But They Look A Lot Alike, Especially Around The Eyes

The picture of Beethoven you printed on pages 3 and 55 of your January 22 edition is in fact the one of Bonaparte, and 1 think it must be from his "Premier Consul" era and painted by David. Sorry. I have no witty or hateful com-

Definitely Not

Beethoven
I'm sure you might have gotten a few calls or letters on this one, but on your January 22 publication, your Calendar, the "Advent of X-Bach," you the "Advent of X-Bach," you have a picture of Napoleon there saying it's Beethoven. Of course it's not Beethoven. Of course it's not Beethoven. Of the artwork for that — it was symphony mo. 3, the Eroiza, and of course that was deducated to Napoleon before he crowned himself and all that and Beethoven got mad and kind of ripped the cover off it and threw it in the fire, but and threw it in the fire, but that's history or folklore or whatever. But it's definitely not Beethoven. Name withheld

Macaque Colony Embroiled In Major Scandal It would be nice to be able to

It would be nice to be able to sea that Bill Manson's article on macaques and herpes B or City Lights, "Inaury 29) talks to meet basic journalistic tatandards, but obviously in those Monicagate days that would be an exageration. His article add exess two issues; article and exess two issues the risks of herpes B infection from 200 macaques, and whether the San Diego Zoo is whether the San Diego Zoo is being exaulter about those being cavalter about those risks relative to the Vilas Zoo in Madison, Wisconsin.

San Diego's Don Lindburg
and Brace Rideout clearly address the level of risk present, but it sounds to me much less than that of a traffis, accident on the way to the zoo. However, the article pieves the impression that perhaps a careful zoo should not accept even that. Manson juxtaposes statements from San Diego Zoo representatives ("We do not knowingly put anything not anything not wingly put anything out e that would be a threat to the public") with those of per sonnel associated with the Henry Vilas Zoo where the macaque colony "is being dis-persed, at least partly because of last month's herpes B death" (in Atlanta). He quotes the Vilas Zoo director as stat-ing that macanes the Vilas Zoo director as stat-ing that macaques are "proba-bly not an appropriate species to have at the zoo, given the developments about the her-pes B virus."

What he fails to mention is that the Vilas Zoo macaque colony has been embroiled in a many candal sine. A went colony has been embroiled in a major scandal since August 1997 when it was revealed that the University of Wisconsin Primate Research Center (UW-PRC), which owns that 200's macaques, had sold over 100 of them to laboratories to be used for several processing the color of them to laboratories. to be used for invasive re to be used for invasive research. The sales occurred over several years and were in

Wiccans Have No Truck With Satan

This one is for Mr. P.S. Mueller little cartoon depicting Wic cans as "Reformed Satanists cans as "Reformed Satanists" (January 29). Very funny, Mr. Mueller. Also very ignorant. Satan is not an inhabitant of the Wiccan religion, any more than be was part of any pre-Christian religion of Europe. Wicca is, admittedly, a reconstruction of those religions and has little, if any, authen-tic connection with them. ## No wires. No contract. No credit check. No monthly bill. And no pain in the wazoo.

You want a cell phone, but you haven't got one because you think they're too much of a pain in the wazon.

Or you've got one and you're not using it because you think it costs too much.

We understand. So we've come up with an offer that makes cell phones so easy to get, use, and pay for, that you will no longer be able to resist them.

It's called Prepaid Airtime. From GTE Wireless. With Prepaid Airtime, weekend

So what are the advantages So what are the advantages of picking either a determinist or a free will philosophy of life? Being a determinist has one wonderful advantage; you don't feel so responsible for things; they just have to happen the way they do. The vase falls off the mantelpiece in had to. A love affair ends badly; it was inevitable. This was essentially the contrast, a free-will philosophy is rather tough. Sisteen years after Sarah Johnston Cox assumed residence in Johnston Heights, she greeted her first neighbor. Schoolteacher-turned-horticul-turist Kate O. Sessions (who came to San Diego from Oakland aboard the Orizulu'in 1884) had from Oskland aboard the Orizaba in 1884) had been forced to "uproot" her experimental nurs-cry and botanical gardens from San Diego's City Park (later reamed Balbou Park) in 1903, after the city's planning commission, led by Julius Wagenbeim and George Marston, informed her that roads and trails would soon be constructed through the park's 1400 acres. Hoping to ensure the would not have to move

She would remain at this socation until 1928, when she ran out of space and was forced to move again — this time to Pacific Beach.

Upon her newly acquired acreage Sessions planted poinsettias, sea lavender, bougainvillea, blue palms, magnolias, eucalyptus, and monkey puzzle trees. No longer is worship measured by the motivation of a hear yearing to know the God who made him, it is now to be measured on a scale of one to four of a star system, as one might rate their favorite eatery.

It is not that I resent the coverage of the local churches in this publication, Indeed, in a culture that is increasingly embarrassed by, if not hostile to, faith, I'm grateful to the Reader for publishing and investigating the houses of worship in this city. And if churches were a form of entertainment, I would welcome the rating system, but they are not. I wonder how a church in Lonan Heights in mid-city San It is not that I resent the wonder how a church in Logan Heights in mid-city San Diego would fare in your star-rating system, especially since you take it upon yourself to publish the churches' annual budgets. I wonder how you would judge the voices of the converts at San Diego Rescue Mission or La Collans women's history of La Collans women's included the convert of the affinent churches in our city. I know how Jesus values there voices, but how can you measure such things! No, most churches are not forms of entertainment. not forms of entertainmen not forms of entertainment. They are pockets of fellowship where people seek to know God in the person of Jesus Christ. They are places of strain and conflict, struggle and deadlines, and inadequate budgets. But they are also places of healing and confort and fellowship and redemp-ion.

If You Hate Music So Much, Why Review

So nice to read the barrage of negativity regarding Richard McItzer in this week's Reader (Letters, January 22). Between him and Gina Arnold, the Reader could not have done a better job wasting their payroll. They are in the same league as the U-T's George Varga, as the U-T's George Varga, whose byfine photo shows his fingers in his cars. If you hate music so much, why review it? Is it that San Diego's art critics have no talent as writ-ers? Frustrated artists? Too in-secure to be taken seriously?

It's a shame artists put so much work into their craft and critics do not feel the same responsibility. Jennifer Knox

To understand why our medical society protects our confidentiality, it would be prudem if this individual studied a little history and had a clear understanding of how a free society works. He should research Germany or Russian governments, then ask himself if he would trade his personal freedom for an HIV-free soriety. Our Constitution guarantee ety. Our Constitution guaran-tees him the right to the pursuit of happiness. In his case, his sex life. But it is his personal choice whether to pur-sue it responsibly or not. I do not want my rights taken away for what he feels is his right alone. We are all equal under the Constitution of the United States of America.

He has a good point in the latter half of his letter, and it opens a huge can of worms. It's my opinion that the county board of supervisors and their CAO Larry Prior have created an environment of ereed con-CAO Larry Prior have created an environment of greed, contempt, and fear among the county workforce. Greed at the top of the management structure, fear and contempt flooding to the bottom. They have all but done away with civil service protection, giving them the ability to fire at will They took our money and se-lectively gave out huge bonuses to their execs — government workers. And for what? Doing their jobs? Now back to the writer's and discriminatingly lay off employees with disregard to seniority or equality. Which makes it very difficult for a

Is the county medical authority, Dr. Robert Ross, going to risk not receiving another $32,000 homas by disagreeing with the board of supervisors on this sare! Will he risk getting fired for telling the trush and bene-fits of a needle-exchange proing.

For example, the CAO and board of supervisors have made it a priority to downsize government by selectively laying off employees, replacing them with contracted public services, and restructuring the services, and restructuring the task performed by permanent employees, which sounds real good and is good to the bot-tom line in the short run. But who profits from some of these immoral, unethical, and these immoral, unethical, and damaging policies? Taxpayers? The defenseless poor? The old and indegent? With the savings/profits from last year (taxpayers' menies), the board of supervimenies), the board of supervi-sors and their CAO gave out over $1.3 million in bonuses to their executive cronies. Noth-ing for employees that did the work, employees that hadn't received a pay increase for five years. Nothing to the taxpayers in the form of a tax rebate.

Members of the board of supervisors need to get off their thrones and walk amongst the people. Or better yet, romember that this is a free representative democracy controlled their supervisors and their supervisors and of San Diego's taxpayers, Given the true fast and statistics about a needle-exchange program, I'm ure the majority of San Diego's taxpayers would be in favor of a controlled program. # ARTICLES OF FAITH

Author: Cynthis Gorney was born in 1953. She was raised in San Francisco and graduated San Francisco and graduated from Lowell High School.

"Went," she said, on the morning we talked, "to U.C. Santa Cruz for a year, dropped out, went to U.C. Berkeley, dropped out. It was that era, you know. Then in 1975, I graduated from U.C.

know. Then in 1975. I graduated from U.C.
Rekeley with a degree in journalism. Went, then, straight off as a summer intern to the Winkington Post, where I was hired on and stayed. I have the most boring, short resume of amybody I know. I went to the Post and there I was. I stayed there in marty different capacities, for the rest of my time, until 1991, when I took book leave to do the aboution book.
However, I actually level in Washington only for two and a half years. I moved back out to the West Coast in late 1977 and worked as a national correspondent and then for the longest time, as a Sylvé section saff writer. From 1980 to 1982.
I was the South American bureau chief. I took various maternity leaves and hings like that Lut basically that was my life and it was a magazine piece for the Past that first took me to St. Louis and made me see that I wanted to do this abortion book. The book took ask years and now I'm trying to recuperate.

Married and mother to two children, Ms. Gorney makes her home in Oakkand, California.

Articles of Faith. A Frontline History of the Abortion Wars; Simon & Schuster, 1998; 575 pages; $27.50

No matter what your stance on abortion, this is the book to read about the issue that more than any other now divides Americans. Gorney manages to make accessible some very complex material and to tell a date-moving story whose telling is done in the tabilion of a good page-turner novel. Set primarily in St. Louis, Missours, Articles of Failtr explicates the conflict over abortion through the writes of men and women on the battle's front limes. This book surely will go onto the Pultizer list.

"The truth is, "Ms. Gorney said, in answer to my question as to how she'd decided to write what became Articles of Faith," what I had not been passionately interested in abortion before I bumyed into this story, when I was reporting an abortion case for the Past. I'd been interested in it, as most women of my generation are, one way or another. But I had never had one, I'd never been in a situation where I contemplated having one. I had certainly held the hands of women friends who either had them or were thinking about having them.

"Once I began talking to the people who had been

Once I began talking to the people who had been involved in this for so many years, it struck me as a story of enormous magnitude. It was a story about religious faith in conflict, about notions of individual freedom and societal control, about the extent to which we are permitted to condemn or okay the acts of others. It was about politics. It was about medicine. It was about theology. For the first time in 20 years of reporting, I realized I was looking at a subject that could truly hold my interest for a very long time. Because I had so much to learn, to try to understand this.

nor a very long time. Because I had so much to learn, to try to understand this.

"When I first began doing the research that I did me to this book, I simply and the learned to find a history, a marrative history, if possible, of the American about this enormous Supreme Court case that had generated so much passionate attention. I needed to learn what I was alkling about a but I could

"One of the things that really astonished me was how little there was by way of even an effort at history, as opposed to argument. What I could find, with very few exceptions, was always written in language clearly intended to denigrate one side or the other. I found that really objectionable. I became a denigate one side or the other. I found that really objectionable. I became a reporter because I'm interested in the way everybody sees things. Multiple points of view are fascinating to me. I wanted to understand multiple points of view are fascinating to me. I wanted to understand multiple points of view, and I was having a very difficult time doing it in language that was at all convivients. So that is what I was trying to do from the beginning. First, for myself, to understand how the very same events, the very same space has could look and sound so entirely different when they were laterated to by people of reasonable intelligence, from different when they were laterated to be people of reasonable intelligence, from even the same region in the country.

"It was pretty clear to me when I began that I wanted to cover a span of "It was pretry clear to me when I began that I wanted to cover a span of about 30 years, And that in this tremendously publicard Supreme Court case, Roe vs. Wads, somehow there was a great big story that went all the way back to the 1906. I also here that I wanted to try, to the central possibly could, to keep the story on a single stage because what I learned quickly is that one of the things that has probably daunted people who may have tried to take this subject on before in a big way is that urble: the Crisi Rights movement, which can be to result of eacher whether than the country of the countr readily described while staying in the south, and even in one city and even with the life of one man, Martin Luther King, this battle took place simultaneously in every state of the United States. It was completely localized, and there's no obvious central thread. Roe vs. Wade, the case itself, was not particularly interesting. It was one of dozens of cases coming through at the same time. It could have been any of the other cases. And the battle really gets joined after Roe vs. Wade, in 1973.

"So the trick was to try to figure out how to let people understand what had happened, while at the same time giving them human beings they could actually come to know. And not making them go nuts traveling all over every state in the union. For a whole lot of reasons, Missouri turned out to be a very good stage on which to tell that story. I then did a lot of national reporting to figure out broadly what my story was. What were the main incidents that took place over 20 years that really bear retelling, and how can I tell them while trying to stay in a single venue? Once I started to figure out how to do that, then I saw a little bit better how St. Louis could serve as the central place for Articles of Faith's chapters alternate between those opposed to abortion and those not opposed. I asked Ms. Gorney about how she decided to cast the book in this way.

"An early friend/reader of this book said to me when he was about five chapters in, that the book was giving him moral whiplash. Which I lowed. That was very much what I had hoped for. And having figured that out, the really complicated trick was that I wanted to go back and forth, chapter by chapter, complicated trick was that I wanted to go back and forth, chapter by chapter, changing perspectives, So that you was it first through the eyes of one and then the other. And the trick then was that if you're going to cover a period of about 20 years, and you're going to go on a fairly straight-on, narrative, linear time line, and you're going to tell the story through the eyes of people from both sides, which events are you going to be describing through grint-to-life eyes? Which events are you going to be describing through pro-choice eyes?

"I came to some ever starting discoveries because of the format that I had chosen, some of which turned out I think to be pretty felicitous. For example, it hadn't occurred to me until I saw what my time line was forcing me to do, that I was going to describe in detail Rore vs. Wask itself through the eyes of the losers. Once I started doing that, I realized it was really much more interesting to read the case through the eyes of the losers because hoolody ever does that. Nobody ever explains why so many people were so nobody ever does that. Nobody ever explains why so many people were so deeply outraged by that opinion for reasons that were really far more thoughtful and specific than a generalized feeling about abortion. But the only reason that I did that initially was that it was 1973, and I needed to switch perspectives because I was done with the previous chapter.

"Then there were other times when I would realize that I needed to leave out something that someone else might have argued was important, simply because I was in the wrong community to describe it. And I was going to have to leave out some stuff because otherwise it was going to a thousand pages instead of 500 pages, which is already a pretty formidable book."

I asked Gorney what she hoped the reader will be left with, when he shed Articles of Faith.

finished Articles of Faith.

"This sounds perplexing, but 1 hope the reader will be left confused. I believe that this is an issue of enormous moral complexity. And I believe that one of the problems that we've had over the last 25 years is a reductance to address that moral complexity in any direct way. A lot of people speak about the demonization of the other side. Going in both directions, of course.

"The first person who read this book who was someone I did not know was an attorney for Simon & Schuster who was reading it to check for libel. We'd had a long, professional conversation about various issues about which I needed to satisfy her. Finally, I said to her, in a small voice, 'Well, do you like the book?' There was a pause, and she said, 'I love the book, but I found it very disturbing. I've been ardently pro-choice my whole adult life, and I've never read anything that made me understand how morally complicated this was and that made me see what the world looked like through the eyes of the other

"That was the nicest thing anybody could have said to me at that point That was the nices thing anybody could have said to me at that point. That was what I was trying to do. I don't think this book will change anybody's mind. I would be very surprised if that happened. What I do hope it will do is allow people to make sense of what has until now just seemed to them to be rhetoric from the other side. Regardless of whatever their initial position was. To understand the personal passes and experience that has driven people on both sides to the kind of activism that they regaged in for a long time. And to grapple a little bit more directly than I think we've been willing to with how very complex this is.

I said that I found the book upsetting to read, precisely because Gorney is as that I touch the look upertury to read, precasely because corner took me so deeply into the lives of the book's subjects in to uper them. If tought to be uperturing. I think someone who is not uperst when they finish it that getting it, and 's selling what I would hope that a reader would see in it, because the whole issue is arometusly uperturing, and you have to pretty much keep blinders on not to know than not to see it.

ADAM'S CURSE

We sat together at one summer's end. That beautiful mild woman, your close friend, And you and L and talked of poetry. I said. A line will take us hours maybe: Yet if it does not seem a moment's though Our attachine and unstitching has been paught Rener go down spin your marrow-bones And scrob a kichen pavenerate or break stones like an old pauper, in all kinds of weather Too to articulate sweet sounds together is to work harder than all these, and yet lie thought an aller by the noisy set Of bankers, shoolmasters, and clergymen The martyrs call the world."

And thereupon
That beautiful mild woman for whose sake
There's many a one shall find out all heartache
On finding that her voice is sweet and law
Replied, To be born woman is to know—
Although they do not talk of it as school—
That we must labour to be beautiful."

I said. It's certain there is no trie rung. Sacre Adam's fall but needs much labouring. There have been forers who thought fow should be So much compounded of high coursey. That they would sigh and quote with learned looks. Precodents out of beautiful old books. Yet now it seems an afte trade enough.

We sat grown quiet at the name of love: We saw the last embers of daylight die. And in the trenthing blase-green of the sky. A moon, ween as if it had been a shell. Washed by time is waters as they sook are dell. About the stars and broike in days and years.

That you were beautiful, and that I strove
To love you in the old high way of love.
That it had all seemed happy, and yet we'd grows.
As weary-bearred as that hollow moon.

It would be harder to make a case for Saint-Saint Oppos 18 Piano Trio as an important piece of Total of the control of the contro provides a mesmerizing experience, when played with such sensitivity and with such a sure sensitivity and with such a sure sense of tempo and proportion. The unflamboyant subtleties of Saint-Saéns' imagination make themselves completely known only after repeated listening (a good reason to obtain the G-K-C CD).

The Dvořák F Minor Trio The Dwalk F Minor Trio does not tall for a gradual process of perception. As with Beethowen or Brahms, it makes its materness boldy, dramstelly, with indextable congrey and power. Gotto-Kaylan-Carr, as might have been expected, gave it a fiery and gripping performance, underlining the soor's firm structural, logic beneath the timpastioned romantic tunes and the driving riththing entery. The slow Kaplan was surely correct (during his announcement that G-K-C would play the Fine G-K-C would play the Fine same encore) in designating the same encore) in designating the Smetann Trio as a masterpiece of the trio literature. But here there is much more for the per-formers to do. Smetana did not have the constructive ability a Devik; the preferred repeti-tion to development. His sensits. tion to development. His genius lay in a particular kind of emotion-laden melody and in a tion-laden melody and in a striking theatricality of expres-sion, with meanings (auto-biographical, cultural, national) implied beyond the music. The show is funny, make no mistake. And it's got Sean Thomas Murray as Monseiur Bonnefoi (who may be having an affair with Argan's wife). Murray walks onstage wearing an innocuous gray suit and red an innocuous gray suit and red shoes. He doesn't say a word— just stands there looping his eyes and spinning a hand— yet he creates a pure caricature. This is Hercule Poirot's invid-

good again. The cast should study Murray's effortless

Sometimes it's a C. sometimes a C. sometimes a C. sont Johnson plays J.W. in Don Cheadle's Groomed. On his left arm, Johnson has a tattoo with thin lettering, Glant Coosely and the Checomes a G. J.W. got sucked into the L.A. roits. He served time in Chino and was subject to medical experiments. Now he experiences. and was subject to medical ex-periments. Now he experiences paranoid hallucinations. Are they because of his medication or the lack? When Oklahoma beat Nebraska by a field goal— at Nebraska — J.W. became convinced every white male in the "heartland" was on the lookout for African-American scapegoats. J.W. saw it on the hotel TV. The last time he had a vision this intense, J.W. saw L.A. in turmoil, long before the event took place. The play's supposed to be a cornedy ending with a wedding. Just when you think Groomed won't grow, it sprouts in several directions. Cheadle examines chemical imbalances and reass hallucinations; he looks at ritual and pop culture manip-ulation and warrior culture. He also sets four well-crafted char-acters on a crossroads where a whole spectrum of possibilities cvent took place.

Groomed, in its world premiere with the San Diego Black Ensemble Theatre, is subtitled "the unrefined technique." It starts with a formula: four African-American males come to Lincoln, Nebraska, for a wed-ding, Gaines, the groom, and three others gather in room 412 of a hotel. They talk, get reac-quainted, and — as the formula insists — revelations occur. around or in earnest, Watter Murray, Rhys Greene, and D. Reynolds do strong work as Gaines and his friends. Scott Johnson is outstanding as J.W. He's got fire, fear, and an escalating mania that slowly fills the theater with rage.

An answer has come to me at last, and the same of the year and recities groups at the end of the year and recities in missing without fail (as far as I moticed) the Beat Ficture ribbon. Why couldn't any critical groomdowed be pot going for that one? (It would the nids of the time, been fresh in their minds, offered common ground be-tween high standards and broad appeal.) The answer to the last ques-tion will have to be pretty harsh. Movie critiss, in no larger percentage than moviemakers themselves, have hitte-cites of the medium. Lirtle concern, to put a blunter point on it, with what a movie is or can be. We could hardly do better for evidence than the set-in-concrete idea that L.A. Confidential is a good story, well told. But back for a moment to basics.

The director is Gillian Armstrong, well enough known for her earliest and her recentest work, My Brilliant Career and Little Women, although her previous best, High Talla, perhaps not sur-prisingly was never released here heatrically. The scriptwrier, same as for High Talla, its Laura Jones, who also adapted The Perturit of a Laby heatric the scriptwrier, and the scriptwrier, and converging pals in the middle of the land, the other in Australia, coming together on the same boat from Bris-tiol to Sydney, after such a long delay and with such long-range conse-quences as to strike a chord with the fants (me, for instance) of Claude Lebusch, that virtuous of the Long as society of round holes, he a naif Anglican clergyman, she a barrier-vauling indeependen businessowoman, both of them guilty gamblers on the side.

There is a knowing narrator (voice of Geoffrey Rush) who often seems to be speaking from the viewpoint of third-person omniscient, but whose connection to the related events is revealed to be more personal. "In order that I exist," he confides to us at one point, "two gamblers, one obsessive, the other compulsive, must declare themselves." The declaration scene starting out as a formal confession scene in which the woman latches onto the convenient shipboard cleric for absolution — is a riot. The confessor listens to her sins with his forehead istens to her sins with its tornead resting on his hands in an attitude of suffering. Is it his mal de mer acting up? Has the sheltered celibate never run across such shocking behavior in a lady? Finally he can bear it no longer and he raises his head to respond: "The dice that you played on the train — was it Dutch Hazard?"

duce that you played on the train—was it Dutch Hazard" is no need to applie further particulars. He has a single for the particulars office it to applie further particulars. He has been finely whitted to make its point with cononum, with originality, with impact. There are a couple of spots of violence, but these are observed with so fresh and uncalloused an eye as to achieve maximum horror with maximum discretion. The constumes and set, which so other are the main attraction in a period film, are here injuried to the set of the set anyone less boony than Werner Her-rog, (1 was more confortable with the modest Buñuelian loominess of the hero fondling the heroine's footwear at the fireplace.) But a tremendous surprise await near the finish, an eno-mous payedf. The surprise is largely the doing of the marator, and although the doing of the marator, and although the doing of the marator. And although carried in movies, when it is a con-narration in movies, when it is a crutch, a bucket of plaster, an easy chair for the indolant storyteller, it is also, in the right hands, a is old that can be used creatively. Faller just recently tried to spring a surprise through its tried to spring a surprise through its narration, but it went about it by lying, concealing, cheating. The narrator of Oscar and Lucinda plays scrupulously fair within the rules of strategic storytelling. And without wanting to give away the surprise. I need to say that once it has been sprung, the nar-rator — though he has been stringently reined in and trimmed back as com-pared to his counterpart in the novel — is free to ascend to his right-ful place as maics character in ter coto man to eypera nimercan production? Is it something to do with the atmosphere Down Under? Is there in Sydney or Melbourne some old warehouse of film stock of a kind that hasn't been manufactured since 1968? Is there some ingrained cultural prinovel — is free to ascend to his right-ful place as a major character on a plane with the title pair. Oscar and Lu-cinda and Me, it might be called. My Boot Girl — Thoroughly charming romantic comedy, excepting the slightly miscalculated and labored climax, about a five-and-dime stock girl (Mary Pickford) and the incognito heri of the company (Charles "Baddy" Rogers, who in real life would marry his co-star a decade later, upon her divorce from Douglas Fairbanka). Director Sam Taylor, better known as a Effection Sain Taylor, better known as a scriptwriter, displays a rich cinematic vo-cabulary, a supple syntax, a deft manner of expression. One among the innumerable inventive details: the shopgirl, taken to dine the procession of the supplementary of the supp at the magnate's mansion, instinctively wipes the silverware on her napkin prior t

PICTURE STORY

by the San Diego Historical Society

he 1935 San Diego Exposition in Balboa Park had a little something for everyone. "Queen Zorine of the Nudist Colony" reads the back of this photograph taken in Zorro Gardens. Other photos depict naked men and women sitting around on animal skins in the small stage area, no one aiming for the high level of drama Queen Zorine managed; they look more like cattle in a cage.

An employee at the Historical Society says her father and grandfather showed up at the Expo 63 years ago and paid admission to get into the temporarily fenced garden (cheapskates made use of the knotholes, other photos documented). "After they got in, my grandfather innocently turned to my father and said, in German, 'This is not for us.'"
