There are a few doctors, unfortunately every few, to whom the religious aspect matters. They may stop me in the hall and say, 'Ob. Chaplain, I year diagnosed a patient with reminind C., aloner, that is, in the utual hospital abbreviation/exphenium). They and their family may need some support from you. Many doctors are ever unconfortable leaving things to a higher power, to something beyout what they can control. If it is not certain."

The HOSPICE ITSES!

Let's clarify terms. While "a hospice" is usually a building, sometimes part of a hospical, sometimes a freestanding building with or without inpution facilities of its own, "hospice" usually refers to the hospice movement in general and its attendant methods and philosophies concerning care for the reminally ill. Despite these various manifestations, the philosophy of every hospice is essentially the same: We will do everything we can to help you live what remains of your life as fully as possible. In its most clinical sense, this involves palliative medicine — that is, treatments aimed not to cure but to make life as comfortable as possible in the face of the old enemies, in the face of the old enemies, pain, nausea, vomiting, and constipation. In a broader serse, it involves taking care of the emotional and spiritual burders that may be harder to bear than the physical pain. At this final stage of life, being separated furm one's dog or having unpad bills may be more disturbing than simple pain.

How really beautiful it was — but at the same time how monotonous' Always cen-tered, always warm, always limpid, always with tered, always warm, always Impid, always with a heartening vibrato, always of great sweetness, it nevertheless became unendurably oppressive when it was applied, without change of color or expressiveness, to composers as utterly diverse as Bach, Bartók, Brahms, Szymanowski, and Saint-Saens. It sounded as though all these different pieces of music were being processed by the same Midori machine, which turned them all into pasty

This is not a matter of pedantic historicism.

It is not that one has to play Bach like a Baroque composer in order to be faithful to history. It is a question of the music itself, which is shaped so as to communicate meaning in its own inherent style of playing, and which dissolves into mere mellifluous prettiness when every note inevitably melts into the next one, without an articulation mets into the next one, without an articulation to indicate which grouping each note logically belongs to. All right, there has been a long-stand-ing tradition among violinists of the Romantic school (now greatly attenuated) to play Bach in smoot flow greatly attendated to play bach in an anachronistic manner, as though his music had been composed in 1850. Midori's Bach is certainly not the first time we have heard that composer played in a historically incorrect style (although someone like Heifetz could carry it off.

Teresa Bell and Michael Burmil

SAUCY, INTELLIGENT PRCFESSIONAL, 24, long blonde/blue, 5 7", seeking seriously humorous friendship (+?), Laughter essential. I'm open-minded and not a prude. Smoke, drink OK. Tall a plus.

Teresa: I was looking for someone who didn't want to just casually date. I figured that the guys who answered Phone Matches" ads would be thinking along the same lines.

Michael: It was a pretty basic message: my name, age, height, and I like to have fun. Call me.

Teresa: He's the only one I called out of 68 responses. The other guys talked about money, champagne, bubble baths, living in La Costa ... and Michael, well, he didn't say much of anything.

Michael: The first time we talked, the conversation lasted for a couple of hours. All of our conversations were like that. I think we were having so much fun on the phone we were afraid to meet. Teresa: I suggested that we do a drive-by meeting, but he didn't like that idea. Then a girlfriend of mine let Michael know we'd be at a

Michael: I didn't know what she looked like, and the place was packed. I kept going up to groups of girls and introducing myself, but I couldn't find her. Finally, the band took a break and I asked them to page her when they came Teresa: My friends were taking me home because I had too much to drink. As I was going out the door, they made the announcement. I said, "Wait! I hear my name!"

Michael: It was really awkward, but she took a liking to me. We went back inside and danced until closing.

San Diego Reader Phone Matches

Michael: We're from totally different backgrounds. I'm from New York, and Teresa's from California. Teresa: He's adventurous, outgoing, and emotionally strong. I'm sensitive, caring, and more analytical.

Michael: It's not that we're opposites; we just bring different things to the table. Teresa: I've gotten three or four girlfriends to put ads in the Reader. I tell them, "If you can shop for a car, you can shop for a man."

Teresa: Then we went out to eat and ended up at my house, kissing in the parking lot as the Teresa: We saw each other pretty much every night after that. He told me he loved me three weeks later.

Michael: I was looking for a girlfriend — someone I could get serious with — but I had no aspirations to get married. I always thought I'd stay a bachelor.

Teresa: Michael proposed at Disneyland, next to the wishing well in Toon Town. We set the date at Pirates of the Caribbean Teresa: I think we've come a long way in the last three years. We're very realistic about each other.

pure-in-heart.

The Undemanth, booked into mencing Friday, is yet another mencing Friday, ye ing for the childlike moviegoer whose sole requirement is somebody to 'identify with.' Nothing, that is, as long as "identification" equates to 'self-flattery.' (The nice-grid charac-ter of Elisabeth Shue is on hand, and securely in the margin, for contrast only.) Film mair, needless to say, was never designed for the pure-in-heart.

The jaded adult, meanwhile, should have no difficulty finding a little of himself, a lot of his society, in the movie's mercless delineation of the something-for-nothing mentality, the logical escalation from lottery-playing to illegal football-betting to out-and-out theeing. The undiminished freshness wills a bit towards the finish. There are only so many way to wrap up a thing like this (A shoots B, C shoots D or A flip a coin), and the extreme economy with which this particular thing is wrapped up feels like a surrender.
