is right, but Marlon went tits-up in his own swimming pool testing an Italian Fenzi rebreather we thought we'd have to use after we lost the Draeger with Billings. Marlon woulda been a goner if another zero hadn't been there with him. Pulled Marlon out, gave him CPR, called the Teams.

and they took over from there." Did the Teams know what was going on with Koch and Marlon?

"Probably. Billings was on active duty; other divers were in the reserve unit, and we had retired SEALs onboard. In fact, I heard a senior officer from the Head Shed showed up at the recompression chamber looking like he'd been rode hard and put away wet. First thing he asked was if Marlon had been using a Team rig."

The Teams use Draegers, not Fenzis.
"Right you are, mate. So this sen ior officer was greatly relieved. Theard Marion got the Fenzi from an East Coast command ing officer, who change duty with a European Special War-fare outfit — maybe the - maybe the krauts' GS-G9. Anyway, the Fenzi is a piece of shit."

Tell me shout the first ops against the Italians, lack glanced at his entry plate and half-empty bottle of Kirin. "Sorry, Bill," he said. "I gotts haul my sons to take won do class down in 18. Let 3" make it some either time."

I don't know a hell of a lot about the America's Cup. "Boats, Bill, boats. The goombabs had five off the suckers at $5.5 million each, but they only had one in San Diego the samme before Cup "Sc. and Marlon couldn't mether, it was on adds with the sacc covered he a mena demand.

fake materials are not at all what Madame du fake materials are not at all what Madame du Barry would have expected. The paintings are of modern California landscapes: a hydroelectric dam in the mountains, irrigated rows of lettuce in the Central Valley, a holding-pen for the slaugh-ter of cartle, a scene of rolling phils along a Southern California freeway, covered with tract housing. In vine-woven cartouches on the wall-covering are monochrome drawings of American tourist attractions. A "woven" corruscopia on the rug includes, among its bounty, a Cole can and a cardboard container from McDonald's. The sculpted corruscopia on the table facing the door-way ends in the point stiming its all of a scorpion. In unmotivated locations everywhere there are locusts, including a pair couplating on the false inlay of a graceful grandfather clock. The Sevres urns seem to be melting under their own weight.

Destiny Turns On the Radio. Attention copy editors of America: the first word of the title is more than a first word of the title is more than a mere abstract force; it is 'an animotic spirit, like a manitou, 'embodied in the pointy-chinned person of Quentin Tarantino ("The name's Destiny, Johnny Destiny"); and at the beginning of the movie an urseen hand turns on a radio. So the third word of the title mentioned by contribution of the processor of the contribution of the mentioned by contribution of the mentioned and processor of the mentioned and processor of the processor of the processor of process a radio. So the third word of the title must surely be capitalized: it's a part of the verb. not a preposition. The radio, moreover, is not revealed as machinations of destiny, it's just machinations of destiny, it's just a radio: it gets turned on. (The movie it self dodges the issue by capitalizing all title words, even the 'the.') More to the point, it's a terrible title, although as such an accurate forecast of the mystical-magical malarkey ("You are cur to any of the detectives on the case that the intended target could be the much-publicized Coalition for Racial Unity, until a snapshot of the rally site (the Organ Pavilion in our own

If you don't mind a simple room and love nos-talgia, you can have an inexpensive night on the town at Brothers. Please note that it closes nightly by 8:00 p.m.

I'd like to mention a small Peruvian deli, La Bodeguita that's located at 4150 Mission Boulevard in the same mall as Tony Roma's. It holds four ta-bles and 12 stools at a counter. The menu is limited to em panadas, tamales, ceviche, mussels, salads, and sandmussels, salads, and sand-wiches. I don't eat ceviche because it can go bad so quickly. However, my friend and I had a succulent marinated pork sandwich on a baguette ($3.95). a tasty meat emparada ($1.50), and an excellent salad with chopped potatoes, yellow corn, avocados, hard-boiled eggs, tomatoes, and green onions tossed with romaine lettuce

We arrived about 5:40 p.m. and were embarrassed to learn that the place closed at 6:00. Nevertheless, the owner, Maria Elena Ibarra, known to everyone as Cookie, remained open until we had finished eating. She even insisted that we had time for her flan, which was in-deed terrific. The deli offers Latin American groceries, but most people come here for the food, some of it available for

The early hour of closing The early hour of closing, enables Cookie to spend evenings with her nine-year-old son, who waited patiently for us to leave. WHAT TO DO WITH YOUR OLD CDs...

OR JUST SELL EM TO US.

We can think of a bunch of uses for your old CDs. Sure, they make good frisbees and coasters. But they can also make you money. Just bring your used CDs to The Wherehouse and we'll give you a store credit or cash. (Look below for some pesky---but important---details.)

So clean out those tired tunes you don't listen to anymore... and get credit for new music, movies, video games and even movie rentals. Or you can keep the cash and invest in a real pizza cutter.

At The Wherehouse, Used makes sense
