WHY DO THEY NEED FREE FOOD?

Back in February, while gas prices were soaring and radio talk show host Roger Hedgecock was railing against big oil, a group of San Diego city councilmembers and their aides traveled to Long Beach for a firsthand look at the situation — courtesy of Arco, the giant oil company. The tab for the day trip, including catered breakfast, boat excursions to Arco's off-loading complex, and full-course dinner with Arco Products Co. president Roger Trust, came to $100 a head, with transportation, breakfast, lunch, and a $10 "tip" (presumably), according to Arco.

Arco's guests included councilwomen Vale, Stalling and Christine Kelso. Council staff who joined the tour included Chris Cameron of the office of Councilman Harry Mathis, Michael Wilson from George Stevens's office, and Byron Wear's staffer Rudy Alvar, according to lobbyist disclosure records on file with the city.

Arco is just one of the dozens of companies and wealthy individuals with special interests to plead at San Diego's city hall and before the county board of supervisors who spend hundreds of thousands of dollars each year. Everything from European trips to free lunches, to bottles of wine, to Chargers and Padres games have been lavished on local elected officials and their staff members. The collective tab for the care and feeding of this free-lunch bunch — no doubt passed on to the customers of the businesses that pay for the freebies — extends easily into the six figures.

While most rank-and-file city employees pay for their own lunches, dinners, parking tickets, and nightclub hopping, many inhabitants of the city council's plush tenth-floor suites regularly dine with lobbyists willing to ingratiate themselves with those who can make or break their real estate project or city contract. And the trend is increasing. Following the examples of sports moguls Alex Spanos and John Moores, who many believe
The Planet Hollywood Front
By John Briscella

Darth Vader is waving a light saber and a charred Styrofoam ball on a chain in front of Planet Hollywood at Fourth and Broadway. The dark side leader, with its hand in his side as the result of a previous cut, is pursuing tourists and demanding that they buy his wares and support his empire. The scene is a parody of the iconic movie character, and the message is clear: support the dark side and its attendant props.

The event is part of a broader movement of 'Protest the Hero,' a group that protests against corporate influence in popular culture. Their goal is to raise awareness about the ways in which corporations control our lives and the impact of big business on society.

Protest the Hero members have been arrested on previous occasions during their protests, but they continue to pursue their mission with passion and force. In this particular instance, they have chosen Planet Hollywood as their target because of the company's connection to the Star Wars franchise and its promotion of the dark side.

The protesters believe that corporations like Planet Hollywood are using the Star Wars franchise to spread a message of control and submission, and they want to fight back. Their actions are a call to arms for anyone who wants to stand up against the forces of corporate control.

In this image, Darth Vader stands triumphantly in front of Planet Hollywood, his light saber brandishing the chain of Styrofoam balls that he has captured. The scene is a powerful statement against corporate influence and a call to action for anyone who wants to fight back.

The DEREK, FRIEDA, and ABBE CHRONICLES

When I read Derek's letter questioning whether I might be his half sister, I didn't know whether he'd turn out to be a bloody stranger or a blood relative. Neither did he. There was only one certainty. If we were to meet in less than three weeks, I'd better pass every interim moment investigating this bizarre possibility.

Derek's question was a bomb. I had to find out as much as I could. Derek had never said anything about my real father. Whatever he knew, he'd kept to himself. I had to find Derek's latest address and let him know I was coming. I tried to contact the man—— David—— who Derek had mentioned. But he was out of town. I had to find Derek. I didn't know where he lived. I had to find out.

We agreed that if Irving's paternity were confirmed through DNA, we'd have no need for further research.

Investigational Rheumatoid Arthritis Treatment: Is It Easier To Stomach?

If you are allergic or have had any reactions to rheumatoid arthritis medications, you may be interested in a research study. This will evaluate the safety of an investigational new drug designed for arthritis pain. A being conducted to see if it works for the treatment of RA-related symptoms. It's an open-label, randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled study. Recruitment is now open. A maximum of 300 patients will be enrolled. The primary objective is to evaluate the safety of the investigational new drug and to assess whether it is effective for the treatment of RA-related symptoms. The study is open to patients aged 18 years and older who meet the eligibility criteria.

Here's what people are saying...

"We didn't believe we would ever be able to buy. We had bad credit, but they helped us clean it up. That only took about 30 days and now we have a great condo."

"The service was great. Our loan officer got us approved by one lender and then kept looking for better interest rates. She ended up getting our loan with a different lender, which saved us $500 a month. She really worked for us!"

"I can't believe I drew all that money away on rent for so long. If I had known it was this easy, I would have done it a long time ago. I love my new house!"

WRETCHED COSTUMES OF FLESH

Peter Jones, Attacks, Heresy

Christians' views from the Crusades to Pope John Paul II's coup are in sharp relief. It is true that the Crusades were not entirely evil, and many of the crusaders were on a quest for religious and spiritual purification. However, the手段 used during these crusades were often brutal and inhumane. The Crusades were a time of religious conflict and violence, leading to the deaths of many innocent people. It is important to acknowledge the mistakes of the past and strive for a more compassionate and understanding society.

The image depicts a person with a crucifix around their neck, symbolizing the suffering and sacrifice of the Christian faith. It is a somber reminder of the past and a call for reflection on our modern-day actions.

Hazelzet must have done all this on purpose.

We are not sure what Hazelzet is trying to achieve with her musical performance. Her use of the terms "classical" and "rock" in her performance might be seen as a deliberate attempt to subvert expectations. However, her use of the instruments and her performance style do not align with the classical or rock genres. She might be trying to challenge the audience's perceptions of music and performance. This could be seen as an attempt to create a new genre or to blur the lines between different musical traditions. Overall, Hazelzet's performance seems to be a creative and experimental approach to music, which might be appreciated by those who are open to new experiences.

THE LIT LADY

National League Championship: Tadd's famous bowl game is on, and the guy is at the check-out station.

Lebo's, a local radio station, broadcast the 1988 National League Championship game on the radio. The game was the first game of the 1988 National League Championship Series between the New York Mets and the Los Angeles Dodgers. Lebo's was a popular radio station in New York City at the time, and it was one of the few stations that carried the game on the radio. The game was a closely contested series, with the Mets winning the Championship. The series was also notable for its controversial final play, in which Mets player Darryl Strawberry slid into home plate, but was ruled out, sparking a controversy that lasted for years. The championship game was held at Shea Stadium in New York City, and it was one of the most memorable moments in baseball history.
I think at that date the Olympics were just starting to happen and they were a bit of a family oriented event. We were doing shows that were quite small, and that's about the extent of it. We probably didn't even have a logo or a name. Just going around playing shows and not really thinking too much about it.

We started getting some local press and radio play, and that was the beginning of things really. We didn't have a manager at the time, so we were doing it all ourselves.

The band name came from the name of a drink that our drummer used to drink at a bar in Chicago. It was a mix of Seagram'scampari and soda. We thought it was a great name for a band, and it stuck.

Tip of the Brazilian iceberg
You move your hips to the bossa nova in a smart white sleeveless dress or something in linen.

Bossa nova is a genre of music that emerged in Brazil in the mid-1950s. It is characterized by its smooth, gentle, and relaxed style, often featuring elements of jazz, samba, and classical music. The music is typically performed in a laid-back and rhythmic manner, often with a strong emphasis on the upbeat, or second beat of the measure.

Bossa nova is known for its unique sound, which combines elements of popular Brazilian music with smooth, jazz-like improvisation. The genre has gained worldwide popularity and has been featured in many films and TV shows. It is widely regarded as one of the most important developments in Brazilian music, and its influence can be heard in many modern musical styles.

Baja California’s Intellectual Wines

You don’t drink the labels, the scores, or the press.

Over a century ago the Mexican coast was the vanguard of the New World wine region. Baja California, with some singularity among the states, is a wine country that is starting to be rediscovered. It has its share of wineries and some wines that are starting to be noticed around the world. But while the wines of Baja California are starting to be recognized, they are still not widely known. This is partly because the area is difficult to access, and partly because the wines are not widely distributed.

The wines of Baja California are made from a variety of grapes, including Chenin Blanc, Cabernet Sauvignon, and Syrah. The climate is dry and hot, with a long growing season, which allows the grapes to develop a high level of sugar. The wines are full-bodied and rich, with a good balance of acidity.

One of the wines that is starting to be noticed is the Baja California Chenin Blanc. It is made from grapes that are grown on the coast, which gives the wine a unique character. The wine is light and refreshing, with a hint of saltiness.

Another wine that is starting to be noticed is the Baja California Cabernet Sauvignon. It is made from grapes that are grown in the desert, which gives the wine a unique character. The wine is full-bodied and rich, with a good balance of acidity.

The wines of Baja California are starting to be noticed, but they are still not widely known. This is partly because the area is difficult to access, and partly because the wines are not widely distributed. But as more people start to discover the wines, they are sure to become more popular.

JAPANESE WRESTLER MASAHURO TOSUZU, 1941. Nothing in the Union archives to indicate what Mr. Tousida did in San Diego, but he was probably part of a touring Chinese Death's Grip group.

An indication over 116 years ago that San Diegans would forego the loitering arts in favor of a good wrestling match: the February 7, 1887, match at Leach Opera House. There was an article a day for nearly a week hyping the event. A February 28, 1887, Union article announced the match between a Sam Matthews, "the middleweight champion Greco-Roman wrestler of the world," Matthews would "appear to throw Thomas K. Callies, who has held the champion's belt in Missouri for several years and has never been defeated, five times in one hour, or failing, will forfeit $200 now on deposit."

An article the day after the match reported, "Callies was thrown five times by Matthews in seventeen minutes, the audience was composed of all classes."

FUND-RAISER

My wife and I have always worked hard to provide for our four children, who are lost to our lives. Christopher, age 15, Michael, age 13, Sarah, age 10, and Alexander, age 8. Now that we are both in our middle ages, we are determined to make sure that our children have a good education and a bright future. We are hosting a benefit concert on Saturday, June 15th, at the local community center. Our goal is to raise $10,000 to support our children's education. Please consider attending and contributing to this worthy cause.
