It's cheap, but it's not that cheap to live in Mexico. You can't legally work in the country, so you'll have to bring money with you or find a way to hustle it on the side. You'll wind up shop ping in the U.S., because you're used to American food and American grocery stores. And you'll need to do banking and assorted rum-dum chores.

While you're in Mexico you'll want indoor plumbing, a phone, electricity, and American television. At regular intervals you'll get tired of living in a foreign country and crave a break - to visit friends in the States or go to an American movie or maybe just gobble a Baskin-Robbins double-dip hot fudge sundae. At the end of the day, taking all of this into account, living in Mexico is cheaper than living in America, but not fantastically cheaper.

"I'm sorry." I allow the stand on its own. "I'm sorry." I allow the moment to stand on its own, then ask, "And how long have you lived here full-time!"

"Two years. I'm retired. There are just there of us in camp who live here year-round."

"Was there a discussion in your own mind about retiring in Mexico or keeping this coltage as a weekend destinantion!"

No, when I bought it I know. I wanted to live down here. I wanted to live down here.

This Is Life

I hope that Anne Albright ("Kid Stuff") continues to write about her perspectives on par-enthood with the same honesty enthood with the same honesty she has shown throughout her past columns. Life has its ups and downs, its good and bad times, and we all pass through different times and in differ-ent ways. Motherhood and averaging are not always. parenthood are not always beautifully bright and rosy, no matter how some Pollyannas wish to portray them. Some times hormones and other beautifully biologic chemi cals are balanced and hum ming a sweet rainbow-filled song and all is right with the world, and at other times our whole life can conspire against us to send us toward abject misery. This is Life. If Ms. Romero (Letters, June 27) cannot acknowledge some of the barsher realities of Life then perhaps she should ask for a refund from "some of the

Some discussion of the fact o I'd like to give you an accurate preception of nudism. I have been to Black's Bleach, but I prefer the resorts simply because I'm not a "beach but." Being able to go somewhere and be nude is wone of the best stress reducers I have ever had in my life. The poople are good and are very interesting to talk to. You can talk to an usengibred person to a doctor, and what Repards to the stress of the properties of the properties

Now that you know what nudism is, let me tell you what it isn't! It isn't about trist is it is it is a bout tristicizing someone for how they are; it isn't about staring in an obnoxious way; it isn't about forming orgies; it isn't about having sex out in the open; it isn't about pointing at somebody and laughing at how they look. Most impor-tant of all, it isn't understood. Due to the lack of under-

Throughout Shrew and in much of Shakespeare, women are commodities. They have no status outside the marital no status outside the market marketplace. Petruchio means to "wive wealthily" in Padua. When Troilus and Cressida come together, Pandarus shouts " 'tis a bargain made."

Marriages are contractual.

And women have no say.

Kate tries, at least in the text: "My tongue will tell the anger of my heart," she says in act four, as Petruchio deprograms her with sleep and food deprivation. "I will be free / Even to the uttermost, as I please, in words."

eorge Thing and his wife (presumably the couple in the foreground) enjoy a frolic — complete with fiddles, mandolin, and guitar - in Descanso in this circa 1900 photo. At the time, most of the "Thing" family lived in Thing Valley, which was located on the La Posta Truck Trail through the Lagunas.

The Things and their unusual name got descendants became "Things." their start in England; originally, the family name was "Hogg." Apparently desiring a less descriptive name, a Hogg representative went before an English judge and requested a legal name change. Legend has it that, when questioned by the judge, Mr. Hogg was unprepared with a replacement name on short notice; in answer to the judge's query, he supposedly replied, "Oh, make it anything." Thus, he and his

When I signed three and a half-year-old Rebecca up for dance lessons six months ago, I didn't know about The Recital. I found out soon enough. A couple of weeks into the class, Rebecca's dance teacher, Miss Laurie, gathered the moms together after class. "The recital will be in June," Miss Laurie told us. "The Tiny Tots class will perform Benny the Magic Bunny. Costume deposits are $20. They'll be due next week."

They'll be due net week."
"Aren't they a little young for a recital?" I asked.
"Oh, no." Miss Laurie assured me. "Even the littlest ones love to perform, You'll see."
The next week, we paid our $20. Holding then 13-month-old Angela in my arms, I peered through the studie window as Miss Laure took me "Fix and the Latine assured from the many perform, You'll be seen one to be performed and the performance of the many performs the performance of the many performs the performance of the performanc
