SAN DIEGO'S WEEKLY

Rich Sea Stew

For more than 45 years scientists from the Scripps Institution of Oceanography and the Southwest Fisheries Science Center have been studying the body of water that runs down the California coast. They are seeing changes - surface warming, population declines - that may be cause for alarm. <continued on page 20>
Revolving Door to Cable's Lobby

By Thomas K. Arnold

A former aide to County Supervisor Diane Jacob has come under fire for accepting a job as lobbyist for Cox Cable, the largest of the six multichannel providers regulated by the San Diego County Board of Supervisors. Janet Arnsdter, a former aide who worked with Jacob on the task force that handled the city's cable franchise negotiations, also has been accused of having financial interests in cable companies. Cox Cable is expected to begin delivering its expanded service to the city by the end of the year, and manySupervisors have expressed concern that Arnsdter's new job could create conflicts of interest.

Grand Old Charity

By Thomas K. Arnold

United Way of San Diego County, like its national parent, raises money for a multitude of charities and nonprofit organizations. "Some campaigns," according to a recent report by the San Diego County United Way, "have been criticized for their lack of transparency and accountability. We're not saying that our campaigns are perfect, but we're trying to improve them," said a United Way official.

A very small stadium box office

The San Diego Padres are planning to build a new stadium in Little Italy, but the city council has yet to respond to the Padres' proposal. "We're still in the early stages of planning," said a Padres spokesman. "We're looking at different options, and we're not sure yet what we'll do." The Padres have until the end of the year to present their plans to the city council.

Fleischmann's brand manager, John Bressler, was found to have left his balls on a table at a recent trade show. "I'm really embarrassed," said Bressler. "I just left them there because I was hungry, and I thought they would be safe there." The company has since apologized to its customers.

Cyber law

A new law in San Diego county that makes using other people's internet access illegal has been put into effect. "It's a way of making sure that everyone respects other people's property," said a local attorney. "It's not about punishing people, but about protecting their rights." The law applies to all forms of internet access, including public libraries and college campuses.

Citizen light

The City of San Diego has announced plans to install new streetlights in Little Italy. "We're trying to create a safer environment for residents and visitors," said a city official. "The lights will help reduce crime and improve the overall quality of life in the neighborhood." The new lights are scheduled to be installed within the next six months.

Diving for Dollars
By Krisa Greene

They go by names like Denver Mike, Gutiar Rick, Indian Joe, Meister Mike, Boncar Annie, Bitching Bill, and Wolf. A few of them are called Big Brute, Big Brutus, and Bob the Builder. They are the men who make an average of $200 a night when they are diving for dollars. This is the world of the "Diving for Dollars" of the Las Vegas Strip. They are the men who literally dive for dollars to support their families. They must be skilled divers and swimmers, and they must be able to hold their breath for long periods of time to reach the depths where the money is. The money is usually found in the pools of the hotels and casinos. The men must be able to find the money without being caught by the security guards. They are the men who risk their lives to make a living. Some have even died trying to find the money. The "Diving for Dollars" is a world that is full of danger and excitement. It is a world that is only for the brave and the daring. It is a world that is full of hope and dreams. It is a world that is full of wonder and magic.

Rich Sea Stew

By Douglas Whynott

The California Current is a rich source of marine life, providing a unique environment for researchers studying the ocean's biological diversity. The current flows along the west coast of the United States, and its waters support a diverse array of marine organisms, including fish, squid, and plankton. This rich marine ecosystem attracts researchers and scientists from around the world, who use the current's waters to conduct a wide range of studies.

One ship, four cruises a year, with stations from Del Mar to Pillar Point, 40 miles apart on lines that run as much as 350 miles out to sea.

Seabirds and mammals have been known to alter their diet in response to changes in the environment. For example, during times of food scarcity, seabirds may switch to a diet of smaller fish or other prey. Similarly, during periods of marine mammal abundance, such as the North Atlantic right whale, these animals may rely more heavily on this species for their diet. Understanding these relationships is crucial for managing marine ecosystems and ensuring the sustainability of these species.

Thus, to study the impact of anthropogenic activities on marine ecosystems, researchers must be aware of the potential effects of emerging pollutants on marine life. This understanding is essential for developing effective management strategies to protect these valuable resources.

In conclusion, the California Current is a rich source of marine life, providing an ideal environment for researchers to study the effects of environmental changes on marine ecosystems. By understanding the dynamics of this system, we can better protect these valuable resources and ensure their sustainability for future generations.
...the birds had no natural instincts to overcome. The thought that the birds might lack such instincts was laughable. The birds seemed to be too focused on their display to notice anything else. As we observed the birds, the light from the computer screen cast a warm glow on the room. The birds continued their display...
Poetry Is Adolescence Fermented
San Diego's Own Incommunicado Press

by Abe Oliacear

Poetry is a form of expression that allows individuals to express their emotions and thoughts in a unique and personal way. In the context of adolescence, poetry can serve as a means for young people to explore their identity, navigate the challenges of growing up, and find a sense of belonging. It can also be a tool for self-discovery and personal growth.

Poetry is not just about the words themselves; it's about the emotions and experiences that they convey. Adolescents often find it difficult to express their feelings, yet poetry provides them with a platform to do so. Through the use of metaphor, simile, and imagery, poets can help young people understand their own experiences and connect with others who might be going through similar things.

In conclusion, poetry can be a powerful tool for adolescents to express their emotions and ideas. It can help them explore their identities, make sense of their experiences, and connect with others who share similar feelings and challenges. By encouraging and supporting young people in their poetic endeavors, we can help them develop their creative skills and foster a sense of belonging and self-expression.

Phone Matches Success Stories:

John Giambalvo and Cherie Barnes

WHAT WOULD YOU DO with a long-haired, Italian rock-and-roll drummer? This ex-Fine Focker is articulate, motivated, silly, 23, 5'7. 150 lbs. and very interested in finding out.

John: I had placed Phone Matches™ ads before, with the guitar in all of them. The rock and roll crowd is looking for the most extreme challenge, something that will make them feel alive.

Cherie: I'm tired of the everyday routine. I want something new, something exciting. I've been looking for a way to break out of this mundane existence.

John: How about a blind date? I had a friend who was successful with it.

Cherie: I'm not sure I'm ready for that. I want something more challenging.

John: Why not a Phone Match? I heard it was really exciting.

Cherie: Sounds interesting. Let's give it a try.

John: Great! I'll call the toll-free number and set up a date for us.

Cherie: I'm excited. This could be the start of something great.

John: I hope so. Let's see what happens.

SINGLE BOOKLOVERS

READING

Beth said, "Single Booklovers is good for day people, but it's not suitable for night workers because of the setting and talking without going out with them."

I asked other people about their experiences with Single Booklovers, and some of them agreed with Beth's point of view. Some said it was too quiet and boring, while others found it enjoyable. However, many people mentioned that they had a good time and found the experience rewarding.

One of the most interesting aspects of Single Booklovers is the variety of people you meet. You can talk to people from different backgrounds, ages, and experiences. This can be a great opportunity to learn from others and broaden your horizons.

Another thing people mentioned was the quality of the food. The staff at Single Booklovers is known for their delicious meals. You can enjoy a variety of dishes, and the atmosphere is perfect for a relaxing meal.

Overall, Single Booklovers is a great place to spend an evening. It's a friendly and welcoming environment, and the staff is always helpful and attentive. Whether you're looking for a quiet night out or an exciting social experience, Single Booklovers has something for everyone.

ENTHUSIASM

Some people have mixed feelings about Single Booklovers, but others are passionate about it. My advice is to give it a try and see what you think. You might be surprised by how much you enjoy it.

If you're looking for a unique and memorable experience, Single Booklovers is definitely worth a visit. Just remember to dress appropriately and be open-minded to the different people you might meet. You never know who you might meet or what you might learn from them.

In conclusion, Single Booklovers is a great place to spend an evening. It's a friendly and welcoming environment, and the staff is always helpful and attentive. Whether you're looking for a quiet night out or an exciting social experience, Single Booklovers has something for everyone.
How to Make a Joke Last

We, in our cynical age, know better.

In the evening, when the joker is finished, the audience often goes home with the impression that the joke was short and flat. The joke was indeed short and flat, but it was not the fault of the joke. The joke was properly told, with the proper timing and delivery. However, the audience misunderstood the joke, and the result was a short and flat performance.

A joke is not a piece of furniture. A joke is not a thing that can be bought and sold. A joke is a living thing, a thing that can only be understood by the person who delivers it. A joke is a conversation, a conversation between the audience and the performer. A joke is not a piece of furniture that can be understood and judged by the audience.

The only way to make a joke last is to make it a conversation. The audience must be involved, must be part of the joke. The audience must be encouraged to participate, to think, to laugh, to understand. The audience must be part of the joke, not just an audience watching a performance.

The joke is not a piece of furniture. It is not a thing that can be bought and sold. It is a living thing, a thing that can only be understood by the person who delivers it. To defray legal expenses, he sold women souvenir photographs of himself with a biographical sketch of his accomplishments on the back.

ports of Savannah, and the scar on the side of his face. One day, his name was in the "Ike" column of a city daily. As he was leaving the bar, he saw a woman sitting in a booth with a cigarette in her hand. "Ike," he said, "I need your help. I need money to get out of this town."

As he walked out, the woman turned to him. "What do you need money for?"

"I need money to get out of town," he said. "I don't want to be here anymore."

She looked at him for a moment, then said, "Well, I might be able to help you. But I want something in return."

"What is that?"

"I want a picture of you with a biographical sketch of your accomplishments on the back."

"I don't want to do that," he said.

"Think about it," she said, "and let me know when you're ready.

A few days later, he came back to the bar. The woman was sitting in the same booth.

"I'm ready," he said.

She handed him a pencil and a piece of paper. "Write down your accomplishments on the back of the picture," she said.

He wrote down his accomplishments, and she took the picture. "Remember," she said, "you can always come back here if you need more money."

French Provincial

Pinecrest

Lard Schmard. "Maybe that's why it's so damned good." I say.

You can believe me, my friend, but you won't believe your eyes. Why? Well, we're not the only ones who have the same thought. Questions and answers, the kind you'd expect from questions with thoughtful and accurate answers.

French Provincial in Pinecrest has two separate restaurants: one in the main building and another in a nearby house. The latter, which is French with Vietnamese influence, offers a cozy atmosphere, and there's always a good spot to be found. The menu includes items such as pasta, ravioli, and soups. The prices are reasonable, and the service is friendly. The best part is the wine list, which is extensive and well-chosen. The decor is simple yet elegant, and the overall experience is delightful.

Overlooking at the entire restaurant, the view from the main floor is the best. The second floor offers another perspective, but it's not as good as the first. If you're looking for a place to enjoy a meal with friends or family, French Provincial is a great choice. It's not expensive, and the food is delicious. We ordered the quiche, which was served piping hot, and the salmon, which was cooked to perfection. The service was excellent, and the atmosphere was relaxed and enjoyable.

The Japanese food, on the other hand, was not quite as good. It was a bit too oily, and the presentation was not as appealing as we had hoped. However, it was still a decent meal, and we enjoyed it. Overall, we were very satisfied with our experience at French Provincial, and we would definitely recommend it to others.

If you're looking for a place to eat in the area, French Provincial is definitely worth a try.

The text on the page contains a description of a picture story by the San Diego Historical Society. It starts with:

"Picture Story by the San Diego Historical Society"

The story is about a man's furnishings department of Marston's Department Store, circa 1906. George White Marston was an early San Diego luminary who arrived in this area in 1879 at the age of 26, accompanying his father. The text continues:

"The man hailed from the farming country of Wisconsin. Young Marston first found work here as a "coping chaser" — he earned a small sum for a local railroad company by greeting stagecoach passengers arriving from the Pacific coast of Fort Yuma and checking the collected road dust from their suits. After several more jobs (banker, store clerk), Marston bought a half-interest in a local store with the aid of his father (who helped him with a mere 12 percent interest on the loan)."

The text then describes the events that led to Marston opening his own store: "Fast forward several years: Marston, now a successful businessman, opens his latest emporium (shown above) on the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and C Street downtown. Four stories high, the Marston Department Store was one of the first structures in San Diego to be built on a steel framework. The grand opening was held on October 18, 1896. Local newspapers praised the event: "Never in the history of San Diego has a greater sight been witnessed of the kind-crammed full of goods. [the store] represents perhaps the largest retail establishment in Southern California and excelled by few in San Francisco."

There is also a mention of "Golden Years" and "Era of Commerce" which may refer to the era or topic of the story.
I Wait to Do It Myself

By Anne Albright

When I first saw the video game 'Super Mario Bros. 3,' I was absolutely captivated by the vibrant colors and the fun gameplay. It was a defining moment for me as a child, and ever since then, I've been a huge fan of video games. However, it wasn't until recently that I finally decided to dive into the world of gaming again.

One day, I was scrolling through my phone when I came across a video game review for 'Super Mario Bros. 3.' It was a nostalgic reminder of my childhood, and I knew I had to give it a try. I downloaded the game on my computer and started playing.

At first, I was a bit overwhelmed by the complex controls and the challenging levels. But I persevered, and as I progressed, I found myself becoming more and more invested in the gameplay. The graphics were stunning, and the music was nostalgic and emotionally resonant.

As I played through the game, I found myself experiencing a range of emotions. At times, I felt frustrated by the challenging levels, but overall, I was deeply immersed in the world of 'Super Mario Bros. 3.' It was a reminder of how much joy video games can bring, and how they can transport you back to your childhood.

In the end, I decided that I would wait no longer to share my love of video games with others. I have since recommended 'Super Mario Bros. 3' to my friends and family, and I'm thrilled to see their reactions. It's a reminder that sometimes, it's okay to take the time to do something for yourself and let your passions guide you.
