No Wires. No contract. No credit check. No monthly bill. And no pain in the wazoo.

You want a ceil phone, but you don't have one because you think they are too much of a pain in the wazoo.

We understand. So we've come up with an offer that makes cell phones so easy to get, use and pay for, that you will no longer be able to resist them.

Here's the deal. For a limited time, you can get an OKI 1410 phone (a $122 value) and a $35 Prepaid Airtime card for just $99. OK, let's do the math. Um, $35 plus $122 (five and two are seven and three and two are fiveandbring down the one) that comes to a whopping $157 value. For a measly $99.

With Prepaid Airtime, weekend rates are always 50% cheaper than weekday rates. There's no annual contract, no monthly bill, no deposit no credit check, no wires or strings attached, and no wazoo pain. You just buy your time in advance, and when you use it up, you buy more. It's that easy.

Prepaid Airtime cards from GTE Wireless. Easy to get. Easy to use. Easy to pay for. Easy to see why the heck you should get it. Give us a call at GTE Wireless, 1-800-249-GTE6.

The 1995 Census of American Religious Groups that I keep on my desk lists 19 Baptist denominations. Whenever 1 fool myself and think I know a little something about American Protestantism, I study that list of Baptists. I suspect I will never nail down the nuances between, for example, the Amer-ican Baptist Associa-tion, American Baptist Churches U.S.A., and the North American Baptist Conference. What I do know is that the list is incomplete. There are many more kinds of Baptists, some of which, even as I ripe these words, are splintering and soming new denominations. And then there are the Baptist churches that are completely unaffiliated with any denomination or unbreile organizaor umbrella organiza-tion. Only God knows how man, of them there are and what it is that makes them unique. While it is inter-While it is inter-esting and sometimes useful in know democi-inational distinctions, such knowledge tells us little about spirituality, about how people come to God, about the indi-vidual character of any given parish or church. It was an impressive sight and a good example of what people mean when they speek with longing about "community." Here was a group of 50 or so men and women who bothered to leave their homes on a weeday right to get down on their knees in church and pray for a solfd hour for the health and welfare of people they knew, and of people they'd never met.

Later, I asked Terry and Pilar Bennett, the couple setting in frost of me, what they thought of the prayer service. They said it was one of the things that had drawn them to the church.

Yet the two disciplines have traditionally been uncomfortable bedfellows, their tensions centering on a couple of big issues: firstly, if we're hard-headed rationalists, can we really reason philosophically about the existence of God? And secondly, if we believe in God, can reasoning philosophically really lead us to the

These problems have received some (entertainingly) shrift answers from certain quarters. Take A.I. Ayer, in his book Language, Truth and Logic: "To say that 'God exists' is to make To say that 'God exists' is to make a metaphysical utterance which cannot be either true or false. And no sentence which purports to describe the nature of a god can possess any interal significance. For Ayer, this is because things are philosophically true only if sense experience confirms them. Because we cannot verify the existence of God empirically, it is not some property or the content of the content nonsense to suppose we can ever say there is (or indeed isn't) a God. Sim-there is our indeed int'l 1 a God. Similarly, in the lifth Century, David Hume limited the scope of philosophacial inquiry to empirical or mathematical truths: "If we take in our hand a volume of denity, let us ask, 'Does it contain any abstract reasoning concerning quantity or number? No. 'Does it contain any superimental treasoning concerning until sensing content of fact and existence?" No. Committ it then to the launes. On it can contain nothing but supphinery and for it can contain nothing but supphinery and for it can contain nothing but sophistry and diussion.

Religious thinkers have at done similarly scorned what they have judged to be the insolence of philosophers. In St. Augustine's view, humans left from grace when they failed to acknowledge their dependence on Cook and they guide filters to the result. On the state of the st

Mi padre, muerto ya por interminables años, no me deja en paz: no se quiere ir: lo veo cada dia. Mi viejo se esconde las arboles, en el agua, en las nubes de humo que huyen de los cigarros de secretarias. O se mete como ladrón por mis ventanas y me roba la comida. Es vivo: es capaz y me roba la comida. Es vivo: de esconderse en la luna. Y me dice. — Hijo, no queda nada. No queda nada.

Mi padre, sembrado en su tierra Meicana, echande retoños en la pradora obscura del olvido, brilla: cuando apago la luz, su cara tira chispas en la esquina. Cuando hago el amor, viene orriendo. Cuando salgo a la calle, me persigue por los ojos de niños callejeros. Usa tacones de oro. Me hues.
Lo veo
sin verlo.
Y me dice.
— Hijo, no queda nada.
No queda nada.

Mi padre, muerto ya y hecho polvo, llora grita, me canta algrimas de barro Con vos de piedra me grita, me canta sultimo consesso.

Hito, tu vida es una moneda.
Gaistate bien. Porque no quecla nada.
No quecla nada de mi.

Hunger Sculptor

The interior that Italo Scanga has created around himself in his studio compound, in Pacific Beach, is basically hivelike or agglutinative in that everything keeps on sticking itself onto everything else. The pileup grows bigger and bigger, like a florid sentence spun out by an orator who's forgotten what he wanted to say. In one vast, airy cham ber there are, aside from Italo's art, 30 crummy birdhouses, a row of cheap busts of composers, herds of sculpted elephants in diverse media, sinuous Southeast Asian puppets, a life-size gilded folk angel carved in wood, a nacreous concertina, rows of teensy Fred Flintstones marching alongside ranks of plaster Blessed Virgins in Necco Wafer colors. There are several huge tables pullulating with glass animals, snarling china dogs, crippled machines. There are trace artifacts from a dozen parallel universes.

Every object is a conduit to Italo's past, so the mess is an agglomeration of flashbacks, an assemblage created largely to memorialize an earlier assemblage — the totality of one man's reveries

It's a little like a 19th-century Italian villa, neo-Gothic, crawling with lobsterish ornament. With its many duplicates (there's a whole troupe of plaster mariachi singers, each with its identically upturned, exalted, pencil-mus tached face), Italo's gaudy inventory is also a sort of catalog realized in the round. It has the catalog's jaunty optimism, its confidence that everything can be replaced from an eternal, inexhaustible stock.

Italo the artist starts out as Italo the shopper. One summer morning I run into him at the swap meet outside the Sports Arena, a market he compulsively haunts. I hang with him awhile as he paws his way through the midproposer "Yes, Italo, this is truly interesting, and that is truly weird," more often than not be buys the stuff for meor for my wife or little son, who are wandering nearby, scrutinizing other junk piles. Thanks to Italo's cataractlike generosity we own not only several of his beautiful drawings but also a vicious-looking cuckoo from a cuckoo clock, two elderly tablecloths, a set of 50-year-old guidebooks to knitting technique, a physician's electric light for peering at your adenoids, and an assortment of minute, toylike objects, most of which we've by now misplaced (if the term suits such inherently unplaceable doodads). Several days a week Italo carries his treasures back to his studio, where they may find a perch in one of his sculptures.

Italo's nose, head, and body are all squarish and blocky: modeled, as it might be, by the same designer, a noase guy with a job to do. Only the ears are different — Baroque, outsized, raffishly appliqued. Italo is short, a southern Italian. He has tightly curled brown-and-gray hair. He has a paunch, which fits neatly over a wide leather

Religious kitsch isn't the only kind of art that Italo appropriates and alters. Many of his pieces, especially the totemic sculptures, which consist partly of found objects, liberally quote from the habits of the state from such styles as cubism or

The origins of Italo's pecu liar obsession with religious stat-uary lie far in the past, well before World War II. This was the sort of imagery that dominated his Calabrian youth, forming his sole early contact with the idea of art. The truth is that a lot of the sculpture in southern Ital-ian churches is not terribly old or beautiful and may even be made out of cast plaster or papier-mache — poor people's mate-rials, but memory ties these fig-ures to the most painful expe-riences of Italo's hunger-haunted childhood.

Italo was the late-corner, the "Benjamin," of the family: at his birth, his two sis-ters were already both in their 20s, and his effective siblings— that is, his coevals and play-

Italo respects carpenters and of course had some trainand of course had some train-ing as one; he values manual skill and has no higher praise for a group of students than "really good with their hands." Saint loseph is obviously influenced by conceptual art, but unlike a he also anchored seven white cubes of various sizes. The resolt is a queerly retro-litted ritual object, a votive figure that has lost its authority and which, no longer speaking to us of faith or prayer, evokes a puzzling range of superimposed associations. A saint gone feral, a saint turned maverick... Italo was by conceptual art, but unlike a lot of conceptual art it has a candid aptness of design that is sensuously satisfying. Most of Italo's inventions are based precisely because his saintle

ness lay in his being passed over, in his having to stand aside. loseph's marriage wasn't con-summated and his son wasn't really his, but he lovally pro tected his wife and child, even spiriting the pair away into Egypt for a spell. Joseph was a car-penter whose work is never described for us by the Gospels, being presumably devoid of interest, and the Catholic Church has never paid him much heed.

"He was really just a handy-man," says Italo, with appreci-

stop at being ideas: they're made with dexterity, aptness of touch As a child, Italo felt a daily renewed sense of loss over the absence of his father. Giusepps He saw the statues of the saints in church as paternal, magical presences and also as figures of frightening potency. Decades later, as an adult, he came to feel that by altering or remaking such hallowed images he could purge himself of the fear they'd inspired; and even today, when-ever he recalls the devotional stateer he realls the devotional statuary of his childhood, he seems to slipback into a gloomy, espai-chral, permodern world. One day, over spaghetti at his place, latou starts telling me about a statue in a church in Lago. "It showed San Rocca di Francia," he says, twifting his fork, "who was really an impossing figure. Sun forward his leg, foward the bubo, the boil from the bubonic plague, which was bubonic plague, which was black and blue and terrifying,

"He helped him, yes. That's the miracle."

Italo thinks for a moment his fork is silent. "He traveled around, to cities, to Rome, and showed that he had survived." "That he had survived?

"With the help of God, ves. I imagine."
"That's alf? That's all he did, survived, and for that they release, a deliverance, because then I could examine the details on him and he became less mysterious. Those saints' days were always big moments.

This conversation con-vinced me that Catholicism as a formal creed doesn't enter into Italo's art. When he first started buying statues of saints and, as if were, decommissioning them, he wasn't objecting to the use of such simulacra in prayer, much less to their intercessory role: he wasn't concerned with religion at all. Yet only a secularized sensibility could have invested art with the power to empty such objects of their ritual consuch objects of their rifual con-tent — a devout person would always be prezied by such desanc-tification, which might seem rather like using food as a toy. (Itale himself is similarly puzzled by the sort of standard

"I don't think San Rocca did much of anything," Italo says finally, his accent deepen-ing, his wrinkled brow betray-ing dissatisfaction with his mem-ory. "What I know is that that dog saved his ass. But the dog doesn't play an important part. The moral is to travel, to go to a destination, to get somewhere far away, and on foot. San Rocca was a humble man."

"Okay, he was humble But why the gourd?" What I'm beginning to suspect is that Italo's childhood dread of the statue erased all rational knowledge, so that whatever he was told about the real San Rocca was washed out at sorae point by "The gourd maybe was for

Contrary to tain folkloric and superstitious beliefs under the heading of faith, and the reused devotional imagery didn't trouble them much. What did bother them, though — and, curiously enough it bothered American viewer even more — was the blatant even more — was the blatant, unapologetic presence of the Mezzogomo, the Italian south, in an exhibition space. Trying to capture the shock of emi-gration, Italio had traveled to Calabria to collect peasant objects — rakes, hose, baker, peddles, carding and spinning equipment. baskets, religious, in the short of the capture of the path of the cardinal short of the cardina and coarse goat cheeses and lupin beams that conveyed the ripe, acrid odors of places like Lago. the sort of art that an Ameri-can ought to be showing in the Eternal City, and there were daily pickets at the door. These demonstrations, which might have perversely gratified an avant-garde artis, dismayed the fretful Italo, who had merely been trying to make a simple if texturally rich social statement.

The idea that background can be a source of ins came rather late to Italo. Until his delayed maturation as an artist, he didn't think of the peasants of southern Italy as having, for instance, a "whole-some Mediterranean cuisine," but simply as not having much to eat. Nor did he recall the landtoost. Nor did he recall the land-scape as beautiful: that revel-ation, too, came later. Especially in winter, the shadows of the Calabrian hills and clifs had always frightered him. Vest and lonely, forming a dark bosin in which Lago and its sister vil-lago helplesaly strawled, these uplands aroused in him no notion of the picturesque nor any metaphorical image of striving or ascension and when as an

Gruseppe was so confused by life in the United States that he sent Italo to Sunday school at the local Lutheran church under the illusion that it was catholic — perhaps neither of the two stumigrarits was awere that there was any other kind of church. "You're going," I say, "This striping."

I shield my eyes, staring at his striping, and the application of the striping of the striping of metal disosson, and glass pegs and brass stags and horid statuettes of kissing couples. He pulls harder, kuppling at me. "What's the matter, you afraid of professors, afraid of college?"

He a right, of course — as a student, lasted college—but eventually, sometime later is succeeds in dragging me to the Escaley Clab, And n isn't bed, actually, wastoning later trudge through the refectory, itsteming to him talk about covering it with murals, listening to him gooisp about accedence politics, but what really impresses me is his genuine means of bolonging to this variant of American domestics. It is including in its native to. ticity. It's touching in its naïvet and in its sheer oddness, like hearing an old soldier explain to you why he is so completely at home now in a greenhouse or a potting shed. Italo likes to think of himself as someone who avoids the backbiting and petty envises of the university art department, and maybe this self-conception is valid; i really have no idea. He doesn't seem envious of his stu-dents — and some of them, like Bruce Nauman, have gone on to recome more famous than he is — but then again, he has probably always needed his stu-dents more than most artists do. Italo's world is one of hangers-on, of acolytes and helpers and on, of acolytes and helpern, and favor seekers, and one of their principal functions, is suspect, is and to provide him with company, to placate his inter-sense of peril. Only rarely does his impattern, the property of the address it? Time does not just flow along like a row of problems to be solved one after the other — time isn't Cartesian, at least not in art. Picasso's work of 1918 it's as contemporary now as when it was made. If art looks good, if t makes you happy or improves your life, that's important. And maybe that's all that's important."

Italo tells me that he has no regrets except one. "It's that I can't prove to anybody — to anybody. It mean, who would care — that I'm successful. This is the sort of thing we want to prove to our partness, to our families — we want to thank them and to show them see" a force well. I advoced. them we've done weil. I adored my two sisters, Carolina and Matalda, who were really like mothers to me — they were so much older than I was — but they were always ill at ease with which is what an Italian thirds of when he or she thinks of an artist. My sisters could relate, though, to mybeing a profissor. That they were proud off I was so close to them — they were very, very naive, with no more than one or two grades of school, no education, but so brillian thous one or the hings, with a bril-liant feel for music. One day when I'd made releave of most when I'd made plenty of money and was back visiting, I said, 'Mafa, what do you need!' and she answered, 'A fridge, Italuzzo, a fridge!' That was all she could a fridge! That was all she could think of — oh yes, that and a few more flowerports, Caroli on the other hand — I called them Caroli and Mafi, and they celled me Italiazzo — Caroli was keen on money. Of course old people like money, they're frightend and lonely, but basically Caroli wanted coins, she wanted change. She just loved the feel and jingle change — and also show a of change — and also shoes, I now remember, she loved espe-cially American shoes, their

has just drifted into his own variant of one of the great themes of Italian folk and popular music the lament of the son who wan-ders far from home in search of work and who thinks back remonefully to his aging mother, his beloved little black-clad mother whom he has abandoned and who has only a short time left to live. I sing a few lines of one of these songs, a well-known can-zonetta, and then Italo responds with another song, "Luna Luna, luna pensosa, Dov'è andata la mia sposa. Dov'è andata la mia casa?

Moon, pensive moon, where is my wife, and where is my

You can feel what the song means — it's during the war, it's after a bombardment, and the man comes home and finds tha his wife and his house have both his wife and his house have both been completely destroyed. And that's what happened in Cal-abria, only the thage, is it happened to the whole culture. It's all gone now, it's really completely gone."

Often when I peer into Italo's world of reminiscence, I feel his anxiety rising. As we talk he warns, "I don't want people to think that my memories have made me, that the past has made me what I am." And I have to reassure him (one is always reassur-ing Italo of something or other) that such a thought would never occur to me. Our memories do not create us, of course, it is we who create them. It may be true that many of them recur to us unbidden and inalterable, but we cannot express them to any-one else, in language or in art, with-our some slippage into coquery, into self-promotion. In that respect we are all false advertisers. Likewise, Italo's art is not reminiscence but its metapho remascence out its metaphor-ical fabrication. In him, as in all of us, such fabrication shields an inner sanctum of secrecy. How would my picture of Italo be

So these slender trees aren't as memory at all, they re in ust standing in for a memory, like understudies, like imposture; they're part of a consciously, even ruthlessly fictional world, a world that is as much mask as it as disclosures. And I can only suppose that their purpose must be, as it was in the ansker floram and them in the Reusissance landscape, to lead the mind toward thoughts of streams and winding roads and farmhouses, but also toward temples and burial grounds. So these slender trees aren's

Near the glass trees is a row of big glass funnels, a frequent element in Italo's art; and it occurs to me suddenly, as I pick one up, that the furned, like the tail ornamental tree, is a distinctly two-sided emblem, it's an emblem of waste, because what you pour in one end comes right out the other; but it's also an entblem of plenty, because it assumes that you have lots of something to pour in the wide end and divide among smaller containers. The funnel is a reminder — though numei is a remander — though not necessarily a conscious one — of the abundance of feeling in the artist and perhaps in each one of us; an abundance which, to be useful, must be carefully

Duncan Is Only

Human In reference to Duncan Shep-herd's recent article entitled

I pick up the Reader and browse through the movie sec-tion. Usually I consider Dun-can's comments amusingly, realize he is only human and brings to his critique the limited view of only one mind-his. However, his condescend-ing article this week makes me realize that he outs himself in a rather lofty position — so much dialogue defending his position. Continue doing what you are doing, Duncan, I enjoy comparing notes with you. When you go see a movie like Afterglow and fail to see the guts of it. I feel perhaps you watch too many movies and you should be out doing some Poor Stanley Robert McCormick. Rich as Croessa, this straart and handsome son of the mechanical reager's inventor looks in the mirror and see a dogle head. He has terrible problems, but the worst of these is a convolute, complex sexual problem: Stanley towed his nother, his wise, his sisters, he lowed other people's mothers, wives, saters and daughters, but he lowed them too much, loved them with an incendiary passion that was like hate, that was indistinguishable from hate. Katherine Dexter McCormick, Stanley's wist, soon after she and Stanley marry, finds that she must look Stanley away. She hope against hope his doctors will restore Stanley to her. To find out if there has been also shown that the stanley away she had been also shown that the stanley away to help as against hope his doctors will restore Stanley to her. Actually, this Mozar performance was so de-moralizing that it weuld have been hard to find the energe to rise and go home. I felt weighed down in my seat, drained of will. A good thing too, for the Probofier Quarter No. 2, which fol-lowed, brought abundant life and spirit back into the hall. Were these the same four string players, attacking Prokofier's pumgent soore with exactly the bitting vigor it demands? Prokofier's First Quartet is not a terribly grip-ping work. but the Second is one of his masterpieces, with a flavor all its own. It makes most smothered character in musicals. He too undergoes a metamorphosis, but not into a Prince Charming swan. Starlight also gets fine support from Tim Irving as the mute. Harpo Marx-like King, by len-nifer Shelton, as the donc-wrong Lady Larkin; and by Saif Eddin, as the wrong-doing Sir Harry. Credit also to director Dan Regas. They say you can't dis-tinguish between an actor's or a director's contribution. In many ways, however, you can. You can see a director's hand not only in a consistent inter-pretation of the material, but pretation of the material, but also in the sharpness of the stage picture, in the discipline of the performers, and in the details of movement and design. Regas's hand is evident, though not ob-trusive. He always keeps the focus where it should be on the stage, which makes sense. He's also a basketball coach, so his cast knows which actors pass the ball and which get to gun

You can't advertise yourse as a theater town if you don't have a strong civic light opera company. Starlight's road, of late, has been clogged with boulders. I'd love to say that Mattress will lift the company to new heights. It might or might not. What I can say is that Mattress puts Starlight on a comeback trail that may prove Have you ever been inside the Balboa Theatre? If you've been to Horton Plaza, you've driver by it and seen the marquee, an nouncing shows playing up at that pale blue balcony or the intricately painted tile run-ning across the high ceiling? Or ning across the high ceiting Or the baroque detail bulging in bas relief from fading gold walls? Perfect acoustics mag-nify the slightest sound. Yet the dominant impression is of an immense, palpable silence that surrounds you like a cleak.

You can imagine this the-ater in its heyday: excitement, drama, top vaudeville acts wowing crowds. Look around and you'll also see a prototyp-ical Broadway theater. Most are of this size and configuration, though few have the flyloft space of the Balboa, which rises from the stage like the vault of a gothic cathedral. Also, recall that when the La Jolla Play-house wanted to extend their world premiere of Tommy, for wond premiere of Tomay, for a while they contemplated us-ing this theater. Imagine what that would have done for San Diego's most neglected treasure. The newly formed Green

ers, also on the stage, facing the raked rows of house seats. Writ-ten by David Shire and Richard Maltby Ir. and performed with-out much distinction — the women faring better than the women taring better than the men — the musical revue is negligible. Twenty-four songs in two acts bemoan the trouble upwardly mobile yuppies have with relationships and work.

In one song, a guy com-plains that his kids are in college, he and his wife have a new home by the shore, and yet life just somehow lacks — gosh, gee, I don't know — meaning?
After a gaggle of tunes in this vein, you want to shout, "Hey, get over it!"
There's a show outside the show, however. Peter Smith and Arena Designs' lighting illumine the theater's interior. Blue beams make the balcony resemble an aquarium. Floods of light warm the lower balrose. The gold-leaf walls shim mer. We have two choices. We can listen to a sometimes funny, albeit tepid revue. Or we can watch the theater upstage the show. As the lighting reveals the Balboa's many moods, we can wonder why we aren't look-ing out at a house packed with

Yes because my hubban's a psyCulture junkie. Unfortunately, I car! I'm piong to have to six through all the schlock about Tilanes, which I thought was a borrible nowle. The tangely of the mode use that this one event defined the 13rd of self-cornterreduces. All the pictures you see of her at the end are of hersalt, or her at the end are of hersalt, or is her hubband! Where are her children? What alsout the part with is not mission? Where are recruin-dren? What about the part where she dies and goes to "heaven," and she's reunited with her first love— where is her husband, the man she built her life with, had children with? built her life with, had children with. And the most offensive part was the deflowering of this woman in the back, seat of a car—that's trashy. That's not love. Love isn't made in one day. Our heroine acts like a self-ish, immature teenager and our hero is certainly not a gentleman.

Are you going to watch the Academy Awards?

PICTURE STORY

by the San Diego Historical Society

Tanging at the downtown YMCA, 1927. Excerpts from The Cultural Impact of the German Turnvereins Upon the Development of Physical Training and Democratic Ideals in San Diego: 1873-1914 (authored by circa-1970 SDSU student Alida J. Williams):

"The German turners were gymnasts who brought their specialized form of gymnastics to America when they immigrated during the early 19th century. [Apparatus included horizontal bars, long and side horse, parallel bars, and round swing suspension rings.]

"The first turnverein of record in San Diego was the Teutonia, which was formed in 1873.... Records indicate that, while the group enjoyed the customs of the "Alte Heimat" (homeland, or old country), it disbanded after only two years....

"In 1884, a group of the old members...established the new Eintracht turnverein [which] began to deteriorate in early 1886.... On July 14, 1886, it dissolved itself and became the San Diego turnverein.

"In 1887, the San Diego turnverein decided to build itself a permanent home [Turn Hall, on Eighth Street, between H and G]. During this period, San Diego was experiencing an economic boom and the membership in the turnverein was growing primarily due to the German-speaking population in the city which was relatively large.... The group met at Turn Hall twice each month for directors' meetings, and it conducted regular classes in gymnastics, music and citizenship."

In 1890 the club was forced to sell the hall. but "The turnverein movement did not die...." as evidenced in this photo taken 37 years later.

Introducing READER MATCHES, the best place to meet San Diego San Diego singles! You'll receive a free personal matching ad in the Reader Classifieds and on the Internet at www.sdreader.com. You'll also receive a free "voice mailbox" that allows you to record and receive messages from a touchtone phone.

HOW TO PLACE YOUR AD: To place a free ad, fill out the coupon below and mail or fax it (619-233-7907) to us. (If faxing, please photocopy the coupon first.) The deadline for submitting your free ad is Saturday at 7 am. Free ads are not accepted over the phone or in person. We'll send you a 5-digit mailbox number (printed in your ad) and a 4-digit security code for exclusive access to your responses.

You may place a late ad until 6 pm Tuesday by phone (619-235-8200), in our office (1703 India St. at Date St., downtown), or by fax (619-233-7907). The charge for these late ads is $20 for the first 25 words plus $1.20 per additional word. By phone or by fax you may use Visa, Master-Card or Discover only.

HOW TO USE YOUR WORCE MAILBOX:

After you receive your mailbox number and private security code, you can record your personal introduction and listen to your responses. Call (619) 881-2000, 24 hours a day, and follow the easy instructions. You must have a touchtone phone. Cordless and cellular phones are not recommended.

QUESTIONS? Call (619) 235-8200.

MEET YOUR MATCH! Use the form below to place your FREE, 2-week Reader Matches Ad and get your FREE Voice Mailber.

TO PURCHASE AN OPTIONAL MEADLINE, use the lines below, keeping in mind the following: 20 characters per line including spaces; the first initial of each word is capitalize abbreviations and unusual punctuation will not be accepted; the cost of each line is $12. Continue on a separate sheet if necessary; no more than 10 lines. Please print clearly.

Then I remembered that the clown we found in the summer had a tattoo of a rose on his left arm. When I littled up the arm to look, it snapped off like an old dried-up tree branch. - We broke off the other arm and both of the legs and stacked them off to the side. Then we found a piece of cardboard and made a sign that said: "BUILD YOUR OWN CLOWN."

Jack and I don't get out much. I stay Jack and I don't get out much. I stay home with our three young daughters, Jack, who is a journalist, works out of an office in our garage. I have a baby-sitter who comes in Tuesdays and Fhursdays from 9 to 2 so I can write or run errands without all three girts in tow, Jack travels to San Diego about once a week for half a day to take care of business.

Sometimes, when the baby-sitter is here, we sneak out for lunch together. We almost never go out at night. For the first three weeks after our February 1 move from Clairethe Mack Birth age of the Mack Birth age of mont to San Marcos, we didn't go out mout to San Marcos, we didn't go out at 2d, day or night. At first, we were too busy unpacking and getting the house set up. Then I couldn't find a baby-sitter. Then we all got some form of violent, tood-poisoning-like stomach lin. Between retching and exacting look after load of vomit-cowered bundry, I didn't much feel like going on a date.

Som-time after Valentine's Day, we atmoored throwing to U.S. Som-time after Valentine's Day, we atmoored throwing to U.S. The some difference of the control of throwing to U.S. Didn't and the control of that night.
