four entirely different things to a cricketer, as we shall see.)

For the purposes of explaining the game, we can ignore the first seven or eight centuries of its history and begin in early 18th-century England. At that time, each wicket consisted of a simple structure like the Greek letter pi, two PHOTOGRAPHS BY ERIK HANSON vertical sticks with a third stick across the top, something like a croquet wicket. The two wickets were set up 22 yards apart. The beowlet delivered he built from beids one wicket, and the batsman the bail hit the wicket, dislodging the "bail" laid across the top, or passed through it, the batsman swo out, and would be forced to spend the next two or three hours watching his fellow teammates bat. (He was also out if he hat the

(He was also out if he hit the ball and it was caught before it bounced or if he prevented the ball from striking the whice the interposa-his legs, a frequently painful form of domissical cellst Leg Before Vicket.) No wonder most credet passions non-have a bar. Investably, there were disputes as to swhere the ball had passed through the wicket on missed about 28 minutes of the ball and passed through the wicket on missed dowers, called stumps, about 28 inches high, spaced such he hall cart, quite pass between them. Run are several, as in sheeball.

Runs are scored, as in baseball, Runs are scored, as in baseball, by running the bases, going back, and forth between the two rather han round the four but here again there are a couple of complications. Cricket being a social paime, there are always two butsinen at work at the same time. Our adoing the hand part—lefending his wicke, trying to the the ball, and so on—white the same time. Our adoing the hand part—lefending his wicke, trying to the the ball, also on—white the same time. Our adoing the hand part—lefending the hand to be a social part—left the active battemen hits the ball cleanly ame calls for a run, the wood ash toward calls are run and run a run a

each other's end, and if they reach it safely before the ball is thrown in to either wicket, one run has is safely before the ball is thrown in to either wicket, one run has been scored, and the formerly passive partner face the neat ball. Runs can also be scored by big hits. If the ball is hit all the way to the boundary, some 60 to 80 yard distant, the batting fearm scores four runs even without running; if the ball crosses the boundary without bouncing, it is worth six. The third major difference between baseball and cricket is that in cricket, the ball bources before it reaches the batsuan. Two hundred years ago, in fact, the ball was delivered along the ground, which is why the action is still called "bowling" rather than pitching." The bowler retreated some 10 or 20 yards, raced up and bowled, underhand, like Earl Anthony on speed, a small, hard ball, a nasty little customer that might race across the bumpy ground and sneak under the batsman's blade and through the wicket or might strike a flint and ricochet upwards, dislodging a higher the delivery point, in fact, the more difficult the bounce. Bowlers still run up and bowl at speed, but now the ball is released directly above the shoulder, some 9 feet off the ground, making the ball rear up nastily. A bascball batter has to judge a ball coming at him at 85 miles an hour from 60 feet, but a cricket batsman at him at 85 miles an hour from 60 feet, but a cricket batsman has to gauge a ball rising of the ground at perhaps. 70 miles an hour some 5 to 10 feet in front of him. This makes the quality of the playing surface, contingibly called either the "pitch" or (even more confusingly) the "wiscket," absolutely paramount. The professional game is played on grass that has been rolled with a ten-ton roller several timesa week for several decades as week for several decades. bounce is at least somewhat predictable The amateur game, lacking such amenities, can be bloody lethal.

At this point, the game is at its most opaque to the uninformed observer, instead of the baseball speciacle of batters cracking hits or pitchers blowing smoke, almost nothing seems to be happening. Some of the bowling is allowed to pass the stumps harmlessly; straight balls are blocked with the broad face of the batt every fourth or fifth ball may be deflected between the fielders, and the batsmen will cross for a run, sometimes two, but this is a crucial period of retrenchment, and everyone knows that for SDCC to win this game we mustn't lose another batsman until a good many more runs are on the board.

Out on the field, meanwhile, the game is both a competition and a social event. With the fielders gathered close for a catch—one is ba-rely six feet from the bat—everyone can talk to and hear everyone else, and an almost constant flow of comment takes place when the ball is not actually being played. In some games this might involve trash-talking (the cricket term is Raiders cap. A brief spare of in-your-face, chest-to-chest yelling ensues before everyone moves in to calm them down. The fielder is still aggrieved. "Look at this guy," he says, pointing at me. "He doesn't showe me out of the way."

"That's because if I did, you'd break both my legs," I tell him. He grins. "No, no, man." The moment passes, and in general the game is played in excellent spirits. When one ball, delivered at top speed by the visitors' fastest bowler, hits a hidden bump and just misses my nose, West Covina crowds round the shaken writer. "You all right, man? Sorry, man. It was the pitch, man. Sorry."

In this gental fashion, the score progresses to 100 bet I get sisk of hitting balls that stick in the long grass and hit in the arr instead, and it is caught. Nonit, too, is out almost at our and it looks as if a dreaded middle-order collapse might place, (4 stors) stoiled offse John Barbrolli, the great mid-that when he first arrived in London, speaking little fuglish, knowing nothing jobul cricket, he saw a treswstandiplacad knowing nothing jobul cricket, he saw a treswstandiplacad

This is no longer the time for finese; it is time for H.rry, who is built like a brick outflows and can hit abilition and firefrent time zone. He plays the first couple of balls cautiously, measuring the bounce.

"Go airbones" Harry obediently somi crics from the bleacher. "Go airbones" Harry obediently simes a vast heaves at the next ball, and the bat, despite its rubber grip, shoots out of his hands on white down the pitch. There or four times he connects, though, and when he is finally caught out, deep in the country, he has added 24 precious runs. he has added 24 precious runs.

David, the deputy management, comes in, holding David, the depuly management, comes in, holding his ba in a curious, self-taught grip and then crouching over it at-trying to break the bat under his left knee. His first ball seem about to sneak under him and take out his leg stump when he leaps in the air, his bat descending from an impossible direction at the last moment, and squirts the ball off toward the fence for two runs. A flurry of such silliness ends San Diego 3 40 overs, and

The gen eration of television, video eration of television, video games, and inferior education does not learn or, it would ap-pear, even desire to think crit-irally. The actions of the drug addict and criminal are the cu-nulative result of seemingly insignificant immoral choices which they have made over a period of years until the choice of treachers evens, to them of treachery seems, to them, like no choice at all. It is dishearteningly apparent that lit-tle can be expected from our current lenient legal system to help pull individuals like Olson out of the deep pit they have lowered themselves into.

I hope the incident cured Olson, something we readers never find out. If it did, I'm glad, but Olson should be incredibly ashamed that a lifestyle so blatantly stupid reouired the loss of a life to end quired the loss of a life to end his participation in it. There is no good excuse for such he-havior. None. #### Among Stellar Ax-Wielders

Ax-Wielders
John Brizzolara's sardonic critique of Junior Brown's latest release, Junior High, illustrates just how little Brizzolara knows about Brown in particular and country music in general ("Of Note," August 24). As an aficionado of coun-24). As an altionado of coun-try music for several decades (and, at various junctures, a DJ and music reviewer), I main-tain that Junior Brown is one of the most amazing talents to come along in quite some time. If the multifaceted Brown did no more than play guitar, he would rank among the finest musicians of our day; when one takes into account his fine vocal stylings and inventive songwriting, it is

Although a good buzz,
good acceleration, and an

Notwithstanding Brizz Notwithstanding Brizzo-lara's attempt to damn him with faint praise ("nice guitar work"), Junior Brown is a su-perb guitar player and steel man. In fact. among stellar ax-wielders of recent years, only the late Danny Gatton can commare in technical virtuo. Brizzolara's contention that Brown's songwriting "sucks" is offensive and laughable: one need only listen to tunes such need oily listen to tunes such as "That's Easy for You to Say" (on Junior High) or "Still Life with Rose" (on Guit With It) to realize that Brown is a clever wordsmith with a knack for penning heartfelt, incisive songs. Curiously, Brizzolara does n't mention Brown's voice a resonant, virile baritone redolent, occasionally, of Ray Price in the early 1960s, and at other times, of Ernest Tubb. Anyone who appreciates Texas honky-tonk music, real coun-try music, will understand what I mean after listening to Junior belt out "My Baby Don't Dance to Nothing but Frenest Tubb" (on 12 Shades of Brown) and "A Way to Sur-vive" (on 12 Shades of Brown). In addition to playing something seldom heard these days — genuine country mu-sic — Brown, on "Lovely Hula Hands" and on other Hawaiian-style tracks from prior ian-style tracks from prior CDs, provides the listene with a rare opportunity to hear the sort of gorgeous, supple musi-long associated with steel gui-tar great Jerry Byrd. I found this arrangement unsatisfactory, for a couple of reasons. The notion of periods doesn't work very well here, for it implies that significant shytistic and thematic changes are clearly visible in the art of many of the pointers during the same span of time. Such a schema is imposed upon the material, It does not grow out of what was actually harpeening as these various. imposed upon the material. It does not grow out of what was actually happening as these various artists reacted at their own pace to the influences of their professional environment. phasis on the development of the group as a whole, a group that is not really a group and that did not undergo any intelligibly unified development, makes it difficult for the viewer to perceive the more indisputable (and ultimately more re-warding) realities of the Pont-Aven painters— namely, the individual arisis, with their personal styles and interests, and their development. In-order to take in all the work, for any particular painter, you must dash from gallery to gallery, tying to keep in mind what you have seen of his before, and frequently backtracking to make sure you remember correctly. This procedure, necestated by the arrangement, is tiring and nerve-wracking, and it impedes our attainment of a clear, vivid mental image of who each artist was and what he was like.

The critical material, by Richard Brettell in the foreword and by Ronald Pickvance in the intro-ductory sections and the commentaries on the psintings, is adequate in its outline of facts but relatively shallow and un-helpful otherwise. Brettell is given to overcharged assertions about the crucial importance of the Pont-Aven "school," as though saying something fre-quently and in an extreme fashion can take the place of precise documentation and argument:

Het video tip: Claude Chabrol's L'Enfer, etrantly filed under "I." on the control of the control of the control of the buster. I had all but given up on Chabrol at the time of Madame Bowary, and then earlier this year I found myself recommending his Berty on video, and now this one is even better, an insane-making inching time better, air insane-making inching time the control of the control of the thing and formers in the control of husbandly jealousy as witnessed any-where outside of Bunuel's El. (Is the where outside of Bunuel's El. (Is the toe-sucking image a conscious hom-mage to the director of L'Age A'Ort). The story hehind the story is interest-ing, too. The screenplay by the late H-G Clouzot (Wages of Fear, Les Di-aboliques, The Mystery of Picaso) had gone into production in 1964, with Clouzot directing and Serge Reggiani and Romy Schneider starring. But Clouzot was forced for health reasons to abandon the shoot after several days, and his script sat around unfillmed for three decades till Chabrol joked it up and dusted it offi. Chabrol, a Hitch-pock convext cards in bis carer (as wesand dusted it off. Chabrol, a Hitch-cock copycat early in his caree (as was Clouzot before him), exercises here the control and restraint of a mature master. And François Chazer, with this single performance, vaults himself from a mere Dustin Hoffman look-alike to a full Pustin Hoffman equal. And François Chare is sufficiently reaction, if most men no further. Hot rhetorical question why are film such as Beity and L'higrid eemed unfit for theatrical distribution? •

Authen-ticity gets a boost, however, from the squashed-nosed Ettore Garofolo, a nonprofessional actor in the neo-realist tradition, as the slouching, shuffling, swaggering, sulking teenager.

SPECIAL EVENT

The Adventures of Priscilia, Queen of the Desert — Priscilia; just a bus, Mitzi, Felicia, and Bernadette are her passengers, two fermale impersonators and a transsexual (the guant Hugo Wexing, the muscle-bound Guy Pearce, and the grande danish Terenet Samp), who take their cabacet as out of the commopolitan security of Sydney and mus the backward Cultack.

There's a lot of flaunting and posturing (F-root Loops for breakfast, a request at a video store for "The Texas Chainsaw Mas-cara"), and lutte concern for pl. sublity (mid-song changes of costume in the ch-mactic stage show), and yet there's the ocmactis stage show), and yet there's the oc-casional, throat-clearing interjection of Hard Realities ("AIDS Fuckers Go Home!" graffitted on the bus during a stopover in a jerkwater town). Apollo 13 — Ron Howard rehashes the unlucky moonshot of April, 1970 — a very few months, it might be remembered, after the release of John Sturges's uncannily prognostic Mannound. As a work of fiction (not for enough ahead of current events to qualify as science fiction), that one of course had greater leeway for molodramatic, extreme of heroism and sacrifice, conquest and loss. But the nonfictional work, shough it can't top the life-initating-art farther in it can't top the life-imitating-art feather in the other's cap, serves well as a salute to the real men of NASA (and their wives: there would appear to be no actual women of NASA). Inevitably, given the developmer in Hollywood and elsewhere in the inter-vening quarter-century, it will not be a crisp, economical, bill-of-the-cap type of salute, but a full-dress, parade-ground,

Introducing Reader PHONE MATCHES" a great place to

You are provided with a free personal matching ad in the Reader Classifieds. You also receive a free "voice mailbox"- a phone service that allows you to record and receive messages from any touch-tone phone.

HOW TO PLACE YOUR AD: To place a free Phone Matches" ad, fill out the coupon below and mail or fax it (233-7907) to us. (If faxing, please photocopy the coupon first and then fax it.) The deadline for receiving free Phone Matches" ads is Saturday at 7 am. No free ads will be accepted over the phone or in person. We'll send you a 5-digit mailbox number

WE'R

(to be printed in your ad) and a 4-digit security code for exclusive access to your responses.

You may also place a late ad until 6 pm Tuesday by phone (235-8200), in our office (1703 India St. at Date St., downtown), or by fax (233-7907). The charge for these late ads is $20 for the first 25 words plus $1.20 per additional word. Ads placed by phone or by fax are with Visa. MasterCard or Discover only.

HOW TO USE YOUR VOICE MAILBOX:

After you receive your mailbox number and private security code, you can record your personal introduction and listen to your responses. Call 527-1966, 24 hours a day, and follow the easy instructions. You must have a touch-tone phone.

QUESTIONS? Call 235-8200, ext. 268.

MEET YOUR MATCH! Use the form below to place your FREE, 2-week Phone Matches" Ad and get your FREE Voice Mailbox.

TO PURCHASE AN OPTIONAL HEADLINE, use the lines below, keeping in mind the following: 20 characters per line including spaces; the first initial of each word is capitalized; abbreviations and unusual punctuation will not be accepted; the cost of each line is $12. Continue on a separate sheet if necessary; no more than 10 lines. Please print clearly.

PRINT CLEARLY First 25 words are FREE. $1.20/additional word. Continue on a separate sheet if necessary.

THEAS The San Diego Chamber of Commerce netted nearly $12,000 from the 18th Annual Pan de Campo. It is the first tim since the Chamber took over the ficsta that a profit was realized.

The unemployment rate in Duval County fell 2.3 percent in July, to 13.9 percent It remains the highest unemployment rate in the 12-county Coastal Bend region.

San Diego ISD trustees approved a three phase improvement plan for the Bernarda Jaime Junior High School which will include new showers and the air conditioning of the gymnasium.

• Claiming that his case has received extensive publicity prior to trial, Silverio Juarez has asked that his case be transferred out of Duval County. Juarez, along with Maria Garcia, is charged with injury to a child.

• Former Duval County judge Archer Parr has threatened to take the San Diego Independent School District to court — again. This time Parr is unhappy with the tax rate adopted by the district's board of trustees.

On May 3, 1879, J. Concepción Cuellar filed for a divorce from his wife, Petra G.

State Representative Richard Raymond and Branch Manager Eles de Cuellar. It was the first case filed in the new county of Duval. Over 100 year later, more than 16,000 cases have been filed. Many, says District Clerk Richard Barton, have been taking up space for years with no resolution in sight. He will ask a visiting district judge to dismiss many of these old cases.

Duval County Commissioners tabled a proposal by County Judge E.B. Garcia Ir. to assess a half-cent sales tax. The matter was revisited at the court's regular meeting on Monday, September 11.
