hen I was a freshman in college, our family pet, a Shetland sheepdog named Shep, was killed by a car as he roamed the neighborhood in search of a bitch in season. A student in freshman composition at the time, I wrote a maudlin essay titled "I Mourn a Dog." After the grief and the guilt and the anger, I vowed I would someday have my own Shetland sheepdogs, would show and breed them. Would have champions, as Shep surely should've been.

I Smiled In Agreement

Agreement
Lenjoy the Reader because it presents a realistic point of view. So often the "mainstream media" pushes for more and more government spending at all levels, with no voter input.
The Reader seems to acknowledge that the voters may actually know cought to want to ally know enough to want to have a say in how tax money is

Opincar's Praise

Opincar's Praise
Must Be Rejected Abe Opincar finds it "very stirring" that Muslims "make a public and physical display of absolute submission to God's Will" ("Sheep and Goats:

Amused And Disturbed

Disturbed
I'm equally amused and disturbed by the level of fear expressed by "Name Withhele" in last Wednesday's lethers column (November 26). Imagine

Grossmont College Intersession

We can't tell you it's going to be easy. We can only tell you this: from January 5 to January 23, you can take a college course that usually lasts an entire semester. That's up to three credits in three weeks. Choose from 41 courses — many of them General Ed. The three-credit courses last four hours a day. Monday through Friday. And yes, there's a tan of homework. In fact, the only thing that's not more intense is the cost. Our fee is still only $13 a unit

Call or stop by Today. This is your big chance to get caught up or get ahead. Then, when the three weeks are over, you can get back to your regular routine. And maybe, you can even get some sleep ow I am a college professor of fiction writing. Those molten, adolescent emotions about Shep's death, which had gushed to create my freshman essay, were long ago cooled, and, in the meantime, had been more effectively vented in a story called "Dead Dog," published in my first book, Animal Acts (1988). Now at the beginning of 1997 my seventh book, a novel called Dog People, is in production, due to be released in four months. Simultaneously, a dog named Tara, the first of the Shetland sheepdog "champions" I swore I would own and train and show and breed selected and brought home when I finally finished my last college degree - is dying.

two weeks before Christmas.

A day later the swelling began to subside. Two days later it was gone. While Jim was away I heard more than that. I I heard more than that. I heard that the swollen legs were a bad sign, that the spot of chaffed skin was the foreishadowing of the ulcerations to come, that the additional lumps I'd found under the skin near her armpits were not what would cause her approaching demise, and that the steroids wouldn't do any good. "But," he added, "it's a surprise." for a time visiting his mother, whose fall down her stairs had broken both legs, I could once again feel the delicate bones and ligaments under the taut skin on Tara's hocks. I Am Appalled, Too This is in response to Lynn Badler's letter "I Am Appalled" in the November 26 Reader. I am also appalled. I am a child development major, and I'm currently taking a class this semester dealing with child abuse. A detective from the San Diego Police Department came out, and he showed us pictures — photographs — of children who have been abused. I am appalled by what parents do to children, and I'm awfully glad that we have Child Protective Services. In response to Ms. Badler's talk about getting their constitu-tional rights back, I believe the right to safety.

That Is Bull I would like to express my out-rage about last week's review on the Sundays ("Of Note," November 20). I have read William Grain's review, It was ludicrous, narrow-minded, and it angered me. Crain's re-view talked about a lady advertising in the single ads, which has nothing to do with the Sundays. I'll give him the benefit of the doubt. He does give evidence of listening to How's the tood? It doesn't lay a glove on the elegance of California Cuisine. It's not as smooth and skillful as at Moonstruck Cafe. (Both are in the vicinity of Cafe on Park.) You will get tonsto cat, and therein lies the minor flaw. There's too much of everything, and some ingredients don't much of everything, and some ingredients don't quite mesh.

We ordered the crab fritters with Thai horseradish/mustard sauce (four for $6.50). Each was the size of a baseball. Most of the fritter was a heavy layer of deep-fried batter. We peeled away the batter and ate the crab, which was fresh and tasty.

Perhaps a better example of less is more was the roasted butternut squash with risotto, shrimp, and sautéed greens ($10.95). Except at farmer's markets and county fairs, I have never encoun-tered a squash of such length and width. It covered the entire place, was filled with shrimp and rice and a garden patch of fried lecks. Two mammoth-red tortillas were placed in the squash's center. The dish could have been name." Red Sails in the
