Needless to say, Mr. Shep-Needless to say, Mr. Shep-berd's writing was unlike most film criticism I had been ex-posed to. At times his language, concepts, and references were outside my own realm of know-ledge and often well beyond my comprehension. While I found this extremely frustrating at first, I became more comfortable with his unique approach to cinema as time passed. With a bit of effort on passed. With a bit of effort on my part, the nature and complexity of his criticism became clearer. I was regularly moved to larghter by his wry humor while consistently being treated to insights into a medium too often regarded as mere entertainment. Lea more say I truly appreciate Mr. Shepherd's efforts and eagerly await his cinematic larmentations each week.

Much of the criticism lev-eled at Mr. Shepherd concerns his use of complex language and the low ratings he gives to much of the mainstream Hol-lywood product. Unlike a large percentage of critics, who give glowing reviews to count-iess tilms. Mr. Shepherd is much more discriminating with his praise. In any given rate, there are very lew films are the great way lew films ing of five stars. Asked about the NCMC's budget, Aceves laughs and answers, "It's shoestring. If we have a big mobilization, our budget could be a couple thou-sand dollars. We might set a goal and say to our numbers, 'Everybody needs to try and raise $300.' You see real volunteerism there; people dig into their own pockets. We do try 1992, when we had the 500-year

Aceves believes the NCMC is an alternative to the system of electoral politics, which he feels electoral politics, which he feels has done nothing for his peo-ple. "What we counter," he says, "is this voice in the community that says if you're not a Democrat and you don't vote, nobody will ever listen to you. It's not true. The educational system has taught us that there is no alternative to the two-party sys-tem. The premise is that we cannot create our own institutions. An example of this is the campaign by certain sectors of our community that we have to all become citizens and vote. I don't think we have a problem with people becoming citizens. Bishop Doane on His Dog Lam quite sure he thinks that I am God— Since he is God on whom each one dependa-ment of the God on the God of the God My dear old dog, most constant of all friends. Not quick to mind, but quicker fat than I To Him whom God I know and own, his eye. Deep brown and liquid, watches for my nod: He is more patient underreath the rod Than I, when God His wise corrections ends.

He looks love at me, deep as words e' et spake;
And from me never crumb nor sup will take
But he wage thanks with his most vocal tuit.
And when some crashing noise wakes all his fear;
He is content and quotic, if a man war.
So, faithful, mindful, thankful, trustful, he

The Dog—An Idyllium,
Where were ye, nymphs, when the remorseless deep Closed o'er your little favourite's hapless head? For neither did ye mark with solemn dream In Derwent's rocky woods the white Moon's beam Pace like a Druid o'er the haunted steep; Nor in Winander's stream.
Then did ye swim with sportive smile From fairy-templed isle to isle, Which hear her far-off ditty sweet Vet feel not even the milkmaid's feet What tho' he still was by my side

When, lurking rear, I there have seen Your frees white, your tresses green, Like water lilies floating on the tide? He saw not, barked not, he was still As the soft moonbeam sleeping on the hill.

Or when ah! cruel maids, ye stretched him stiff and chill.

If, while I gazed to Nature blind, In the calm Ocean of my mind In the calm Ocean of my mind
Some new-created image rose
In full-grown beauty at its birth
Lovely as Venus from the sea,
Then, while my glad hand sprung to thee,
We were the happiest pair on earth.

Local disc review Seven Music, no title, 1997 There is nothing sevenin about Seven Music's debut CD. It is a one-man band; there are ten songs; none of the songs are seven minutes long; and though the music has some typical '70s drama, it is rooted more in maudlin '80s balladry. So why the lucky number? I have no idea, unless, as the cover has been imprisoned seven times, or run over by a car seven times, or lives seven million light years away.

Despite what is unknown about Seven Music, I have "Cross street?" I ask.

"Imperial Beach Cafe, "says the sign.

I knew it. I have been here before. It wasn't the Imperial Beach Cafe then, of course. It wasn't the Imperial Beach Cafe then, of course. It wasn't Beach Cafe, run by Mark, the plumber guy. "But it's completely different now," says Ria.

I take a glance inside. She has a point. The place is really souped up from Mark's days. So-phaitacted bead art on the walls, varnished relief to the state of the course of the state of the state mean, it's her life and all that. My view is. there's so much real stuff to investigate here on Rock #3, why invent? wicker chairs with royal blue cushions, an Amer ck #3, why invent? This place in I.B. was Ria's idea. I'd been zzling about being "stuck inland." "You've never been here before," she said she swung her VW around Daisy into Sca-ist. "And it's near the sea — voila!" We're at ican Indian dreamcatcher with quail feathers, the "10 Indian Commandments: 1. Treat earth and all that dwell thereon with respect 2. Remain close to the Great Spirit..."

Ria liked that. "You're supposed to be here.

've never seen anything that wasn't supposed to be."

Uh-huh. Suddenly the waitress is here.

"Would you like breakfast?" asks Joan. What a difference to the menu. No offense, Mark, but now we're looking at — whoa! — eight pages of food.

Ris ignores the menu. She orders what she always orders. Four strips of bacon, an English muffin, apple juice, and hot tex. Me, I'm dithering. I don't apologize; that's what menus are for extended dithering. Lon joints with her pen to the sidewalk blackboard. She starts reading out the breaffast specials. Two oggs and two pancakes for $2.501 a choese omelet with home fries and toost for $3.750, outnity scramble and fries and toast for $3.75; country scramble and home fries, $3.75. #983 Short Work

Great fleas have little fleas upon their backs to bite them And little fleas have lesser fleas, and so ad infinitum.

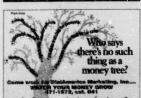

This quotation by Augustus De Morgan (1806-71) from A Builget of Panadozes is said to have been stolen from One Poetry by Jonathan Swift (1667-1745). Swift's puem, only slightly different, consisted of an additional couplet which De Morgan chose to overlook:

Thus every poet in his kind is bit by him who comes behind Diehard literati may quibble with our rendering, pointing out that the original quote (in both instances) was "bite 'em." But Campbe'll includes no apostrophes in its broth.
