Oh One of Endless Knowledge.

In a recent musical "mellectual discussion, it was brought to our attention by a colleague that in the song "Low Rollevosater" by the Ohio Players there can be heard a blood-cardling scroin of a woman. Our colleague went on to any that the woman was actually being murdered in the studie during the recording of this sing. It was also said that this was reported on the news. Can any of your sources tell us if this is a true story or not?

— Faye, UCSD

Reported in the Weekly World News, maybe. Don't think CNN covered it. Fill this one under "Funky Snuff — Teen Fantasie Division." It's a story that circulated in various forms beginning in the late "Ds. Strictly an urban legend originally cooked up by unreliable teens who are now middle agers still spreading around the same bad information. It somehow just sounds more reasonable when it soming from somene who's going bald. The scream in the song is real—what is so odd about a scream in a song called "Rollercoaster" — but the story may derive from the Chie Physers inclination to put seductive, near-naked women on their abbum Govern. And no. I don't believe the scream is coming from the severed head in the previous question. Well. somehody had to ay it.

You, dead at thirty, leaving blood-swaked poerms for all the amblodgies, and I still wheeting, my works overweight; and yet we feel twins.

SYLVIA'S DEATH

O Sylvia, Sylvia, with a dead box of stones and spoons, with two children, two meteors wandering loose in the tiny playroom, with your mouth into the sheet, into the roofbeam, into the dumb prayer

(Sylvia, Sylvia, where did you go after you wrote me from Devonshire about raising potatoes and keeping bees?)

what did you stand by, just how did you lie down into?

how did you crawl into,

crawl down alone into the death I wanted so badly and for so long,

the death that talked of analysts and cures, the death that talked like brides with plots, the death we drank to, the motives and then the quiet deed?

(And me, me too. And now, Sylvia, you again with death again, that ride home with our boy.)

a mole that fell out of one of your poems?

(O friend, while the moon's bad, and the king's gone, and the queen's at her wit's end the bar fly ought to sing!)

O Sylvia, I remember the sleepy drummer who beat on our eyes with an old story, to do his job, a necessity, a window in a wall or a crib,

And I say only with my arms stretched out into that stone place

how we wanted to let him come like a sadist or a New York fairy

Phone Matches Success Stories:

Nancy Peach & Carl Turner

Nancy: A friend of mine got married through the Phone Matches 1s and she prompted me to try it. The response was great. I got almost a hundred calls. In two weeks, I went out with about 20 guys — sometimes two in one day. I expected some of them to be flaky, but most were really nice. Carl was the very last message before my voice mail ran out.

Carl: It was an attractive ad. I was looking for someone adventurous, someone with a spark of life in her. The artist part really struck me, too.

Nancy: Carl wanted to go out for dinner on our first date, but I said, "No, let's just do tea in case I don't like you." I was into the GQ look and he shows up at my house on a motorcycle with this flowing outfit and long blond hair.

Carl: I had a present all ready for her. I was nervous, but at the same time, I felt really confident.

Nancy: He gave me this opalescent package with an ocean shell inside. It was so sweet. I gave him a kiss and thought to myself. "I'm not going to be able to keep my hands off this guy." It was a hot, sunny day and we rode out to the jetty at Ocean Beach. We started kissing and then ... well, it gets X-rated after that.

Carl: Six days later I went to a family reunion in Missouri. Nancy met me there. We stayed at my father's house and had to sneak around like teenagers. We even got caught by a policeman while we were parked at the end of a cul-de-sac.

Nancy: A year later I got a job in L.A. working as a chef. Carl still wasn't that GQ guy I advertised for, and I didn't know if I wanted to stay attached to him. 50 I decided to be on my own for a while. Three days after I moved, he called me and said he was going to work on some boats tocked in Long Beach and Venture.

Carl: Something just happened to come through at the same time. I wound up moving in with Nancy.

Nancy: We did that gig for a year and a half, and then I decided to move to San Francisco, to be with my sister. Carl started commuting to see me, but that got really nard. Then he got a job offer up here. We live between Sausalito and Mill Valley, on an old estate built in 1887.

Carl: We always wanted to get married by a waterfall, and that's exactly what we did on February 24. I rented a Hamlet costume and Nancy wore this "Dangerous Liaisons" dress.

Nancy: Now I realize that Carl's here to love and support me. He balances me and centers me and tells me I can do it. Plus, he's real cute, too.

San Diego Reader Phone Matches Carl: Nancy's a hard worker, she's full of vim and vigor, and she's fun. I always wanted an artist for a mate

"The Caloi Edge"

Come and ride the most affordable strong, lightweight aluminum frame. Through computer-automated design (CAD), Caloi found that splined and ribbed aluminum tubes create a virtually flex-free, stronger, lighter aluminum frame. Their splined and ribbed, extruded frame tubes eliminate stress points and frame flex. The end result... Caloi power tubing.
