Worst Sort Of Premeditated Murder I've been a fence sitter on the subject of capital punishment all of the 24 years of my adult life. This is a very uncomfort-able position for somebody who has always been an in-volved radical. Nineteen sixty-who has always been an involved radical. Nineten sixty-eight through 1972 were banner years for urabble-rouses (no. Jack Shrady, who was a state senator at the time, just called us rabble, I believe). However, Hawkin Mitchell's incredibly detailed, fact-filled, and moving story ("Will California Kill LaTwon Weaver?" January 11) has forced me down at last. State-sanctioned death is the worst sort of predenting the control of the control o death is the worst sort of pre-meditated murder, and it must be stopped. How can someone with a small purse, free time, and a strong commitment help?

Worse, the article makes false accusations against defense lawyers Martin and Rawson. For example, the article quotes CAP lawyer Fermino's uninformed opinion that Martin and Rawson "whether because of their own or institutional in zonesteens, different in the contract of their own or institutional in zonesteens. cause of their own or institu-tional incompetence, did not provide, the best defense" and that Weaver "had no dream team." For example, Mitchell wonders whether Martin and Rawson "reminded the court that their client was 'slow." For example, Mitchell lists questions about the case and then states, "These are ques-tions his trial attorneys should have explored."

then states, 'Thore are questions his trial actorneys should have explored.'

Hawkim Mitchell responds: La Twon Weaver may indeed not have fled the scene with Byron Summersville. But as to the other "crori" —I wrote that Summersville was later ar-rested and that there was a plea bargain, he turned state's evi-dence, and wort free — these are points of contention that I hope will be cleared up as the case moves through the appellate process.

THE BOYS ARE BACK IN TOWN

I couldn't help but enjoy the rapacious grins on the faces of Barry Switzer and faces of Barry Switzer and Jerry Jones following a thorough whipping of Green Bay by Dallas. Each man, in his own mind, and for far, far different rea-sons, felt vindicated, live, on national TV. And if you went public windication. on national TV. And if you want public vindication, the NPL post-season is the biggest spotlight this country can produce. Even though I would argue that switzer and lones are still the same men they were 24 hours previous to Sunday's contest—one ad dunce, the other so ego-bound that the fired his head coach for sinning—it was still a pleasure to see two the hoursens of life.

Breast size: how to change too big, too little, too low into just right.

You're in a clothing store trying on a blouse, a form fitting top, or a slinky dress in YOUR size. But it's TOO TIGHT or TOO HUGE. You think to yourself, "How can this be? It's MY size." You ask the salesperson: "Is this mismarked?" To which she replies—and you detect a hint of a snicker—"Oh no! It's not mismarked. You're just tooooo...." Goldilocks had the right idea: When something is TOO whatever for you, it's huma nature to seek out the just right solution. And when it comes to breast size, there are several plastic surgical potions to help you achieve your own just right.

☐ Too small, too low: Reasons why your breasts might be smaller than you'd prefer: genetics; one or both breasts fail to grow or grow abnormally; exercising away the fat composition of breast tissue; post-pregnancy breasts ofter lose volume and droop. The surgical solution involves placing implants behind the natural breasts to achieve a desired size, shape and projection.

☐ Too big, too low: Large breasts can be uncomfortable and the cause of back and shoulder pain. In addition to the frustration of trying to find clothes that fit both top and bottom, self-image can also be an issue especially for young women. Breast reduction surgery helps alleviate both the medical and the aesthetic problems. The procedure involves the creation of smaller, lifted breasts by removing excess breast tissue and skin, and repositioning the nipple solid and common value systems can help a marriage withstand the strain; but if a couple doesn't have the tools to get help.

"There are chapsians and countedors out there to help."

"A havy man says, "but they're just people with jobs and good intentions." As an example, he tells the story of a sailor who, after being at sea for only a few days, received a message from the chaplain elling him that his wide hald let him. The explanation was that

The stereotype of infelderly is of the men fooling around while they're sway. "What happens on ship stays on ship "is the motto. But things aren't allways great at home. The women get lonely, and they're often hit on by other military guys, guys who know which husbands are gone. My retired Nasy dad tells a story about a Marine during the Korean Mar who, before in shipped out, made a notch with his fingernal in his wide's tube of spermicidal jell. When he can home, he checked the tube, and when the notch didn't match what was left in the tube, he divorced her, just like that. A Navy wide say that how wives handle the absence is in individual thing, of course. There's support out there, but they don't have to take it. If they don't, that's their choice. You're going to do what you're going to one's going to tell you not to do.'t. You have to trust if no.

"A lot of wives just go home, back to their parents, while their husbands are gone, even when the husbands are still in the Marine Corps."

relationship. I think you know before they leave. It's in the relationship before they're gone. I don't hear a lot about infidelity, but the majority of people! I've heard about haven't suprised me. Which has't to say that fidelity is easy. Eve, whose Christian faith is as present in her home as her sense of order, readily admits that it's difficult. There's temptation no matter how strong the marriage is. I've never worried about fidely in our marriage and never given my husband any reason to. But when I say goodly to my hystabad, I look at him and I say, 'You be d,' and he knows exactly what I mean. And that is, avoid all ation, simple as that. And I'm going to do the same. You

Heather is an angel. She is 22 years old and has a 5-month-old baby and is married to an enlisted Marine, also 22, whom she hask nown since they were in the 8th grade. You sense that she adores him. I ask, and she nots, seeming a little relieved that we've dodged that one-"Yeah, and you know, keing goon, worving about this little can for a moment, then I try to steer her back to her husband and ask about that stress. parts. It's kind of hard to describe. If you've ever been in the military, they don't just ask you a question, they just tell you to do it, and it's not always in the nicest way. But that's their job. It makes me worired, and I try not to freak out on my end, because that would make it worse for him. "So you just try to be supportive!" I say. "Teah." she says, very clear dead end. Her expression hasn't changed, but she's nor about to say moree. We've reached a changed, but she's nor about to say more. We've reached a

We had to be tirrer at six in the morning to get all their things ready. They were done by 12, and then they had to sit there and wait flo o'clock that night to leave, but you couldn't leves the camp. You couldn't even be campled to the state of the st

"You, that shw ji got up at four in the morning, so I could play football." "Then, very english, she dads. "That is not every law," and almost parlogical."

she'll move back to Virginia, with the help of her father-in-law and a friend of his, who'll come out to help. "I want to get his classes set up, and that stars in January and he gets back in December, and if we were moving there'd be no way he could start." As for herestly, she's working on her medical transcription degree. She went to a community college for two years before coming to san Dego and has continued her studies at home. And her hopes for five years? "He'll be graduating by that time. And her hopes in five years?" He'll be graduating by that time. Hope that in five, we saw we'll be where we're goanna be for the rest of our lives. We'll be in a city or a town that we're both comfortable with, I want to be near my family, but not too close, where I can get to them if something's wrong. Hopefully I'll work at home doing medical transcription, ale and until my song so to preshool, and then I might go to work in a shopstral. I ask her if she's ready to get out; it must be lonely, "Yeah," she says and gives me one of her long looks as an answer.

I ask what advice she' give to someone just starting out. The question seems a little rediculous—she's so young—and we have the made insides, "she says. "I'ry and be as supportive as you can. Try to have a lot of communication. Once you find out what's happened, then you can understand. And sometimes they can't tell you what they 'e doing, And then there's nothing you and or really, you have to just go on with it."

And then the baby becomes a bit more restless, and Heather's manner and even look tell me that it's time to go, she has nothing more to say. As I leave, I have the desire to tiptoe out and leave he file as undisturbed as I found it.

I ask Alex's if he had any idea of what the military would be like when she got married. He was in when we met, 'she says. 'I didn't know what it would be like. I'm pretty resourceful, pretty independent, and you just don't think about it. You don't hink about the possibility that you might need support and you don't have it. You just get it from your friends. By the time the gavy get home at the end of the day, they are so humt, they don't want to talk about it. That's the last thing they want to she were the source of the proper than the property of the propert smoking right under the air filtration system, so that the smoke is recycled into the air for the whole sub. My husband's the type that hides all the achtrays to discourage smoking. But here he is breathing this stuff. He's got a smoker's cough and he doesn't smoke."

So they don't talk about it. "You don't want to make any waves. You try to make things easier for him. The officer kept asying they were going to invite us to dinner to talk about some things, and I asked my husbrad. Do you mind if I say what I him!." Yah!, Joh. he said, I don't want you to him!." Yah! Joh. he said, I don't want you to him!." Yah! Joh. he said, I don't want you to work the working basically for nothing. Everyone says we have free medical care, they train you, they think it's free, Becca and I figured it out, and our husbands make $300 a month. They don't compensate you." It's then she mentions that they removing to New York in three weeks, and when I remark that she certainly seems calm about it, she says. "How that he can do some of the things he enjoys there, hunting and fishing, and it's worth it, whatever we have to do, for him to be happier in his job'. Alex and Becca's kids are getting restless, and I tell them I'm about done. What if I were 20 and just marrying somebody in the military, 1 say, what would you tell me? 'Get therapy,' Alex says, and she laughs. 'And have patience.'

and that's where we were before we moved here in February. We'll be here for three years."

Eve's husband is on a three-year rotation, three years of sea duty, then three years of shore duty. The sea duty includes a year of workups, where he's gone more than he's home, though he's gone for only short periods of time, during which the men are trained on specific aspects of their duties. "He'll be gone for home of the weeks. Then go for a couple of weeks again. Go and stay, back and forth, adjust and readjust. It's the most difficult. They do that for 9 months to a year before deployment. They're in and out, in and out, but they're gone more than they're home. And then you get that 6 months that they're gone. So that comes to about 15 months out of three years, then they're home for about a year, and then they'il attra working up again worked out retail, well in that when they came home from deployment, they went into dry dock, as we had a whole year plus some where he wasn't gone. He just went to work and came home every day. It was really kind of a bonus. He was the properties of the whole year home every day. It was really kind of a bonus. get my elementary education degree, so my plans have been put to a halt. We couldn't afford my education, because we are making it paycheck to paycheck, nothing left over, certainly nothing left over to pay for tuition and books. The fact that I'm working outside the home is devastating to me. My husband and kids are probably adjusting to it more than I am." The reason for the financial pressure is, of course, the cost of living, "Utilities are two and a half times more here. In Washington we were paying 4 cests per kilowart, here we're paying 10 and 12 cents, and we're never had detertic bills over a hundred dollars. Water and swever and garbage, all of that just adds up. We weren't prepared for it, had no idse." Living on base would cut expenses, she says, but they don't want to do that. "The to rem something until we got something on base. And we have baig dog, and we have our so called freedom. When my husband comes home at night he is not still in the military, being dictated to as to when to mow his lawn, when to turn of this lights, how cool his house can be, how warm be can hear it. Which is why her difficulties with her son come as a surprise. If Eve sunhakable faith in God (my phrase, not hers) is the backdrop for all she says, her feelings about her son are almost an present. She circles back to him and to the difficulties he's considerable of the son and the same of the son and the same of the son and the same of t in that the friendships are not real deep and he doesn't hold on to them. And part of that has to do with his personality, and the other part is like a male thing. Letting go so that it doesn't hurt so bad. But our oldest has had the most difficult time."

Later she talks about her kids' schooling, and her son comes up again, though she starts by talking about her youngest child. "She especially got the highest potential of all three children so far as being accessful and really excelling in academics." Eve says, and she describes her daughter's home-schooling. "She got where schooling was play, entertainment. With my other two, to where schooling was play, entertainment. With my other two, the was to be put her in one in Washington state. In three weeks, there was nothing new to teach her. She knew it all. She was evaluated here as being giffed. I don't think she is giffed. I think sich had a better education. She skipped second grade, and they put her in third. She could have skipped bird and gone to forth." The cost to say that her middle child is "doing fine, not a strong student, not poor, perty average. She fits in an dis n's achallenged as she was in Washington, but her SAT wores are excellent, 90-some percentile." Later she talks about her kids' schooling, and her son percentile."

And then she turns to her son. "Our son, on the other hand, is our most difficult in every aspect, including education," between the vice leaves its offenses. "He is in summer school because he failed a couple of classes. He failed some classes because of his poor social shills have teed not retaille were a real edecid disorder—a factor in his poor social shills from when he started school until this point. He has very poor social shills. That, in addition to other factors in his education. He's struggling, and I don't know if he's spoint good quadate on time," he says, her voice cracking. "That's really discouraging. Yet he's in he says, her voice tracking. "That's really discouraging. Yet he's in the says her solid librains shool system, which will be easier for him to graduate from than the Washington school system. It's good and it's bad." We go on to other things then, but we come back to the son when I ask the what ha hopes they libe doing five years from now. She answers that her husband of the retired and that she that hoped to be working as a teach by then, but that doesn't had hoped to be working as a teach by then, but that doesn't had hoped to be working as a teach by the first that doesn't had hoped to be for that doesn't had hoped to be for that doesn't had be for that doesn't had be for that doesn't had be for the first had been a start to smite. Our soon will be functioning well in society. That's putting it real middly, "she says, and she looks at me when I start to smite, mitaking her frankiess for understatement." He has — she pauses, her voice tight, "problems. I hope he'll be functioning well and employed. Lauprected that maybe he was following in well and employed. Lauprected that maybe he was following in "Rick joined ROTC at the high school level when we lived in Washington, but her really wasn't putting any effort into it. We

"The oldest is the one you make the mistakes with. Obviously verybody has to have a first child. But I wish I could have had everyhody has to have a first child. But I wish I could have had the third first, because it was with her that I had learned to be comfortable, and I did not push her to learn this skill and that skill. Even walking, it was like, okay, you're my baby — and we knew she was the last one—I'm not going to push you to leave to walk. But she was walking at tem neomths. The walk was the was walking at the months, to walk, but she pushed herself, she was walking at tem months, oldest one, you want to beast, you want to bright this child has done this, and all these things that they've learned at this early age. I kind of think that underlying push and that uncertainty of what 'spith and what's wrong and what's normal and these other things we missed because you don't have that extended family to just kind of calin you down, with my huband's family, not with mine; if it would have been different.

Who knows. But that's that." She says all this with such clear regret in her voice that it's painful to hear.

She talks about the effect of her husband's first deployment,

She talks about the effect of her busbands first deployment, their longest sparation — seven and a half months — on her son. "My son was five, and he went through this void that he felt in his dad leaving and not coming back, and he wouldn't let me out of his sight. I couldn't go to the bathroom. I couldn't go across the street. It was horblie. My huband had dou't not be back, Rick felt that Mom would leave and come for its months before deployment — he'd gone and come for its months before leaving — but when he left and dail't come back. Rick felt that Mom would leave and not come back. And I was so young, and I got so frustrated and so tired with him."

A few minutes later we hear the fine stock. I repected a cust-gan generater, someone tough and difficult belooking, but as Rick stands at the kitchen counter and makes himself a standwich he mostly looks askward and a little lost. Happy thoughts weren't made to last, but it is their compactness that eludes us.

The built-in obsolescence of every nanny, every pram, is a force from God that issues from us.

How could we not like it, watching it emanate like a breath of witch hazel or a grayish-purple shroud?

Something has got to be done to the way we feel before we get completely numb, like a colossus floundering in its own wake.

See these hands? Really we must make it up to them or they'll take credit for everything we've accomplished which they will anyway.

And what's-his-face can sit on his porch burping uninterruptedly — propriety isn't hardy in this zone, but that's not his problem. In fact cet he doesn't have a problem. We, who see around corners, into strongboses, must wear the guilt of our glancing. It's another appurtenance, like a birdhouse or dishwasher, that we came to the cerns with terms with the consequence of t with our pink stucco skyscraper. We know so much we've kept it all in. That may be changing.

It seemed to me that the Emerson musicians had determined to play this sensational movement at a marginally faster pace than any other quartet had ever played it.

The Emerson also played Haydn (the D Major Quartet, Opus 33, No. 6), but I want to comment on that in the context of the next evening's performance: a private, fund-raising concert by the Mendelsohin Quartet, under the sponsorship of the Manily Mozart Festival. This was held at the Sweet Houve in Bankers' Hill, an early-20th-century Craftunan-style masterpiec, which is present owners, Roland and Kathleen Stoughton, have been carefull and dowing retoring to its original perfection. The venue needs to be mentioned, because the initratuse expressiveness and glowing warmth of the group's youthful musicams was offettively framed and enhanced by the equisitely proportioned domestic space they played in — chamber music where it was been asset to be a compared to the control of the surroundings, and because of the surroundings, and because of their own personal signature, the Mendelsohin Quartet's Haydin (Quartet in D, Opus 20, No. 4) sounded significantly different from the Emerson's — less crisp, less aristocratic, less archi-tectural, with a more outgoing, amiable, Austrian quality, muamiable, Austrian quality, music for friends in a home rather than for afficionados in a concert hall. This is not to suggest that there was anything imprecise or amateurish about this richly communicative, beautifully shaped, and "imprecably polished playing—on the contrary. The Mendelssohn's virtues appeared to even more trary. The Mendelssohn's virtues appeared to even more winning effect in their performance of Tchaikovsky's First Quartet (in D. Opus 11), as thoroughly Russian in its winsome, melancholy passion as their Haydn had been Austrian in its sturdiness and charm.

Phone Matches Success Stories: Clint & Kerstin Crowe

26, DOWN-TO-EARTH, California guy, 6'4", 180 lbs., blond hair, blue eyes. looking for adventurous female for travel companion, maybe more. Going to Baja late October. ☎

Kerstin: Every once in a while I would answer one or two Phone Matches ads, and then I'd wait a few months and try again.

Clint: At the time, I was just looking for companionship. I had planned a two-week trip to Baja and wanted someone to come along.

Kerstin: I love to travel, and going down to Mexico sounded real attractive to me. I left a message in Clint's voice mail but didn't hear from him for a week and a half. I thought he Clint: Right after I ran the ad, I got into a three-wheeler accident. I had three broken ribs and a separated shoulder. So I had to call Kerstin and tell her the trip was off.

Kerstin: I didn't even know what a threewheeler was. I'm from Germany and we don't have any deserts.

Clint: On our first date we went out or my boat. We sailed around Mission Bay and then out on the ocean. Afterwards, we ate dinner at Casa de Pico.

Kerstin: At first I was a little skeptical, but after three weeks, I knew he was it.
I've never met anyone I fell for so quickly. He was down-to-earth and not flaky. Clint: We traveled a lot that first year — Germany, Austria, Utah and a short trip to Mexico. Then Kerstin got deported. That's when I made up my mind that I didn't want to lose her.

Kerstin: My visa expired and I went down to the INS office to renew it. But they said I had been in the United States long enough. They sent me over the border to Mexico with nothing—only the clothes I was wearing. I called Clint from a pay phone, crying. "Can you pick me up?"

Clint: I had to sneak her back across the border. Then we got an immigration attorney, and she had to return to Germany and come back again.

Kerstin: I said, "Oh, yah!" The INS said we had to get married in three months. So I had to make some quick wedding plans.

Clint: We've been married for a year and a half Int: We've been married for a year and a half now. I keep running into other married couples like us, people who found each other in the Phone Matches". Even my doctor met his wife through the Reader.

Kerstin: You have a much bigger pool of people to choose from than you would in a bar. I tell people not to give up if they don't meet someone right away. It's like the lottery: if you don't try, you can never
