Is Everybody Too Tired? Partying Too Hard? Careers Too Important? Lives Too Good, Too Fun? ...To Include Children?

Our future began on Wednesday, February 5, 2003, when a UCLA doctor announced that for the first time since the late 1850s, Hispanic births accounted for more than half the births in California.

S I K

Everything went extremely smooth, it was even comfortable, and I see perfectly...

"One of the most pleasurable experiences I've had, considering this was LASER eye surgery"

In only 10 minutes our LASIK procedure reverses 42 years of failing, blurry eyesight.

"I've worn glasses since 2nd grade and forgot what it was like to see the world without looking through smudged or scratched panes of glass or plastic. Now I'm 20/20 in both eyes. I never thought seeing without the aid of glasses was possible again. Many of the activities I'd loved as a girl had to be avoided. In fact I couldn't even

"I always hated photos because of the glare in my glasses. But worse, I couldn't get out of bed or see the clock because my sight was 20/400 with astigmatism in both eyes."

remember what it was like to wake up and see. When I walked into Dr. Yaghouti's office I was very nervous. But the staff put me at ease and the procedure was over in minutes. When I woke up the next day I screamed, 'I CAN SEE!' And the tears came. For the first time in 42 years I could see the clock on the wall and other things in my room. No more hassle with glasses or discomfort from contacts. I can swim, snorkel and do anything I want with perfect sight. I thank you from the bottom of my heart."

Actual patient

— Michelle Stewart, San Diego

Our quick LASIK procedure can correct nearsightedness, farsightedness, and astigmatism – in 1 visit.

Global Laser Vision has over 45,000 grateful patients in the San Diego area now living without the hassle and expense of glasses or contacts – free of scratchy red eyes and headaches.

Here's what some of our patients have said about the LASIK procedure:

Q: How safe is the LASIK procedure?

"I'm definitely the fearful type...so I talked to lots of people who did the procedure. My friends who did it said it was safe, and it was. Now I wish I hadn't waited so long."

— Mischa Shirazi, San Diego, CA

Q: Is the surgery painful or difficult?

"I had no pain during the procedure and no discomfort or pain afterward. Best of all, I can see without my glasses or contacts. It feels great."

— Greg Schwenk, San Diego, CA

Q: How soon after the process can I begin normal daily activities again?

"When I came out of the surgery room I could see the hands of the clock – I was doing normal things the next day...amazing immediate results!"

— Glenna T. Casey, Chula Vista, CA

Q: How long does the process take?

"You and your staff told me that it would be a ten-minute, painless procedure and that I would be able to see very close to 20/20 as soon as the next day. Sure enough, it was painless, done in minutes, and I see 20/20."

— T.P. Fortin, San Diego, CA

Q: Do the effects of LASIK wear off over time?

"I had the surgery done over 8 years ago and my sight is still a perfect 20/20."

— Sandra Macias, San Diego, CA

Here's the reason we can make LASIK so affordable...

When doctors lease LASIK surgical equipment, they have to charge their patients more money to cover their expenses. That's because doctors pay a lot more money to lease and USE the equipment than if they owned it.

Because we own our LASIK equipment (as well as our facility), we're not beholden to the manufacturer's prices or the whims of landlords. This means we can keep our prices affordable. It also means we can continue to improve people's vision regardless of their financial status.

Global Laser Center is not owned and/or managed by public companies or by investment groups. This has further enabled us to keep overhead down and pass on the savings to our patients without ever sacrificing quality of our care.

Why over 45,000 people chose us:

Eye surgery is a complex and serious medical procedure. Unlike many other clinics, our doctors are personally involved in every aspect of your care. That's why you can always expect:

- ◆ To talk with your doctor when you call.
- ◆ Your doctor to perform your pre-operative and post-operative exams.
- ◆ Your doctor to be caring and, above all, to put your best interests first.
- ◆ Leading-edge equipment such as the VISX Star S4 Excimer lasers equipped with Wavefront technology – 98% 20/20 vision after one year (FDA clinical trial using VISX Custom LASIK).

Choose the doctor that other doctors trust.

Southern California's most advanced Cornea and Refractive Eye Surgery Specialists

"As a physician, my eyesight is critical for performing complex procedures. I had heard of Dr. Yaghouti through a trusted colleague; from the moment we talked I knew I was in the hands of an extremely caring and knowledgeable physician. He immediately put my fears to rest. His surgical acumen is outstanding – the results speak for themselves. Before the procedure I was extremely farsighted with astigmatism; now I have 20/20 vision in both eyes. When the subject of choosing the right eye doctor comes up, I tell people I would only trust my eyes to Dr. Yaghouti. He is that good of a doctor!"

Sewers Aren't Sexy

By Don Bauder

The Minneapolis bridge collapse and New York City steam pipe explosion have engendered introspection: Is the nation neglecting infrastructure? But the city with one of the most gaping infrastructure deficits, San Diego, has a slogan: "We'll cross that bridge when we get Studies Program at the University of California, San Diego. "We're a poster child for poor infrastructure, but we are permanently narcoleptic on the around to building it."

"San Diego has the greatest urban infrastructure deficit in California," says Steve Erie, professor of political science and director of the Urban topic; we will never wake up. How many mayors have run away from solving the airport problem?"

And remember those promises to upgrade fire-fighting capability after the Cedar fire of 2003? Even if San Diego suffered a similar catastrophe now, our awareness would last only until Paris

Hilton went to jail again.

In 2005, the San Diego Chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers issued a report card on the county's infrastructure. The grades: land and sea ports of entry, C; open space and parks, B minus; school facilities, C plus; storm water collection and treatment, C minus; surface transportation, C; wastewater systems, B minus; water supply, B. "Those were poor grades," says Katherine Hon of Hon Consulting, spokesperson for the local branch.

Next time around, "I would suspect the grades would be lowered," says Kathy Haynes of Kennedy/Jenks Consultants, president of the society's local branch. "A big chunk of how we gave the grades had to do with funding — whether something had a dedicated funding stream." The City is broke and still has no access to the bond market. The society of civil engineers has launched a program, "Friends of Infrastructure," to awaken local leaders to 19th-century downtown pipes, and bridges, roads, water and sewer lines, storm drains, and the like that were built following World War II and now need maintenance or replacement.

But the campaign is not likely to sway politicians, says David Bainbridge, associate professor of sustainable management at Alliant International University's business school. "Repair and maintenance plan to remodel San Diego's downtown waterfront, recently changed the articles of incorporation of the nonprofit he's been using to promote his agenda. Currently an aide to Padres owner John Moores, Peace first rolled out his controversial bayfront proposal back in January, saying it was sponsored by his California Independent Voter Project, which according to its incorporation papers was formed in May 2006 to "educate California residents on the importance of voting in all elections and on becoming informed on the issues and candidacies on their ballot." Critics suggested that Peace's lobbying for the waterfront plan, heavily favored by his boss Moores, who has property interests in the area, exceeded the nonprofit group's scope and might result in its decertification. But this June 1, an amendment to the corporate charter was filed, broadening the project's mission to that of educating "California residents... on how to become informed and active on the public policy issues affecting their communities and on their ballots."

BREAKING NEWS

Informed and active Ex-Democratic state senator Steve Peace, still peddling his

Peace is chairman of the voter project; the group's president is his former legislative aide, David Takashima, who's now a registered lobbyist with the firm KP Public Affairs in Sacramento. On May 1 of this year, state records show that KP acquired a new client: SVDP Management, a nonprofit corporation run by Father Joe Carroll that operates Father Joe's Villages near Petco Park and has often fought with San Diego officials about redevelopment issues. Through June 30, the filings show, SVDP had yet to pay any money to KP.

Another KP client as of January 1, Petco Animal Supplies, Inc., spent $122,000 in the first six months of the year lobbying legislators regarding Assembly Bill AB 1347, the "Pet Store Animal Care Act."

Fruity With the stock market melting down, it's getting harder to remember the money world's free-spending heyday, when exotic investment vehicles such as hedge funds were confidently prospecting for new money from public pension funds. But financial disclosure records reveal that before the market went south this summer, local government pension fund staffers were gifted, wined, and dined by a host of financial advisors. Take the case of John Paul Colafrancesco, retirement investment officer for the San Diego County Employees Retirement Association. Last December around Christmas, he got a $75 fruit basket from the Townsend Group, a San Francisco real estate consultant. The same month, he got an $85 fruit basket from Cornerstone Real Estate Advisors, another real estate manager, based in Hartford, Connecticut, and a $125 fruit basket from Kennedy Associates, a Seattle real estate manager. Not to be outdone, Granite Global, a private equity manager from Menlo Park, California, gave Colafrancesco a $75 tea set. Last August, LRG Capital of San Francisco paid for a $70 harbor excursion. In May of last year, TA Associates, a venture capital manager in Menlo Park, gave him "clocks" worth $152. The same month, he walked away with a $32 book and an $85 jacket courtesy of Menlo Park's Oak Hill Capital Management, a private equity manager. In March of last year, Oaktree Capital Management of Los Angeles contributed a $75 tote bag, $35 for breakfast and lunch, and a $9 "donation to painted turtle camp."

David Deutsch, the fund's chief investment officer, reported getting meals worth a total of $195 at some of the town's poshest restaurants from a host of advisors. In February of last year, Joel Damon of JPMorgan hosted a $25 lunch at Rainwater's. The next month, it was back to the same place for a $25 lunch, thanks to Michael Ryan of Berens Capital. That May, Western Asset Management's Joe Carieri picked up a $20 tab at downtown's Karl Strauss microbrewery. In March of this year, Deutsch reported, Lori Johnson of Artisan Partners paid $25 for lunch at Prego. Retirement investment officer Brian Johnson went out for $20 in drinks and a $50 "sporting event," thanks to investment manager Hansberger Global Investors in Fort Lauderdale. A $175 "sporting event" came from Western Asset Management of Pasadena. Cargill, Inc., gave Johnson a $30 lunch and a $99 iPod shuffle. Three lunches from Rocaton Investment Advisors of Norwalk, Connecticut, totaled $60. Putnam Investments paid for two dinners totaling $100. Westridge Capital Management of Santa Barbara hosted a $50 dinner.

Assistant chief investment officer Lisa Needle took in a $300 "sporting event," also thanks to Western Asset Management, and Franklin Templeton's Mike Poremba of San Mateo paid for a $150 "sporting event." She got a $50 dinner from Morgan Stanley's Michael Wright of New York.

Presidential race Like most of their cohorts in big business, executives of Sempra

Jessie Knight

Energy have been opening their checkbooks for presidential campaigns. They include Jessie Knight, the first African-American executive director of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce, now Sempra's executive vice president of external affairs. He gave $1000 to Republican Mitt Romney; vice president Mark Randle gave $500. Chula Vista's Yellow Brick Road

By Susan Luzzaro

On any given day, it's difficult to tell who works for the residents of Chula Vista and who works for private industry.

A proposed residential development by CV 42 Investments, LLC, represented by Bill Ostrem, who is also the pres-an application with the City of Chula Vista to amend its general plan. Updated a year earlier after months of citizen

Cheryl Cox

Jerry Rindone

ident of EastLake Development Company, lays bare the diseased underbelly of the problem. The development, approximately 550 homes in the lower Sweetwater Valley, has been christened Riverwalk, but a more appropriate name would be Freewaywalk, because the project's 61 acres of low-lying land are bounded by I-805 and SR54.

In late 2006, Ostrem filed input, the general plan currently calls for park and open space on the 61 acres. Just under 24 acres are now owned by a KOA campground, 14.9 acres are owned by the City of Chula Vista, and several smaller parcels are privately owned. This is the last significant piece of open space in Chula Vista's northwest section, and the area has long been acknowledged as park deprived.

Ostrem's proposal would redesignate the majority of the land to medium- and medium-high-density residential housing, pushing the remaining park acreage out to a narrow strip along the boundaries of the freeways, where the air is bad and the noise deafening.

But the park's design was never intended to meet the residents' needs. It is laid out to enhance the visual gateway to Chula Vista. E-mails obtained through a Public Records Act request demonstrate how a developer shapes public policy and space. For example, on December 14, 2006, Ostrem tries to negotiate the park's acreage into as little as possible: "As we discussed the other day, I continue to go around and around with the staff on the size of the city park. My proposal is to develop a 15 acre park... Staff is pushing for a 18.5 acre park which would result in no monies from acquisition fees and even require the City to purchase land from us."

Chula Vista's northwest neighborhood has resisted a

We have had some discussions from an Engineering-Traffic view point regarding access both internally and with Bill Ostrem. FYI...It is our understanding that Bill has already had some preliminary discussions with Chief Emerson. Bill has suggested that he believes he will get buy in from both Fire and Police regarding one access point. From a traffic viewpoint, staff is pushing for two points.

number of projects, so Ostrem needed someone to do a hard sell. Enter Dan Hom, Chula Vista planning commissioner. Unlike a developer, Hom has often posed as someone who cares about Chula Vista. Appointed to the Planning Commission in 2002, he was defeated in 2004 in his bid for city council and failed in 2005 to get appointed to fill a city council vacancy. Hom is president of Focuscom Inc., a public relations company. In 2006, working for Porter Novelli, he registered as a lobbyist in San Diego to lobby for the toll road industry. This intersects with his previous experience as cochair of Citizens for 125. And the completion of SR125 intersects with Chula Vista's allowing Ostrem to build out EastLake. On April 14, 2006, Ostrem wrote to Mary Ladiana of the Community Development Department about Riverwalk: "I will begin our community outreach efforts.

to door for Ostrem and Riverwalk.

But even a skilled communications expert like Hom would find it hard to make this project palatable. The lower Sweetwater Valley is compromised by serious environmental problems. In 1994, when the City of Chula Vista put out the "Lower Sweetwater Valley Issue Paper," it conceded that a noise study from as far back as 1989, before the construction of SR54, found noise levels exceeded the City's acceptable standards. Scientific studies link cancer, asthma, emphysema, and cardiovascular diseases to living by a freeway; the residents of Riverwalk and the users of the public park would be inundated with toxins from two freeways. NAFTA has further aggravated traffic problems, increasing diesel soot, tire and brake abrasion particles, and other particulate matter in the air.

Batchelder advises, "Keep watch over how and in what forums to avoid the perception of upfront 'agreements' as to addressing/mitigating issues prior to the process being fully engaged, and analysis being done." And a June 16 e-mail from acting director of community development Ann Hix reads: "After talking to Bill, I got the same impression...he is happy with you and Mary, just unhappy that we don't have the team formed and haven't moved forward with the EIR yet." Is it the City's job to keep Bill happy?

A primary concern about the development is access. From the beginning of the project, City planners pushed for more than one access. Planner Stan Donn writes: "The access issue needs to be addressed as well. Based on the Subdivision Manual, more than 200 units would require 3 points of access." This message is repeated by a number point regarding access both internally and with Bill Ostrem. FYI...It is our understanding that Bill has already had some preliminary discussions with Chief Perry and is making his way towards discussions with Chief Emerson. Bill has suggested that he believes he will get buy in from both Fire and Police regarding one access point." At this time, in December 2006, there are no definitive street layout plans. What would the chiefs be buying into?

Hines crosses the line again for Ostrem's project in trying to obtain additional property for the entrance to Riverwalk. On December 22, 2006, she e-mails the Chula Vista police team member and asks, "Is it

CITY LIGHTS

nance of infrastructure is outside of politicians' time cycle," says Bainbridge, noting that the city of San Diego faces $4 billion to $5 billion in deferred maintenance and delayed capital improvement programs. "Anything that takes six or seven years to fix is not worth it for politicians. Also, they like something with sex to it." Sewers aren't sexy.

For almost two decades, City government has been aware of dangerously ancient infrastructure, particularly in older neighborhoods, says City Attorney Mike Aguirre. But politicians "have taken out core money that should have been dedicated to infrastructure: $173 million for the Qualcomm stadium makeover, $300 million for the ballpark, $1.4 billion for retiree health care, and at least $1.5 billion for pension." The solution? "We have to reorganize our general plan, saying that before we do more construction of housing, we have to achieve infrastructure goals. We're going into an era of climatic change with an infrastructure like New Orleans has." San Diego and other cities that import water must understand what global warming may portend. "There has to be a transition from a growth-oriented economy to a sustainability-oriented economy."

But San Diego is just not ready for a growth moratorium or, say, bans on sewer and water hookups — all of which would present legal problems. "I don't think city council will listen to a statement that there will be no further condo development until infrastructure is brought up to date," says Jim Mills, former president pro tem of the California senate. "Who owns city council? The developers own the San Diego City Council." But the council might be willing to state that infrastructure should have a higher priority than housing, says Mills.

Councilmember Donna Frye has fought the hardest for infrastructure. In a big housing project, builders are supposed to supply infrastructure. The politicians will approve residential projects on that basis. But "too many deals were struck where the promises never materialized," she points out. "You cannot require new development to come in and pay for the projects that didn't get done in the past." And new development creates further problems: "People say when there are more users on the system, there are more users paying, and they are right. But when you add more capacity to the infrastructure, the cost is much larger."

City officials love to talk about revenues a housing project may generate, but they never discuss the costs, such as infrastructure expense. This is particularly true with redevelopment and the Centre City Development Corporation. It boasts, for instance, that condos supposedly built as a result of the ballpark project provide tax revenue. However, Centre City doesn't point out that the condos are subsidized, says Frye, and it doesn't reveal the associated costs of infrastructure and services. "Don't just tell us the revenue side. Show the expenses as well," says Frye. "What are the costs of redevelopment? Tax money goes back into more redevelopment, and the general fund has to bear the infrastructure and services expenses. It's disinformation — the old bait and switch."

Centre City says that of its $217.5 million budget this year, $75.1 million is set aside for infrastructure. It claims it is revitalizing C Street downtown. It has put $80 million into the downtown library. It is developing new parks.

"But is the C Street project more important than spending money on fixing sewer and water pipes?" asks Mills, who thinks the library project is another waste of money.

Frye points out that Centre City is only one government problem. "The planning department is one of the most important departments in the City, but it gets cut to pieces." Plans may be in place but may not be followed. "Much of what happens in the Development Services Department is political, based on relationships and cronyisms and campaign contributions." (See Sunroad.) "It's a revolving door. People who work for developers go to work for the City, and people who work for the City go to work for developers." (Again, see Sunroad.)

There are more than 40 community planning groups in the city's various neighborhoods. Many are infrastructure-conscious. "But sometimes the developers come in and run rampant over the process," says Frye. "It is always more difficult for the community than the developers, who have attorneys, experts, lobbyists." Otay Mesa planning has been taken over by developers. After an expensive fight, developers essentially got control of the Point Loma community planning group, once controlled by activists.

Throughout local government, "The developers have the time and money to get their way," says Bainbridge.

According to some, one of the biggest roadblocks to better infrastructure is San Diego's attitude toward taxes. "[Mayor Jerry] Sanders says he will not raise taxes," says Mills. "That is disingenuous. There is no way to get out of this economic bind without raising taxes."

Agrees Erie, "We want the services and infrastructure but don't want to pay for them." ■ possible to see about any police activity for a property located at XXX N Second Avenue? We are looking at this property for inclusion in the Riverwalk project. Someone on our field visit made a comment about activity at this house. I know we have code enforcement issues but as to criminal/police???" While the Redevelopment Agency is supposed to provide assistance to developers, should it be on the lookout for properties to seize or condemn?

Traffic is another concern for residents who live in the area of the proposed development. The surface streets in Chula Vista west of 805 are already overwhelmed. In trying to assess the possible problem, apparently city staff stepped out of line early this year and got rebuked by Ostrem: "...the traffic study is our contract and staff should not be contacting the consultant without talking to us first."

Meanwhile, Dan Hom was out spinning the Riverwalk project to businesses and residents, but what Riverwalk really needed was an infomercial. Joe Little was a member of the Chula Vista Growth Management Oversight Commission until April 5, 2007, when he went to work for Channel 10. Only five days later, Little produced a story on Riverwalk. The star of the piece was Chula Vista's acting director of community development, Ann Hix. Anyone watching this news story would have thought that the project was a done deal and a great boon to the city of Chula Vista. Hix waxed eloquent about the park and the revenues Riverwalk would bring to the city. This was perfect for Dan Hom, because in less than a month he would be able to quote the TV show in a set of talking points he would use to churn the waters.

The first official stop for Ostrem's project is Chula Vista's Redevelopment Advisory Committee (RAC), where projects are reviewed twice. The first review was May 3, 2007. According to the Chula Vista Redevelopment website, the main purpose of the advisory committee is to be "the primary vehicle for public participation in the redevelopment process." Three of the committee members are also on the Chula Vista Chamber of Commerce board of directors: Richard D'Ascoli, Lisa Johnson, and Lisa Cohen. On May 2, 2007, the day before the advisory committee's meeting, Lisa Cohen e-mailed D'Ascoli and Johnson this message: "Please find the attached talking points for tomorrow's RAC meeting. Our Board of Directors supported this wonderful project at our April 27 meeting.... Warm regards, Lisa Cohen." D'Ascoli and Johnson had already taken a position on Ostrem's project. The talking points were prepared by Focuscom. Designed to quell community concern, the talking points read like 101 for developer dummies: "Q: What will be the average cost of a home in this neighborhood, I have heard that this is an affordable 'low income' project?" and "Q: Where will access for the project be, we are concerned with traffic impacts?" And from Joe Little's Channel 10 story: "As quoted by a recent news report, the redevelopment area of the project will generate approximately 60 million dollars in tax increment to the city."

Cohen's e-mail was also sent to other people who will be in a position to vote on the project down the line: Chula

Vista Redevelopment Corporation member Chris Lewis, Planning Commissioner Scott Vinson, and councilmembers John McCann and Jerry Rindone. Councilmember Rindone also sits on the chamber of commerce board of directors.

Ostrem is no stranger to general plan amendments. As vice president of J.G. Boswell Company and president of Yokohl Ranch Company, Ostrem is also seeking a general plan amendment in Tulare County, California. Yokohl Ranch will be a massive planned community covering 36,000 acres of ranch land in the Sierra Nevada foothills. EastLake, by comparison, is chump change with only 3200 acres. The vice president of the Yokohl Ranch Company is none other than Chula Vista's own Alex Al-Agha. Al-Agha served as a city engineer and deputy director of engineering for the City of Chula Vista from 2003 until August 2006.

According to an article in Big Builder Online, the Yokohl Ranch project will be taking bids from builders. Ostrem says, "...we've talked to a few of them — Centex, Lennar, and McMillin, to date — either because we have crossed paths, or because they have made a call.... We've worked with Ken Baumgartner for years [president of Corky McMillin Companies] and last time I saw Ken he told me that he wanted me to meet his people in the region." How will this huge potential contract affect Lisa Johnson of the Redevelopment Advisory Committee and Chris Lewis of the Chula Vista Redevelopment Corporation, both of whom work for Corky McMillin Companies? Yet another conflict of interest appears possible.

The last stop for the Riverwalk project is the Chula Vista City Council and Mayor Cheryl Cox. Mayor Cox is familiar with this contested piece of land. In 1994, her husband, county supervisor Greg Cox, who was a lobbyist at the time, brought to the City and northwest Chula Vista a proposal to build the Family Fun Center project on the land. Later, residents recall Cheryl Cox, as lobbyist, touting the virtues of the Family Fun Center, replete with water bumper boats, go-karts, miniature golf courses, and a lighted parking lot for 280 vehicles.

Ostrem donated the maximum allowable amount to Cheryl Cox's 2006 mayoral campaign, and the Reader reported that right before the election, on October 13, 2006, Yokohl Ranch gave $4000 to the GOP's Lincoln Club. Four days later, the club paid $7245 for a poll in support of Cheryl Cox for mayor. Perhaps coincidence, perhaps a show of confidence, Ostrem e-mailed community development specialist Hines on November 8, 2006, the day after the election, to advise her that he was applying for the general plan amendment. "Subject: Deposits on the way." In the e-mail he stated: "I meant to tell you that the application with check should be to you today."

Prior to Mayor Cox's election, a U-T editorial posed a question that time will answer: "Certainly, former council members have left office and become paid lobbyists, or 'governmental relations representatives.' But, to go from lobbyist to mayor?"

But there are bigger questions. Can Chula Vista wean itself from its unhealthy dependence on developer dollars? Can projects be made with residents rather than developers in mind? And on any given day, who is working for the citizens of Chula Vista? ■

The Chip And The Block

Barbarella, protégé of the late Judith Moore, does her mentor proud in the issue that memorializes editor Moore's strange and manipulative influence on some Reader writers ("She Hated Adverbs," Cover Story, August 16). In her blog, Barbarella displays (again) surpassing selfishness and self-centeredness toward her mother and siblings. A chip off the old Moore block: tell yourself that being "a writer" matters more than anything or anyone else in the world.

Gossip And Nonsense

Your articles on Judith Moore ("She Hated Adverbs," Cover Story, August 16) were nothing but a mass of gossip and hearsay and personal reminiscences, which to the objective person reading them are of absolutely no value. I read through all of them as quickly as I could endure them, and the only facts I could get about your editor Ms. Moore was that she won a couple of national prizes. Undoubtedly she was a good editor and all of that.

But outside of that, what do we learn from all of these celebratory pieces of gossip?

So I think Ms. Moore as an editor would have torn up the whole thing and told you to go back and write a biography. We don't know anything about Ms. Moore from all of this gossip, I mean, objectively. We don't know when she was born, where she studied, who she was, what religion she believed in, if she believed in any religion, what were her political views, and all of that. That is a biography. Not all of this gossip and I knew her when and all this. This means nothing to the majority of your readers, or, let's say, 90 percent of them. So why don't you think it over, Reader, and start printing something useful once in a while, instead of this gossip and harebrained nonsense that you usually print?

Distant Continents

When Judith Moore phoned me several years ago to ask, with graceful tact and tentativeness, if I'd be interested in writing about art for the Reader, I thought to myself: this is a writer-editor who knows how to say good things about someone's work without being a flatterer. She practiced the same gifts in extracting a piece of writing from someone. Of this I had firsthand experience.

My most charming exchange with Judith occurred when she persuaded me to write something without my quite realizing that I had been persuaded to write something that I otherwise would have never written. In my dealings with her, the only time I sensed anxiety and uncertainty was when she wanted to review a book of my poems. But she felt intimidated by poetry generally, she said, and by mine in particular.

My reassurances went nowhere. The more I reassured her she didn't need to be intimidated, the more intimidated she became, of course. So she came up with a compromise. "Well, since I probably can't review your book, maybe I can interview you." I told her I was interested but we let that rest a couple of days. She then phoned to say she felt intimidated about interviewing me, too, even though we had talked and laughed together several times on the phone, and I don't think of myself as a difficult person. Judith certainly wasn't difficult. (She lived in Berkeley, I live in SF, and outsiders need to know that in literary matters they are like two distant continents.) This wasn't cowardice on Judith's part; it was, I believe, candid modesty. So we batted the interview idea back and forth until, in a triumphant moment that she obviously relished, she finally announced her solution: "I have it! You should interview yourself!" So I did, sort of. And it worked. Her personal finesse and editorial savvy seemed always to work.

STRAIGHT FROM THE HIP

BY MATTHEW ALICE

Illustration by Rick Geary

Hey there, Matt:

I got this line from Wikipedia explaining the culture of San Diego: "San Diego had a gay index of 186 (gay male index of 226 and a lesbian index of 144); the national average gay index is 100." How do they come up with a "gay index"? Is the math as complex as a quarterback's rating? Or the Padres' team batting average?

— A Gay Man in "Squaremont"

The math is pretty simple. Maybe too simple. It might not be the pinnacle of demographic science, but here goes... Gary Gates, a demographer now with the Urban Institute and author of The Gay and Lesbian Atlas, started the whole thing, later teaming with regional economist Richard Florida, author of The Rise of the Creative Class. Gates took year 2000 U.S. census data for selected metro areas, compared the number of households that were (self-reportedly) headed by same-sex partners (two gay men or two lesbians), then compared those figures to the number of traditional households in the same area. From this he produced a "gay index" number for each metro area. Over 100 on the index means the area contains more same-sex households than the U.S. average, and vice versa. That, basically, is the gay index. (The "gay" figure does not include un-partnered gays and lesbians in an area, since individual orientation is not reported on the census form.) Interesting, maybe, but was it useful?

Gates solved that by going to the Milken Index, a ranking of U.S. high-tech (IT and biotech) companies based on their longevity, economic growth, innovation, and other business factors. The better a company rates in all the factors, the higher it ranks on the Milken scale. Gates compared the top Milken companies (and their metro areas) to the metro areas with the highest gay indices and found some interesting matches. In 2001, the Brookings Institution published Gates's and Florida's findings, in which the authors stated, "The most statistically reliable indicator of a successful high-tech-friendly environment is the size and vitality of the gay population." Eleven of the top 15 high-tech companies and metro areas in Milken are also in the top 15 of the gay index.

According to the authors, a city's "open-mindedness" is the key. This fosters creativity, attracts creative and energetic people and creative companies, and generally makes for a more congenial environment — good for the population, good for high-tech business. San Diego was congenial enough to rank fifth on the gay index, behind San Francisco/San Jose, D.C., Austin, and Atlanta. The gay index itself might be a valid descriptor, but expanding it to cause-and-effect sorts of relationships could be, statistically, a little too energetic and creative.

Hey, Matt:

Why can foreigners like David Beckham, Yao Ming, and many others just pop over to the USA whenever they want, make millions here "working," yet the foreigners who come to pick the lettuce get their butts deported as soon as they are found? If there is some easy way to get a work permit for the Beckhams, why can't the poor foreigners get one too? Sounds very unfair to me.

— Legal in Santee

Part of your answer is the fact that nobody will pay huge sums for season floor seats to watch an anonymous immigrant pick lettuce. Beckham, Yao, and planeloads of athletes, performers, educators, tech specialists, biochemists, and other professional superstars can get past the migra easily with their O-1 visas. These are reserved for what the consular service calls "aliens of extraordinary ability."

So, how do you prove you have extraordinary ability? You need some sort of "sustained national or international acclaim" and letters from peers stating what an extraordinary alien you really are. Cited often in the professional literature as an expert? Have a Nobel Prize or two? Film and TV personalities need to show some "advanced achievement." Athletes need a "level of expertise not possessed by others" and must have risen to the top of their professions. Beckham seems to qualify, but there's lots of wiggle room in those descriptions. "Extraordinary ability," in reality, might mean being over seven feet tall or being a handsome, photogenic Australian bloke.

O-1s must have a guarantee of employment before they enter the U.S. (Nike, in the case of Yao), and the future employer handles the visa-application process. Once you have your papers, the consular service considers you a "temporary worker," not an "immigrant"; the visa says nothing about residency — just employment — and gives you no resident-alien status. If eventually you get booted off the movie set or out of the locker room or genetics lab, your employer is supposed to buy you a one-way ticket back to Shanghai or Manchester or wherever you came from.

The consular service offers 11 different kinds of "temporary worker" visas covering different situations. If you're a foreign employee of an extraordinary alien and your work is vital to keeping the alien extraordinary, then you get an O-2 visa. And in Beckham's case, the adorable Skeletal Spice gets an O-3 visa identifying her as the spouse of an extraordinary alien, but it doesn't give her permission to work.

FedEx Cup. Round One.

Congratulations to professional golfer Brandt Snedeker, who won the Wyndham Championship on Sunday with a stunning two-point victory over the field. Perhaps I should make that, “won with a final score of 266, 22 under par,” besting his nearest challenger, Tim Petrovic, who finished at 268, 20 under par. Petrovic tied with Billy Mayfair and Jeff Overton, both of whom shot 268. And, as exciting as that was, here comes Carl Pettersson and Greg Kraft, two swarthy golfing pros to round off the top six finishers, which is news too big to hold.

See, the Greensboro’s Wyndham Championship was the last chance for Tour golfers to earn points that would allow them to qualify for the FedEx Cup, the PGA Tour’s new and novel playoff format stolen from NASCAR’s Nextel Cup. And qualifying for the Tour’s playoffs is important, not to mention heart-stopping, save for the absence of 24 of the top 25 PGA Tour’s money leaders at the Wyndham Championship. The odd man out of the 25, the man who actually attended, was the winner, Mr. Brandt Snedeker.

You can feel magic in the air, and if you can’t feel it, stop by pgatour.com and read the enthralling story found underneath the headline, Playoffs excitement reaching peak with players. And you know it is.

The PGA Tour tacked on a playoff season that is so complex, few understand it, and those who do decide explaining how it works is not worth the effort. To begin, the FedEx Cup is based on a cheat. The PGA Tour cynically figured, correctly, the media are so superficial that saying the winner’s prize is a $10,000,000 annuity, one that doesn’t pay out until the lucky recipient reaches the age of 45, is too complex for the dumb public to grasp. So, instead of writing that, the corporate press shakes its collective head and puts down, “$10,000,000 prize,” thereby greatly inflating the perceived value of said FedEx Cup in the sports consumer’s mind.

Looking at it one way, 20 years from now, throwing in historical inflation, the value of the FedEx Cup’s $10,000,000 purse would be worth something on the order of $4.5 million 2007 dollars. That’s assuming this year’s winner is still alive in 2027, the PGA Tour still tours, FedEx keeps its wallet open, and a generation of lawyers hasn’t figured a way to get at it.

Looking at it another way, 100 dollars earning 5 percent interest that is paid yearly would equal $165.33 after 20 years. So, sponsors would only have to put in a fraction of $10,000,000 in order to have that sum mutate into the announced purse in 20 years’ time.

Two details: It’s not an annuity. The PGA Tour recently announced it was deferred compensation. I smell the presence of a lawyer. And, the entire $35 million FedEx Cup pot is deferred compensation that will be sunshiny news to the men who finish second, third, fourth, and on down the line.

What we have is playground rules. Here’s the deal the PGA Tour is giving their members: “You play four tournaments in four weeks (nobody does that anymore), and I’ll sell that to television for big, big bucks. I’ll take the money and media exposure now and pay you in 20 years.”

I’m not necessarily against this, provided we can expand the concept into the world of my creditors. Perhaps add in my grocery store, electric and cable companies, and so on.

Brandt Snedeker

But, to get back to the FedEx Cup... For people who haven’t followed this, and I hope that’s everybody, the race for the FedEx Cup begins this week with the Barclays at Westchester, New York, then the Deutsche Bank Championship in Boston, then the BMW Championship close by Chicago, finishing up with the Tour Championship in Atlanta.

Unbeknownst to Americans — including most PGA Tour golfers — the excitement has been building all year. From January’s Mercedes Championship to Sunday’s Wyndham Championship, there have been 36 tournaments, and points have been awarded at every one. Some tournaments give out more points than other tournaments. Some people are nicer than other people. That’s life and there’s no reason to dirty ourselves with details.

At the end of the regular season all the points are added up, and the top 144 players are invited into the postseason. Then, all the points are reset so the guy who earned the most points during the regular season, Tiger Woods, gets 100,000, the second place guy gets 99,000 points, on down to lucky number 144, who gets 84,000 points.

Detractors will point out that any playoff scheme that takes more than two sentences to explain is a loser. Any playoff scheme that awards 100,000 points to any participant for any reason should be euthanized. And any playoff scheme that doesn’t pay out on the spot is a joke. More of this anon.

The PGA Tour cynically figured, correctly, the media are superficial.

It's easy to be suspicious of good taste in matters of religion, to fear that a refined aesthetic sense, so concerned with making the atmosphere harmonious and pleasing to the senses in an unobtrusive way, might work against the religious call to think on spiritual things, to strive for personal change, and to sacrifice worldly comfort for the sake of some otherworldly good. This is perhaps especially understandable when it comes to Christianity — there is nothing tasteful about the crucified Christ.

And if a person labored under such a suspicion, it would be easy to forgive their immediate reaction to St. Andrew's on Sunday. Good taste abounded: white glass filtering in swaths of gentle light, walnut slats on the ceiling contrasting with the pale gray walls, Arts & Crafts-style stained glass adorning the central window, and bright, classical piano ringing through the church before the service began. The list went on, all the way to the single pottery urn of elegant pink flowers in the Sanctuary. Christ was on the cross, suspended from the ceiling, but He was clothed, and there were no nails in His hands and feet.

But then a person might notice the careful yet unstudied motions of a young acolyte as she fetched the Lectionary from the lectern, pausing to turn and reverence the altar before retreating down the aisle. Or the uniform bowing of clerical heads at the name of Jesus during the Gloria. Careful liturgy might be more good taste, but it might also be attention to worship. And then a person would hear the Lessons.

Jeremiah: "Let the prophet who has a dream tell the dream, but let the one who has my word speak my word faithfully. 'What has straw in common with wheat?' says the Lord. 'Is not my word like fire...like a hammer that breaks the rock in pieces?'" The Psalm: "How long will you judge unjustly and show favor to the wicked?" Paul: "In your struggle against sin, you have not yet resisted to the point of shedding your blood...." The Lord disciplines those whom he loves." Jesus, in the Gospel of Luke: "Do you think that I have come to bring peace to the earth? No, I tell you, but rather division! From now on, five in one household will be divided, three against two and two against three."

Father Hills's tone was affable during the sermon, but he didn't back off the point. "The words of Jesus...sounded to me like something out of a boot camp for disciples.... They're not pleasant. They're hard. They're demanding. Nobody really wants or likes to hear them. And yet, like boot camp, they're also necessary...if we are actually living our faith and not merely paying lip service to the surprisingly radical gospel of Jesus Christ."

Hills told a story from his own life, after the "conversion experience" that led him to give up law in San Diego and move with his family to a seminary in Berkeley. "I recall my 15-year-old first-born son.... He shouted at me one night that he hated it here.... He accused me of not being the same dad any more. And he was right. I wasn't the same, and I never would be. I still loved my family, but my priorities had changed; God now occupied center stage, and the entire family was affected." He reconciled with his son, but his daughter ended up moving back in with her mother (Hills's ex-wife).

Despite the division, however, "there is always good news...the peace of God that passes all understanding.... The goal of the individual Christian, and of Christianity, is for the world to experience God's peace.... But before that kind of peace can ever be achieved, we...will first have to endure the very conflict and division that Jesus warns of....

If you haven't experienced those conflicts...then you need to take a stronger, harder look at the practicing of Christianity. Because God's peace," rather than "the world's" simple "absence of conflict...is confident assurance in any circumstance.... We have no need to fear the present or the future.... We should take heart and feel blessed to be partners with Jesus in this great adventure."

What happens when we die?

"The only honest answer is...we don't know," said Hills. "What I believe is that, after we die, there is a life awaiting us in the kingdom. Whether that's a physical place or whether it's a place beyond our description, I don't know.... I have my own images of what I would like it to be like.... I think there are going to be a lot of surprises when we open our eyes and see who is in the kingdom.... But the honest answer is that I don't know. I won't know until I die, and I'm not anxious to find out anytime soon, to tell you the truth."

—EVE KELLY

I strolled out of Nordstrom Rack, my bag heavy with suede pumps, cropped pants, and strappy tops. Just before I got to my car, I stepped on something squishy — a fat Gucci wallet. I rifled through it, looking past the wad of $20s, past the driver's license and credit cards, for something, anything bearing a phone number. No luck. But then my fingers picked out a card from AAA. I called, gave the member number, and left the wallet with a manager at Nordstrom Rack, happy in the knowledge that AAA would take it from there.

Patrick's reaction when I told him the story: "Why don't we have AAA?"

"Because we have insurance through USAA."

"Will they tow us for free?" I called USAA to find out. It turned out that for an additional $24 a year, I could get tows to the nearest garage. "Besides the tow," said the clerk, "you receive a flat-tire change, lock-out service help, a jump start, or fuel delivery." Price of replacement tire, replacement key, or fuel not included.

"Will using the service affect my insurance rates?"

"No, not if you use it only a few times a year. If you had excessive use, then it would."

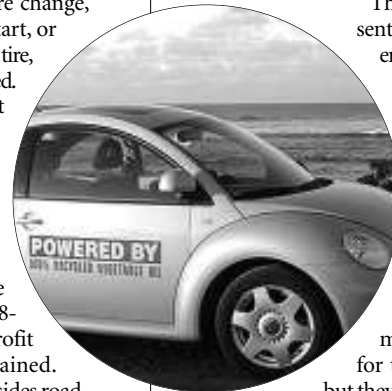

I decided to compare that with AAA's emergency roadside service. I called Misty at the company's Clairemont office (858-483-4960). "We're a not-for-profit insurance company," she explained. "That makes our rates cheap. Besides roadside assistance, you receive an additional 200 benefits. For example, we offer discounts for travel attractions like Sea World, and if you shop online at places like Barnes & Noble, you can receive a 10 percent discount. We have access to every rate a hotel publishes, and our agents can pick a rate even lower than the AAA member rate. Another reason people join is that we offer all DMV services, so you don't have to wait in line. And we offer free maps, tour books, and travel planning."

The pitch over with, Misty got down to cases. "We cover the person, not the vehicle, so if you're riding with a friend and they break down, you can call and we'll come. There's a one-time sign-up fee of $20 for all members. Each plan includes four calls a year with no additional charge. 'Classic' membership is $47 per year, and $24 for additional persons. It offers a seven-mile tow, fuel service (two gallons, which you pay for), flat tire assistance, lock-out service, and jump-starting. 'Plus' membership is $76 for one person and $43 for additional persons, while 'Premiere' membership is $102 and $53 [for additional persons]. Plus and Premiere offer the same benefits, but allow additional tow miles — 100 and 200, respectively. Also, if you run out of gas, they pay for the cost of the fuel. And our average response time is 18 minutes." Before I hung up, Misty reminded me that the travel discounts usually ended up paying for the cost of the roadside service.

The next two places I called were like Jack only bicycle roadside assistance program" — $39.95 a year, but only $15 when added onto an auto membership. "We actively lobby on environmental issues, and we contribute one percent of our gross to environmental cleanup. We also offer eco-travel benefits, which means discounts on the rental of hybrid cars or biodiesel cars — they run on diesel made from agricultural products like veggie oil. Plus, we offer discounts on eco-lodging, which will usually mean a hotel or getaway that has a high standard in terms of recycling, or maybe they compost or grow their own organic garden onsite for the food they serve. They're usually mom-and-pop places where the owners have a strong commitment to the environment. We just signed up a company — this guy who takes people on tours of Germany — organic farms, places where they have sustainable architecture, that kind of thing."

As for the roadside-assistance package, "There's a $10 sign-up fee. You get four calls a year per member. Our average response time is 38 minutes. The Basic package includes five miles of towing, lock-out assistance, flat-tire assistance, battery service, and fuel delivery" — price of fuel not included. "That costs $53.95, plus $20 to add an additional member. The Premium package offers the same as the above, but with 100 miles of free towing, and costs $89.95, with $30 to add an additional member."

Sprat and his wife — one lean, the other not. All-American Roadside Assistance (800-351-1584; allamericanroadside.org) gave me their rates: "It's $54.95 for 13 months. That includes you, your spouse, and children under 21. You get towing up to 100 miles, lock-out assistance, battery jump, tire change, and fuel delivery service — the first $5 worth of fuel is free. You get as many calls a year as you need, as long as there is a 72-hour gap between each call. We service the U.S. and Puerto Rico, with an average call response time of 40 to 60 minutes. We also offer trip routing, maps, hotel discounts, and a 10 percent discount with repair shops such as AAMCO and Jiffy Lube. All profits go to Pets for the Elderly and Smile Train."

All State Motor Club (800-998-8697; allstatemotorclub.com) will get to you in less than 60 minutes, but to get comparable benefits for four calls a year ($250 worth of towing), it ran $168 for 12 months, and no fuel-cost reimbursement.

The last company presented itself as sort of the environmentally friendly version of AAA: Better World Auto Club (866-238-1137; betterworldclub.com). "We offer maps, auto-service discounts, emergency travel-expense reimbursement, and more," said the salesman. They didn't argue for the abolition of cars, but they did offer "the nation's

Gym Rats

An hour of basketball feels like 15 minutes. An hour on a treadmill feels like a weekend in traffic school.

— David Walters

I was five minutes in; by ten minutes, sweat would begin to trickle down from my hairline and slicken my cheeks, at which point I'd remove my glasses and set them next to my iPod in that little holder thingy next to the machine's electronic dashboard. But for now, my specs were still on my face, which meant I had at least four and a half minutes left to check out the scene. It was my first time on this kind of machine, the "TreadClimber" — imagine a treadmill sliced down the middle, with each side rising up to greet your foot at an incline with each step. It was weird at first, but after two minutes it was no more complicated or taxing than walking uphill. As I speed-climbed to the techno beat of the latest compilation album from Armani Exchange, a woman approached the machine on my left. I could see her easily in the mirrored wall, which I would never reach no matter how many minutes I spent walking toward it. Her fluorescent green sweatpants clutched at her backside; her white tank top held fast to her perky, sizeable breasts; tough girl tattoos were offset by the cutesiness of long, dark pigtails. She was annoyingly gorgeous, the kind of girl you don't want to be stuck standing next to in a bar.

I expected her to leap onto the treads and break into a full gallop with the grace and agility of a gazelle. Instead, Miss Fitness Hillcrest busted a series of poses, each one more bizarre and mystifying than the one before. She threw a foot up onto the dashboard of her machine and brandished her crotch to the room in a sort of vertical, sideways split. Right after she started in with the backbends, it was time for me to take off my glasses, so the rest of her contortions appeared to me as blurry beige and green limbs flailing in slow motion. I thought I was doing pretty well at three miles per hour at "maximum treadle" but this chick's warm-up made me wonder if I'd missed some kind of red button that sent this thing into "hyperactive exercise freak" mode, which was the only thing — short of a sprint to Albuquerque — I could fathom might require that much preparatory stretching. By the time the limber lady finally stepped onto the TreadClimber, my 20 minutes were up and I relinquished my machine to the short bald guy who'd been pacing patiently behind me.

The gym is a playground for grownups. Just as the rules during recess are different from those of the classroom, there are certain behaviors that are accepted within the gym that under many other circumstances would confuse, offend, and, in extreme cases, horrify. For example, in a gym locker room, it is not out of the ordinary for a man to shave his face while wearing nothing but the shaving cream (or so David tells me — I have yet to break into the "little weightlifter's" room).

Since joining my local recreation joint two weeks ago, I've been an urban Dian Fossey, observing these sinewy gorillas in their midst. Though my research is as yet preliminary, I have begun to note certain behavioral trends. For instance, I have learned that regardless of where one's vanity falls on the spectrum, it is mandatory for all gym patrons to ogle themselves in the mirrored walls. An unwritten rule specifies that the worse shape one is in, the tighter his or her clothing must be. Older, saggy-skinned women in blood-constricting spandex short-shorts are to be commended in this Bizzaro universe.

I am still uncertain as to how the band responds to a member's sonorous, gratuitous grunting. I caught a few people rolling their eyes at each other as one woman with a shock of red hair and glittery blue eye shadow gasped for breath between deep, guttural moans. She sounded like she was either giving birth or faking an orgasm, two events one should never have to consider while counting bicep curls. The following morning, however, when the same woman was caterwauling her way through a set of squats, my eyes were the only ones rolling.

After each set of reps, the males will pause, stare into space, and count to 500. They do not begin another set until they have finished counting. When a man is in mid-count (which can be determined by his vacant gaze, as none of them actually count out loud), he is the king of his machine; no one is to bother him until he is finished, even if it takes him an hour to reach 500 and begin his next set. To prevent anyone from stepping forward to challenge the king for his machine, he will methodically flex each muscle and caress the resulting bulge in an intimidating show of dominance.

When lifting weights, guys must go for the heaviest they can hold without ripping a tendon. If a vein is not pulsating in his temple, the weight is not heavy enough and other men will deem him a weakling. Once an acceptable level of vein pulsation has been achieved, he is then permitted to simply release his grip and revel in the noise of the weights as they crash to the floor in thunderous affirmation of his alpha-ness.

When huffing away on an elliptical machine, it is standard practice to gauge your fitness level by looking at the settings on your neighbors' machines.

If the woman to your right is on level 15, you should set your machine to level 16. If the guy on your left is walking backwards, you should do the same for five minutes, so that everyone can see that he's not the only one in the row who knows how to interval.

Not much has changed since the fifth grade — as it was on the playground at Tiffany Elementary, it is important for a dork like me to learn how to fit in and hang with the cooler kids in the gym. I'm working on a yoga stretch routine that involves the elliptical trainer. I have almost perfected my crunch-grunt. I've purchased camel-toe sweatpants and waterproof masacara. I may never master the naked locker-room strut, but I think I've got enough going on to be accepted by the troupe. ■

The UCLA Center for the Study of Latino Health and Culture released the news after a landmark study. “Of the 138,892 births from July to September 2001,” the AP reported the next day, “69,672 of them — 50.2 percent — were Hispanic babies.”

“The long-anticipated Latino majority has arrived,” said the center’s director, David Hayes-Bautista. “In 2003, it is learning how to walk and will shortly learn to talk. They will be defining the American dream. It’s in their hands.”

Whew. Just in time. Because the rest of us aren’t doing the job.

According to Ed Schafer, senior demographer at SANDAG (the San Diego Association of Governments), the rest of San Diego’s inhabitants, especially non-Hispanic whites, are not creating enough babies to keep the county up and running. If trends continue, fertility rates will drop below replacement levels. Against all the cries you hear about population explosion, some demographers say that most non-Hispanics have set their dials on oblivion, nonrecoverability — let’s use the E-word, extinction. Maybe that’s a little too apocalyptic. But Schafer says that San Diego’s non-Hispanic whites and African Americans have a fertility rate — that is, a baby-production rate — of between 1.7 and 1.8 children per female. “That is below replacement level. About 2.0 is replacement, so 1.8 is a pretty low fertility rate.”

So what’s happening in the bedrooms of non-Hispanic San Diego? Is everybody just too tired? Are Anglo Americans, African Americans, Asians, Native Americans all just California Dreaming? Partying too hard? Have they decided that their priorities are elsewhere, their careers too important, their lives too good, too fun, too challenging, too lonely, too busy, too self-absorbing, or maybe just too desperate, to include children?

You have to ask: with recent immigrants creating the largest families, has the task of making babies become the ultimate outsourcing of America? And as Anglos in San Diego head for minority status, what fears or irrational reactions could this prospect stir up? One-Worlders should be in Seventh Heaven, but the “don’t rent to illegals” Escondido crowd must be seeing Armageddon. Or is it like the frog in slowly heating water: nobody notices?

“Between now and 2030 two things are going to happen,” says SANDAG’s Ed Schafer. “We’re going to become much more nonwhite. Right now, non-Hispanic whites (thus named to distinguish them from Hispanic whites) make up 49 percent of the county, and Hispanics are 25 percent. By 2030, non-Hispanic whites will be down to 38 percent of the population, and Hispanics will be up to 38 percent.”

And, nota bene, that will be older Anglos, with less power in the workplace but financial clout and political influence, and younger Hispanics, with the numbers on their side but probably not yet enough political heft. “Right now, 12 percent of San Diego County residents are 65 years or older. By 2030 it will be 21 percent,” Schafer says. “It’ll be like Florida is today. Old people will be predominantly white. The young, whose taxes will sustain retiring Baby Boomers, will be predominantly Hispanic. Politically, more will separate Anglo San Diego and non-Anglo San Diego.”

Hispanics are already recognized by political power brokers as a force to be reckoned with. Currently, one in three of the nation’s Latinos live in California. In San Diego County, National City hosts the highest concentration with 59 percent. Chula Vista is nearly 50 percent Latino; Imperial Beach, 40 percent; Vista, 39 percent; Escondido, 39 percent; San Marcos, 37 percent; Oceanside, 30 percent; and the city of San Diego, 25 percent. All of these areas showed big Hispanic growth in the 1990s.

In pockets like Lakeside, non-Hispanic whites still make up the majority, with 57,368 (in 2004) of the total 74,262 population. Hispanics number only 10,793. But by 2030, though non-Hispanic whites will remain the majority, their projected numbers, 63,451, will be a smaller percentage of the projected total population of 97,365, an increase of only 11 percent. Meantime, the “Much of what we call not survive the twenty-first century and much of it will effectively life times, including many if not most European countries.”

Hispanic population will have jumped 93 percent to 20,837.

That doubling reflects the countywide trend over the next quarter-century. Non-Hispanic whites will lose about 1 percent. Whereas the non-Hispanic white-to-Hispanic ratio in the county now stands at 2-1, by 2030 it'll be 1-1.

How many kids are Hispanic families producing? Lots, if you look at the migrant community, especially newly arrived immigrants, largely from Mexico and Central America, who are producing 3.1 babies per female.

On the other hand, the overall Hispanic birthrate is also dropping. In 1995 the average was 2.9 births per female. By 2000 it was down to 2.5. And statewide, according to Dr. Hayes-Bautista, established (non-immigrant) Hispanic women are at the barely sustainable fertility level of 2.0. This drop, he says, is happening all over California, and in Mexico. Still, at the moment they are carrying the load for "replacing" the population, more than, say, Anglos.

But so what? Isn't even talking about these trends a form of racial profiling? These are, after all, the borderlands we all live in. Two civilizations meet here. Who could possibly object to a demographic shift or two? Especially when San Diego County's population, 2,824,259 and rising, is feeling no more than the first zephyrs of the winds of change. But read conservative columnist Mark Steyn's doom-laden polemics, including his book America Alone, for an indication of his fellow conservatives' fears — fears that frame all talk about changing demographics. Steyn sees it as a coming change of ownership of the planet.

"Much of what we call the Western world will not survive the twenty-first century," he writes, "and much of it will effectively disappear within our lifetimes, including many if not most European countries."

Why? Simple. The West, in general, is not having babies. "Replacement" fertility rate — i.e., the number you need to maintain a merely stable population, not getting any bigger, not getting any smaller — is 2.1 babies per woman. Some countries are well above that: the global fertility leader, Somalia, is 6.91, Niger 6.83, Afghanistan 6.78, Yemen 6.75.... Scroll way down to the bottom of the Hot One Hundred top breeders [that's how he puts it, folks] and you'll eventually find the United States, hovering just over replacement rate with 2.07 births per woman."

But the U.S. looks good, Steyn says, compared with, for instance, Canada. Canadians are creating 1.5 children per woman, which means two people are only making 1.5 children, well below replacement rate. "Germany and Austria are at 1.3, the brink of the death spiral; Russia and Italy are at 1.2; Spain 1.1, about half replacement rate. That's to say, Spain's population is halving every generation. By 2050, Italy's population will have fallen by 22 percent, Bulgaria's by 36 percent, Estonia's by 52 percent."

By 2050, Steyn predicts, there will be 100 million more Americans, but 100 million fewer Europeans. "In 1970, there were 4.6 million Italians under five years old. By 2004, there were 2.6 million. And the fewer babies you have today, the fewer grown-ups are around to have babies in 20 years."

But the U.S., and especially San Diego, has a growing Hispanic minority to bolster its fertility figures, to make the county look good in the worldly reproduction stakes.

Schafer says that in San Diego the birthrate for both non-Hispanic blacks and whites is pretty low, but for Asians it's a little higher. They're probably at 2.1, 2.2, compared with Hispanics' 2.4 or 2.5. If you want to see where county birthrates are the highest, geographically, you'd look for areas with concentrations of Hispanic and Asian Americans. And you'd find these mainly in the southern part of the county.

"I-8 is the big dividing line, culturally, ethnically," Schafer says. "In the south parts of the county, the population is generating itself by natural increase. North County's population will grow too, but that will largely be the result of net in-migration, particularly domestic U.S. migration. International migrants will [also] tend to settle in the south part of the county, because it's cheaper."

Indeed, Schafer says, America's Finest is ahead of the curve in the Hispanic reconquista ("reconquest"), as some put it — jokingly, mostly — of the Southwest. "Nationally the Hispanic population is around 12–13 percent of the [general population]. In San Diego it's 25 percent, heading for 38 percent. The U.S. is at about 2.1 births per female [his figure is lower than Steyn's or the CIA's]. That's about replacement level. Ours are higher than Europe's because of our recent influx of immigrants. If we didn't have a lot of immigrants, we'd probably be down around 1.8 or so."

And yet, as these same Hispanic families settle in and assimilate, they'll follow the same trends, Schafer says. "In a modern society like the United States, generally it takes two incomes [to sustain a family]. And once women enter the labor force, the first thing they do is start lowering their fertility drastically. Remember the average [Hispanic] birthrate was 2.9 births per female in 1995? Now it's down to about 2.4. So in less than ten years, we've cut a whole half a child out of the birthrate, which is a big decline."

It's a breezy Sunday afternoon. I emerge from the Santa Fe Depot into the sunlight and cross over Kettner to the line of taxis, most of them orange. I've decided it's time for some unscientific surveying, out in the real world, to address two basic questions: what's causing this general decline in fertility — the stresses of modern society? exhaust fumes? exhaustion? — and who's actually doing this county's heavy lifting, reproduction-wise?

The cab drivers stand in a clump arguing and laughing near that glossy giant fiberglass Luis Jiménez sculpture called Border Crossing/Cruzando el Rio Bravo, which depicts an immigrant carrying a woman and child on his shoulders.

Why not start here?

"Somalia," says one of the drivers when I ask where they're from. Aha. Lucky break. Somalia, which Steyn trumpeted as the land of the highest per capita birthrate in the world, 6.91 births per female.

"Are you married?" I ask Herzi, the driver.

He nods. His wife's name is Faduma.

"How many children do you have?"

"I have seven children."

"Would most Somali men here have that number?"

"No. Some of them have 1, some 2, some 10. But my friends in Somalia have two wives, three wives, four wives, maybe 20 children."

He laughs.

"Here it would be more difficult, because of the law, and because it is too expensive to live."

Herzi rents an apartment, with help. "We have affordable housing. They look at your income, and [they charge less because] I have a lot of children."

"Is it difficult for you with seven children?"

"Yes. It's very difficult. I don't drive the taxi much because [my family] needs time with me. I need time with them, for the children, to go to the playground, school, help them with their homework. If one or two are sick, we must go to the doctor or hospital. When I'm driving the taxi I buy food, I buy clothes, I buy shoes. A lot of work. Until they grow, I will be full-time poor."

"Might you have more children?"

"Well, right now my wife is not pregnant. Having lots [of children] in America, it's very tough. We are not making enough money. In Somalia it is easier. In Somalia we don't pay rent. You have your house. The children are useful there. They look after the animals, if you're in the countryside. Here it's just take care of the children, watching them. How can you have the time for everything? Children, school, doctor, supermarket, watching them every day. You are like a servant."

"So which is the better life? Somalia or San Diego?"

"Oh, Somalia. Right now we have some civil war. But it used to be nice. [Relatives] will help you. You have free hospital, free education. You just have to pay for food, what we can eat. Life's easy!"

"Would you have more than one wife if you were in Somalia?"

"Our religion says you can. If I have enough money to look after each wife equally, I can marry up to four. But I can't do it here."

Actually, I came not just to talk but to catch a cab to meet with this couple I know. No kids, and they don't plan on any. So this is a gift, finding guys for whom family is one of life's Great Imperatives.

I jump into the cab of Herzi's friend Ahmed and head off towards Point Loma.

Ahmed's 31. He has three children.

I ask, "How many more would you like to have?"

"Whatever God gives me."

"Does it depend on how rich you are?"

"No. It doesn't depend on how much you earn. It depends on what God wills. Exactly."

"Is contraception allowed?"

"No. That's against the religion. And 100 percent of us are Muslim."

His wife's name is Armina.

"Is she happy to have children?"

"Yes, of course. Yes."

* * *

What strikes me, as we bounce along Rosecrans, heading for Lytton, is how most of what Ahmed and Herzi are saying would resonate with Barbara de La Torre, a woman I talked to the other day, an Anglo married to a Latino. A friend had put us in contact. De La Torre is an example of "at least one Anglo who's having a big family." She and her husband Dave live in a 1300-square-foot home in Vista with eight kids, ranging from 19 down to 11 months.

"Why so many kids?" I asked.

"We're Catholic, and our marriage vows included being open to having children," she said. "That's part of our faith, and we thought, as the children came, that the joy and blessings of each child confirmed to us the wisdom and the reasoning the Catholic church had in putting that in the marriage vows."

"Didn't you wish for fewer children and more time for a career, for yourself?"

"Oh, no," Barbara said. "Never. I don't regret any, and I would wish we had even more. I have spoken to many people, and many say, 'I wish I had more children'—and by the time they're saying this, they're past the age where they could — but I've never heard anyone say, 'I've had too many.' ”

Isn't stretching the dollar always a strain?

“Amazingly, God gives us just enough to get by. My husband's a land surveyor. Depending on the economy, his work goes up and down — and it seemed like every time work got real slow, and we didn't know when the next paycheck was coming...we would get pregnant. And then, as soon as we got pregnant — I'm not kidding — every single time, something broke through. He got a job. I would love to go back and document how many times [this happened]. It was just amazing. I'm an RN. And I worked all the way up to the sixth child. I'd work a 12-hour night shift once a week. I did it either a Friday or a Saturday night so we didn't have to have babysitting. And then with Johnny, the sixth, I stopped. I love being an RN. It's in my blood. But I much prefer being a full-time mom.”

How hard is it running a large family?

“When I had two kids, that was a lot harder than having lots of kids. Lots of kids is easier. Because they play with each other, and they keep each other busy, and they learn a lot of things, like working together, sharing, cooperation, these types of things that help build the character. I'm 47. I call [11-month-old] Sara 'my little miracle.' The pregnancies are just a little bit harder now. I had medical problems this time, but everything turned out fine.”

there's such a drop in births, and family size, today?

"I think a lot of it has to do with today's society. It's very materialistic. In order for people to get all the things that society tells them they need, it requires a lot of money. And that in turn requires couples to think that they have to restrict the number of children in order to have the big huge house and all the amenities and all the expensive things out there. And I think that all the joys and blessings that come from large families are not put out in society, in television, on radio. It shows only families that are small. People think that's normal and that's how it should be. I don't think people are shown how wonderful large families can be."

I mention Cheaper by the Dozen, the 1950 classic with Myrna Loy (taking Barbara's role) and Clifton Webb (being Dave) and the 2003 remake with Bonnie Hunt and Steve Martin. Or 1968's Yours, Mine, and Ours, with Lucille Ball and Henry Fonda, and its 2005 remake. These are big-family movies that give you a—perhaps temporary—yearning to do what Barbara's living.

"Have you seen them?" I ask.

"No," she says. "I haven't had time."

If God is a big factor in determining some families' size and outlook, demographers say it is earthly issues, and the idea of "modernity," that impact fertility most. "Modernity [has] had a lot to do with the place of women, right?" Schafer says. "If you look at societies that still have fairly high fertility, the place of women in these societies isn't that great. For example: in Moslem countries there's still a pretty high fertility rate. And the woman's role in those societies is still pretty circumspect. If a society is more egalitarian between genders, then you see a lower fertility rate."

And, it may sound obvious, Schafer says, but people tend to have more children where medicine is less sophisticated, where the children might die. And, he says, you see it also in agrarian societies, where children are actually essential, useful, both when they're growing up, as free labor on the farm, and when they're grown, as a means of support. "It's about the 'intergenerational transfer of wealth,'" Schafer says. "It used to be that you had a lot of kids, and after, say, the age of ten, they could start providing wealth for the family, to the mother and father, so there was a transfer of wealth to the adults. Nowadays, I [know] people who have kids who are well into their 20s and these people are still supporting their children. [Here] you just keep giving kids more and more money, and the length [of time] they stay at home is starting to increase."

Yeah. In our society, that "intergenerational transfer of wealth" seems mostly one-way. Where's the quid pro quo? That warm fuzzy feeling that you, Mom and Dad, are keeping the genes alive? It's a pretty expensive fuzzy feeling. In San Diego society, more children might be fun, but the cost is high. Government estimates put the total cost of raising a child at just under $300K if you're higher income, $200K if you make around $40K, and $135K if you make less than that. Whatever, just do the math: if you make $800K in two decades, a quarter of that—per kid—is gone, evaporated. Fuggedaboutit. And for what? The Biological Imperative? An investment driven by some vague survival-of-the-species instinct? A gift of a bit of yourself to "the future"?

Schafer quotes the Nobel Prize-winning Chicago economist Gary Becker, who, back in the late '60s and early '70s, came up with the "economic theory of fertility."

"Becker said that the best way to view children is as a consumer good. That people went out and they 'bought' children. At first he thought that should mean wealthier people would have more kids than not-wealthy people. That [idea] didn't work very well. So he went back and looked at it again. And he said what's happening is that wealthy people aren't 'buying' more children. They're 'buying' better children. So instead of five, they're 'buying' two, and they're putting a whole lot of resources into those two. You 'buy' better children by investing in them. So you invest all these resources into the kids, and the whole idea was that you were increasing the human capital of these children."

Except that, generally, Schafer says, what we're seeing in the United States (and also in Europe) is that instead of producing our own biological next generation, increasing numbers of us are starting to say, "Why bother?" "We're going out and [de facto] inviting people from other countries to come in and do it for us."

Perhaps this is understandable, especially here in California, when, as never before in history, both men and women have such opportunities to go out and Get a Life, a fantastically intellectually and financially stimulating vida loca in this New Rome. Be another Andy Warhol! America's Next Top Model! Arnold! Madeleine Albright II! Barbara Boxer! What's to stop you, as long as someone else can save you the time and trouble of producing and rearing kids? (Of course, birthrates became a problem in the Old Rome, too: That first superpower's patricians took to using lead plumbing, stopped having children, and went mad — or so one ancient urban myth goes. Does that in some way parallel our post-WWII pesticide-drenched food supply?)

Nobody's actually saying, "Let the immigrants have children for me." But maybe the urgency to procreate has declined because careers and social lives are full to the brim. Besides, the world's getting so crowded that not having kids might be doing Mother Earth a favor. Not having kids, you could argue, is in the end helping with the survival of the species.

* * *

Which is why, on that sunny Sunday afternoon, I was riding with Ahmed the Somali taxi driver into the hills of Point Loma, headed for the home of two San Diegans who have taken this route: Double Income, No Kids.

Ahmed dropped me off in a settled, rolling street in one of the town's older and richer neighborhoods. Sunday afternoons, executive dads with shiny white legs trim trees, hose down driveways, get a little dirt under their manicured fingernails. I hear a single mower in the silence.

I'm looking for a green house with two dogs...

Yap yap yap yap!

They see me before I see them. A couple of Yorkies. They're on a veranda enclosed by a foot-high plank. I cross the lawn and climb the steps of this green, clapboard, '50s-looking house. By now the dogs are frothing. They have bared their teeth, upper and lower, daring me to cross the threshold. But their tongues are coming out too. Their tails are wagging. Now they're conflicted: bite or lick?

"Don't worry. They're happy to see you," says this guy. It's Rich McNeely, fit, 50, feisty in a cool way, with a commanding air. He leads me past the dogs' threshing teeth and knee-high leaps into a comfortable living room with white sofas and pale board floors, newly exposed, probably after 50 years under carpets and paint.

I've come to see Rich and his wife Terrie because they're part of Steyn's nightmare: they've decided never to have children. In the hallway, family photos of parents, grandparents, and even earlier generations are carefully displayed on the wall. Black-and-white pictures show Rich's family when they were drilling for...oil? Water? Somewhere in Canada. (Rich says he was brought up in Canada.) Many were taken on wedding days. Everyone stands formally, peering out into a future guaranteed in some way by having kids. And now here's Rich and Terrie in their own colorful wedding picture, at Rose Creek Cottage in Pacific Beach, in 1995. They may have nephews and nieces, but picture-wise, generation-wise, the buck will stop here.

"I've always felt that way about children," says Terrie, a bright-faced lady with rosy apple-cheeks and blue eyes. "I knew when I was four years old that I was going to have a career. I wanted to be a teacher. I wanted everything besides children. Of course, the way we were raised — and this was in the South, Tennessee, Mississippi — girls were supposed to get married and have children. So I surprised my parents. I became a teacher of hearing-impaired children. [Terrie was born with 80 percent loss of hearing in both ears.

Surgery, at age 4 1/2, restored most of it.] I taught for ten years. Before I lost my father, over a year ago now, he told me how courageous I was — and this was a surprise to me, because he brought us up in the '50s, in that mindset of 'girls aren't supposed to have careers.' He couldn't believe that I went out on my own, traveled by myself, long distances, and established myself. He told me how very proud he was of me. They were both proud of me."

But why not have children?

"Because Rich and I didn't want the lifetime responsibility of having children. I love children. We both do. Being around children makes us happy. However, because children take up so much of your time, we wanted to put our time into other things, for us. I've had a teaching career, a writing career, and now a real-estate career. I've always been more career-oriented. We love to travel. When you have children you really have to be home, and be committed to them, and doing everything for them."

I wonder aloud if it was something in her childhood that set Terrie against having kids. "Well, it wasn't the best childhood, because my parents weren't very happy. They were different. Of course they were very loving parents, and they did the best they could. My older sister had six children. All of them now are married and having their own children. And my younger sister has three."

Her sisters kept waiting for Terrie to start her own brood. "They saved their baby things for the longest time, until finally, they said, 'Okay, this is it. Do I keep it longer or get rid of this? What are you going to do?'"

They gave her one last call. "They wanted to clear out their garages, because their children were grown. So I said 'No...' " Terrie laughs. "I really didn't have to think about it. I knew."

Rich comes in and sits down. He's been out in the garage, where his souped-up German KTM off-road bike sits beside a friend's low-rider Bourget. That one does 140 mph. Rich is in the last stage of building his dream garage, with cupboards, computers, tool drawers, and a place to hang out with the TV and a brew.

I ask if they had decided straight off, when they got married in 1995, not to have kids.

"Yes," says Rich. "We talked about it. But I never felt that everything was secure enough to raise children. In my profession...I was all over the place, fixing helicopters, running up to the Northwest Territories of Canada and the Arctic islands, and down in the South Pacific to Pago Pago, Samoa...all related to helicopter maintenance and sales."

In the spring of 1989, he landed a steady job as a mechanic with one of the major airlines at Lindbergh Field. But it didn't make him feel financially secure. "My seniority was pretty low, so you're worried about layoffs happening. For the first ten years, you don't know whether you're going to get laid off or not. It's been the same thing as far as buying real estate goes.

I never felt settled down enough to buy real estate, or to even think about having a family. Relationships were hard enough when I was single, because I was gone away from home so much. Back and forth, in for six weeks, out for two. If you have a place, you could call home and some [other] guy might answer the phone. 'Who are you?' 'Well, I live here. Who are you?' 'Well, I own it.'"

How many Riches are out there, people who in this insecure, short-contract, just-in-time economy never feel settled enough to start a family? Is this — on top of stress and lack of time — the major factor sapping society of its normal population growth?

And then, says Rich, there's the expense factor. "The other thing that bothered me about it, being at the age that we were when we married, was that by the time a child would be ready to go to college, I'd be ready for retirement, and how do you put a child through college on a retirement income?"

Shelby the dog nuzzles up to him. "Children would be great to have. Kids would be useful too, in some ways, once they got old enough. I mean, I'm having to do all my own lawn work and yard work, and I've still got to take the trash out, which I never did like doing even when I was a kid. And one thing that's always bothered me about not having children is the fact that when I pass away, my seed in this world dies. I know that my brother has a male child and a female child, so I guess I can look at that. But that part of it does affect me, and I think that if I was maybe in a different situation than I'm in, I would consider having a child. But with Terrie at her age, we've always been concerned too about the dangers of childbirth."

Has he thought about adopting? "Adopting doesn't...it's not your seed. Other than just the thing of raising a child. My thing is the seed, and the world dies when I die. So adoption is not really something I would consider, although I'm sure that once you have an adopted child, and as long as they're young enough that they accept you as a parent, I think that the nat-

Debra the other dog jumps up for attention. Rich has been careful to point out that the dogs have reserved certain parts of the sofas for themselves, so they can be close to "Mom and Dad." Debra and Shelby, it seems, think of themselves as McNeely kids.

So did his own childhood influence how he feels? "My father and mother grew up in the Depression. They didn't have a pot to piss in or a window to throw it out of. My father grew up on a farm. My mother was the daughter of a schoolteacher. They got divorced when I was so young I don't have any memories of their being together. I lived with my mom until fifth grade. She was on welfare and whatever sustenance the court awarded her from my father. It wasn't easy. Growing up on welfare, we moved around a lot the first five years of my life. And after fifth grade, I moved in with my father and his wife, and she had a child two years older than I am. So there was always a little bit of friction there. My [step] brother had children pretty young. But I was too busy trying to get situated in life to have

It's awfully tough when the sink's clogged up, or whatever, and hubby-bubby's thousands of miles away working on a helicopter in Pago Pago. The McNeelys are by no means alone in their choice. In fact, staying child-free is becoming a movement. People around the country are so sick of being apologetic about not having kids, they've started child-free groups. "No Kidding" and "the Childfree Ring" have blossomed on the Net. Remember the bumper sticker put out by the Zero Population Growth group in the 1970s — "MAKE LOVE, NOT BABIES"? The idea then, and still, is that the world is crowded enough, so having consequence-free fun and doing the world a favor at the same time, by not increasing population gridlock, is a Good Thing. There are increasingly defiant no-nest bumper stickers out there, like, "If I want to hear the pitter-patter of little feet, I'll put shoes on my cat." There are books. Nicki Defago's Childfree and Loving It! Or Baby Not on Board: A Celebration of Life Without Kids, by Jennifer Shawne. Some have drawn parallels between today and the Great Depression, when many Americans also chose not to have children because they couldn't afford them.

But for all that, are childless couples like the McNeelys having the fun their freedom has bought? A Newsweek cover, "No Sex, Please, We're Married," claims that around a fifth — say, 23 million of the 113 million married Americans — don't have sex more than ten times a year. In a 2002 National Opinion Research Center study, married couples said they have sex 68.5 times a year, or a little over once a week. But, hey, ever since Kinsey, "once or twice a week" has been the default answer, hasn't it? And these figures don't separate out childless couples.

I can't bring myself to ask Rich and Terrie the "how often" question. But I do ask if sex is better without having kids to worry about.

Well, sort of.

"I would think that from what I see with other couples, that having children does interfere," Terrie says. "But for us, it's having dogs, allowing our dogs on our bed, to sleep on our bed: that interferes. Because if we start to kiss, Shelby will come in between us. She thinks that she's the dominant female, because I've never interfered with that. I've let her do that. And sometimes I think, as you would with children, 'Oh, if I didn't have them, I'd have more time, for me and my partner.' But then I think, like parents with children, 'I couldn't live without them. They give me so much companionship, and they fulfill that need of nurturing I have.' "

The other consequence Terrie and Rich face is being out of step with other people their age.

"It seems like — I guess this has been another drawback — it's been hard for us to find friends to socialize with who are our age," says Terrie, "because people in their 40s and 50s have children, and those couples want to hang around with couples who [also] have children, so their kids have other children to play with. So it interferes with your social life. You have to be the kind of people who don't need a lot of people around to be happy. We are very content to have all the private times that we have, but of course we still need friends. When people come over, we're ecstatic. And I don't mind people bringing their children over, as long as they're well-behaved."

The paradox is that right when birthrates are set to drop over the next two decades, there's never been a better, safer time in human history to have a baby. Or a better place. San Diego has some of the best facilities in the world to help, from doctors to midwives to doulas — yes, doulas (the word descends from the Greek: “woman’s personal helper”): companions, birthing coaches, who since ancient times have helped mothers through the pregnancy, the birth, and the sometimes emotionally rocky recovery. “We will deliver about 5000 babies this year,” says Kaiser Permanente’s Sylvia Wallace. “Sixty percent Caucasian, 30 percent Latino, and all others in the last 10 percent.”

I search in vain for a maternity ward, with a nursery where I can stand in the middle of hundreds of numbered, bawling babies. Forget it, says Wallace. Except for, maybe, Camp Pendleton, maternity wards are gone. Even down at their Medical Center in Mission Valley, where most of Kaiser patients’ babies will be born, it all happens in labor and delivery suites. Forget icy operating rooms. Forget Dad pacing up and down the waiting room. Whole families can come right into the birthing suite, armed with video cams and Kleenexes for the big moment. Umbilical cord blood can be frozen and stored against a serious illness later in the child’s life. And now the kid remains in the room, bonding with Mom (and vice-versa) and Dad from that first moment. And most likely, Mom’ll be home tomorrow.

“We have made amazing advances in the last 30 years,” Wallace says. “Back then, a mother’s average stay would be ten days. Now it’s one to two. Or, if the baby’s delivered by C-section, up to four.” And age is no longer the predominant factor. “We’ve had that are born at a pound." And age? It seems you can have a kid almost literally at any stage of life. "Women are birthing babies from age 12 to age 70," she says. "Over the last few years there's been a bit of a phenomenon of grandmothers carrying their daughters' fetuses to term. The whole surrogacy thing has just completely changed how we birth babies."

Keith Dunn, high school senior, drama major: "I think two or three kids. A dozen would be financially hard. Mothers usually have to work. They don't have time to look after a lot of small children. Anyway, I think we're overpopulated."

Kelly Walsh, high school senior, already wearing her future alma mater's blue and yellow sweatshirt, UCLA: "I'm not really sure at this point, because I'm not a very good little-kid person, to my parents' dismay. I have an older sister and younger brother. My mom was one of four, and my dad was one of eight. He's Roman Catholic, Irish. Today's life makes it difficult to have a large family. Just look at the cost of housing."

Linda Galaz, high school senior, about to study to be a nutritionist: "I would have two or three kids. In my family, there's only me and my sister, and I see bigger families: My aunt has six kids, and they have always had a lot of dramas. My sister and I have been really close. America. Look at cars. They're made for four, right? I was born here, but my family is originally from Mexico, rural Sinaloa. They had big families down there. My grandma comes from a family of 12. Today, having kids kind of interrupts your life. It seems like you have kids just to have kids. To reproduce. It sounds very bad, but what use are kids really? The planet is overpopulated, so why should we be encouraging people to reproduce? But I want to have kids, and when I'm young. Because my parents had us when they were young, and now they're in their early 40s. We get along. We're kind of friends. We go traveling together. So I would like that. Today's women are deciding their own future, getting their careers, being strong... I don't want to say [having kids] is the last thing on our mind, but it's not at the top of our 'to do' list."

Bottom line, should San Diego's settled non-Hispanic majority be alarmed that the county's only real growth will soon be coming from the high birthrates of its newest, not always legal Latino immigrants?

Steyn has something to say about this. "If you think that a nation is no more than a 'great hotel' (as Canadian novelist Yann Martel approvingly described his own country), you can always slash rates and fill the empty rooms — for as long as there are any would-be lodgers left out there to move in. But if you believe a nation is the collective, accumulated wisdom of a shared past, then a dependence on immigration alone for population replenishment will leave you lost and diminished."

"Shared past?" counters David Hayes-Bautista, director of the UCLA Center for the Study of Latino Health and Culture. "Look at the 19th Century. Latinos and Anglos had a shared past." Hayes-Bautista says that our recent Anglo-culture-dominated California is the aberration. "In L.A., for instance, up till about 1870, almost all children, irrespective of their ethnicity, were bilingual. It wasn't until after 1870, when the transcontinental railroad finally went through [and brought an avalanche of Anglos ignorant of California's bicultural history] that you started to see some kids who no longer bothered to learn Spanish."

If we have a shared past, says Hayes-Bautista, we're going back to the future. Anglos and others should embrace a golden-skinned, bilingual future driven by those high-birthrate Latino families. Besides, he says, we will need them.

"My 1988 book, The Burden of Support, was the first to project that by 2030 Latinos would be around about 40 percent of the state's population. But, more importantly, that the older population, the Baby Boomer population, which is around 85 percent non-Hispanic white, would increasingly be dependent on an increasingly Latino labor force for income support, pensions, Medicare, etc. So that there is this intergenerational link — even though many Baby Boomers don't want to believe it — that it's in their interest for that Latino labor force to be as productive as possible. Because if they're not, then the pensions and the medical care of the Baby Boomers can't be funded."

Why do non-Hispanic whites have such low rates of birth?

It's not an Anglo-Hispanic macho contest, says Hayes-Bautista. "The birthrate in Mexico has dropped off tremendously too, as it becomes more urbanized, as you get rises in income and education. With every country, you go through what's called the 'epidemiological transition.' That is, in preindustrial societies you have high mortality, so you have to have a lot of babies, just so a few survive to adulthood.

But as countries begin to industrialize, they put in some basic measures for water, sewage — really simple, not-too-expensive infra-structural stuff. You have a period of tremendous growth, because people haven't realized yet that you don't need ten babies to have three achieve adulthood. But after about a generation or two, people understand. 'I only need to have three babies, because all three will arrive at adulthood.' So that's called 'going through the epidemiological transition.' From a high-mortality, high-fertility population to low mortality and low fertility. The U.S. was one of the first countries to go through that. Take out the Latino population, and we would look just like Italy or Great Britain or Germany or Japan. We'd be imploding. We'd be losing population.

"The Latino population [here] is coming from a country that is partially through its epidemiological transition — though not completely. In Mexico, communicable diseases are still among the top ten causes of death. For instance, very few die of tuberculosis in the U.S. But overall, the fertility rate of Mexico is dropping. It used to be very, very high. It's dropping much more quickly in the urban areas. However, our immigration tends to draw from the rural areas, where it is still a little bit higher. Latino fertility in California has been dropping since 1992. That was the high point.

"Classically, Latinos have had higher birthrates compared to any other population group. You sometimes hear some of these folks complain that 'Latinos are breeding like rabbits,' and I have to remind them that the Latino birthrate today is identical to the non-Hispanic white birthrate during the baby boom of the 1950s and '60s. Identical! It's just that the non-Hispanic white birthrate has fallen tremendously. It's way below replacement. So it's not that Latinos are having babies at unprecedented levels. They're having babies at the level of your parents."

Hayes-Bautista says that one of the things that distinguishes Latino population growth in California from any other group is that there have been eight waves of migration from Mexico to California, starting in 1769. "So unlike, say, the European immigrant experience, where you'd have one wave — just one — then you could clearly see their children and their grandchildren, for Latinos in California it's a very different demographic. After every wave, we get a [nativist, Anglo] reaction. It goes on fairly regular 20-year cycles."

Professor Stuart Hurlbert is an unlikely Minuteman. But, like other Minutemen he sometimes patrols with, he doesn't mince words.

"No country can survive if it has an economic system based on the continuous massive importation of cheap low-skilled labor. No country can survive, either as a cultural entity, or environmentally. If you're massively importing large amounts of cheap labor, then whatever country you're importing that labor from is going to take over."

Hurlbert is a biology prof at SDSU.

"Generally speaking, [immigrants] are going to be poor people, they are going to have more kids, and that's going to exacerbate the effect, because they'll be importing individuals who are going to give birth to large families. Importing the same number of immigrants from China and India would be much better, from that point of view. Because they tend to have families about the same size as Anglos do."

Hurlbert backs the city of Escondido's attempt to force landlords to evict illegal immigrants. He turns out at the demonstrations. He lobbies presidential candidates to be tough on immigration. He's fluent in Spanish, has spent years teaching in South America, and teaches and researches biology. But like Zorro, the fic-

For years he has worked through zero-growth organizations like CAPS, Californians for Population Stabilization. "We were idealists back in the '60s, trying to get America to set an example to the world in the fight against the population explosion," he says. "If we couldn't control our own population, how could we lecture to other countries? I'm just carrying on the same fight."

And donning his biology hat, Professor Hurlbert insists that our land can't take any more pressure from population. A reduction would benefit the land, he says. "We can restore our coasts and canyons. We can pull back, give the land some breathing space. We can give our coastal waters a break from human outflow."

And with the graying of California, its coming dependence on a largely Latino workforce? "We just have to downsize. Develop an economic system that works well with a grayer group."

He doesn't like Hayes-Bautista's idea of the bicultural "Latin-Yankee" California. "I think bilingual/bicultural societies are, first of all, extremely expensive. Everything in Canada has to be produced in two languages. I think there's nothing more foolish. There are countries like Switzerland which have inherited that situation. But to try to become multicultural and multilingual as a matter of policy would be a disaster."

* * *

Blanca Bruyere lives in a nice house in Coronado with her businessman husband and three children.

She would have had at least four children if she could have, if not a family you'd call "large" down around Mexico City, where she was born. But she firmly believes that the pending birthrate revolution here is inevitable. "You just know that if there are Latino women, they're going to have kids. So there is going to be a time where Latino women's kids will take over, because, for sure, they will have more than one or two children."

And yes, she believes, the coming Latino majority will change San Diego and California, but in subtle ways. Her branch of a well-to-do Cuernavaca family moved to California when she was nine years old. Now she is married to an Anglo and runs a bilingual household. "I have lived both cultures," she says. "I think if Latinos have an influence, it will be to add a culture of family. Families will be warmer, more connected, more extended."

She does believe the U.S. lifestyle discourages larger families. "Insurance, college, medication, homes, everything. You cannot manage... I always say, food is not a problem. The problem is, you have to go to the dentist, you have to go to the orthodontist. All those things are very expensive. College is very expensive. But people here want to have the lifestyle, they want to have the house, the travel. That's why they can only afford to have one or two children. A lot of people I know whose children go to school with my kids have one or two children. That's it. And yet my nanny had ten kids. She comes from the country. She's nearly 70. And they were so poor! But I love when she tells me how they went and picked fruit and went to the river to bathe and to wash clothes. She said, 'We didn't have dolls, but my mom used to make us rag dolls. Everything was made from scratch. Coffee, tortillas, everything.' And I don't ever hear sadness in her voice. I hear a happy life. I really think it was a beautiful lifestyle, a country life."

Here in San Diego, she's nostalgic for Norman Rockwell's America. Its flavor was more akin to the Latino ethos. "I do think that Americans in the '50s had a beautiful life. Culture and family orientation. The moment the women started having feminist rights, 'I want to be equal to men'... I don't want to sound bad, but I definitely think that it has gotten a little out of hand, where I as a woman have the same rights as a man. It's just sad, because it does make a family lifestyle go down. Twenty years ago, when I was growing up, you went to college, but then, usually, we got married, you had kids, and that was your responsibility as a woman. The kids and the house. One thing I will tell my kids is, I think it's important that they make something of themselves, but to always know that if they're going to have kids, their kids should come

She says most Mexican kids stay with their parents until they marry. Or at least until they're 21. "With Latino parents, one of the most important things is the bond that you have. And we were always very close, even with our cousins. I go back [to Cuernavaca] and I bond. My kids are bilingual. They go to Mexico and see my upbringing, see the unity of our family. And I think that's important. You came into this life with nothing and you're going to leave it with nothing, so material stuff really doesn't sum up life for Mexicans. It's family for us. Family is the most important thing."

ican, and probably Chinese flags, way back, and ended up with their culture swamped, their lives restricted to the least fertile sections of the county. Especially during the last 150 years.

"Birthrates? Ours went as low as they could go. Around 1900, we were down to 300, maybe 400 people," he says. "We had to have large families, because so many died of disease and violence from settlers. It was horrible. Now, we're up to 3000-4000. By 2030, we'll probably be around 10,000."

Up in the Campo reservation, to which Connolly's branch of the largely coastal tribe was relegated, big families are still seen as a kind of insurance. Connolly has 3 children, but his brother has 11. "My grandmother had 10 children," he says. "Five survived childhood." It's hard to realize he is talking about San Diego County. His advice to soon-to-be minority Anglos? "Remember, this was never just an Anglo domain, or a Spanish domain. We have to learn to share, not just land but ways. Be interested in others' language, cultures, knowledge of the land. That's the way forward." ■

L O N G - A G O S A N D I E G O

SIGHTINGS OF LOU SAN DIEGO: TRIAL AND ERROR (Part Three)

On October 16, 1892, someone snuck onto the Geyser farm on Big Mesa, an escarpment overlooking the Otay River, and clubbed John and Wilhelmina Geyser to death. A constable arrested José Gabriel, a scar-faced Native American who'd worked odd jobs on local ranches for years. Gabriel denied wrongdoing and said two others committed the murders. Although bloody clubs at the scene suggested multiple felons, and many questioned the arrest, the San Diego Sun labeled Gabriel "Indian Joe" and closed the case long before the trial. The San Diego Union accused the "blood-thirsty savage" of the "most fiendish, horrible, and cold-blooded crime" ever committed in San Diego County.

On Sunday, December 4, the jury reached a verdict: Gabriel guilty of first degree murder. There was no mention of punishment.

José Gabriel went back to county jail and was locked in a cell next to Sam Smith. Smith was captain of the schooner Lou, and until the night before a "sober, industrious, and peaceable" man, but he had hacked George Neale, Jr., several times with an axe and then, as the boy pleaded for his life — "For God's sake, Sam don't kill me!" — shot him.

Two unthinkable crimes in two months: Smith must have snapped. San Diegans almost did as well.

That night, bands of vigilantes clustered on street corners, many armed with Winchesters. Shouts of "hang them" echoed down the streets, mixed with smashing bottles emptied of liquid fortitude, the thump of clubs against lampposts, and the rabid incoherence of a mob.

Onlookers assembled near the jail, wanting to observe the assault at a safe distance. From inside, defenders couldn't tell who had come to fight and who just to gawk.

"Let them hang me," Smith told a reporter. "I'm 64 years old and can't live many years longer anyway."

Deputy Sheriff A.K. Cravath ordered the added security officers to fire if threatened. Mounted police patrolled the streets. Because the moon was so bright, crowds dispersed before police could recognize anyone. Many vowed to regather when George's father, attorney George H. Neale, came home from San Francisco. They could wait a night or two, they said. Made no difference.

The next day, as police searched the Lou and found the hatchet in the captain's gear locker, George Neale arrived. He urged San Diegans to let the law take its course. His reputation for fairness mollified one of the most irate mobs in local history.

Neale, Willie Silbery, who was on the Lou when the murder took place, and Willie's father made the first of several unsuccessful searches for the body (a corpse was discovered near Ensenada on December 14, but feeding sharks made it impossible to identify).

In the days that followed, the Union demanded the scaffold: "Captain Smith has been a man of considerable education and means." Therefore, the editorial urged, "little stock should be taken in the plea of insanity, which is the last resort in cases of this kind. A man who can converse so intelligently...is certainly endowed with enough common sense to know that the cold-blooded butchery of a 16-year-old boy is a crime deserving of no excuse.

"What shall be done with these fiends in human form, who delight in the agony of their fellows? Ask any of the men you meet...and the reply is the same."

As a security measure, the sheriff denied reporters access to Smith. One, however, snuck in. "The murderer is all broken down and wept freely over the result of his acts," he wrote, "yet persists in saying that the boys were plotting against him." Smith said vigilantes could shoot or hang him. He didn't care which.

On December 5, Smith wrote his confession in a shaky hand. He committed the "terrible deed in a moment of frenzy, through fear of great personal danger." Young Neale and Willie Silbery, he was convinced, had been conspiring. The Lou had been anchored off Whiterock, 225 miles south of San Diego, and the boys broomed the cliffs for guano, hauling 50 pound sacks onto the skiff, then onto the Lou. They'd worked for Smith before, unloading cargo, and according to Smith "knew the weight of the packages they had to handle." But it was "such slow work," Willie said later, the boys began to think of home.

When George asked him how much longer they'd be at sea, according to Willie, Smith said, "Quite a while."

QUOTATIONS

1. San Diego Union: "George [Neale, Jr.] had a passion for the sea, and was a fine mariner, even for his tender years."

2. San Diego Union: Smith "is said by neighbors to have brooded over money matters and of late and has been acting in a childish or peevish manner."

3. San Diego Union: "All bear witness that the deed, if committed by him, was done under the stress of peculiarly great provocation, such as would lead any man to do it."

In his confession, Smith claims he said only eight or nine days, since that was all the provisions they had left. Then the skiff disappeared. Smith grew wary: "I did not entertain any idea of killing until I considered my own life threatened."

The Lou sailed back to San Diego. While on watch north of the Coronados, Smith wanted to secure a hatchet. The ship had two, both missing. He peeked down the foc's'le and saw a handle sticking over Willie's bunk. He woke Willie, asked how the hatchet got there. Willie didn't know.

A "sudden frenzy" seized Smith, he wrote. He grabbed the hatchet and stormed to the cabin. He "struck George, in his berth," dragged him up on deck and threw him, dazed and bleeding, overboard.

"I intended to kill them both, but when I came to my senses I shrank from the awful deed. I look with horror on the horrid act," but must "submit to my fate. Would that death had overtaken me before I committed the horrible deed."

For his protection, and because murder at sea was a federal offense, on December 6 authorities moved Smith to Los Angeles to stand trial before the district court. When he arrived, Smith asked his jailer how long before his case would be heard. The man, named Russell, estimated six months.

"I won't be here," Smith replied, "don't think I can live that long."

On October, 1893, the court requested notarized depositions. The defendant's interrogatories pushed for an insanity plea. Otherwise, how could a moral man, who never drank or quarreled and was beloved by all, in an instant butcher a 16-year-old boy?

Smith's 73-year-old brother, William C. Smith, replied that Samuel, whom he hadn't seen since 1856, was a "good, obedient, and industrious person with a mild temper, but never very brilliant."

William claimed that their maternal grandfather, Samuel Copley, "was insane, also his mother's sister, Rachel, and his mother was insane and died insane....a great many of his relatives who were descendants of his grandfather were subject to temporary spells of insanity."

Cross-interrogatory for the plaintiff demanded specifics. The mother's attacks were "somewhat violent as I remember," William replied. "During [her] spell in 1829 she endeavored to throw [Samuel, age six months] out of the window and she had to be tied down."

"His brain was then affected," wrote Elizabeth Nebhut, a sister in Georgia whom Smith supported financially. She hadn't seen him in 37 years.

Two other brothers claimed they never noticed "peculiarities," and knew of hereditary insanity "from hearsay only."

The trial began December 11, 1893, Judge Erskine M. Ross presiding over a packed courtroom. The pros-and at least once on the head with a $1.50 hatchet, then heaved Neale overboard.

prosecution's case was so strong, it didn't need this evidence).

J. Marion Brookes, Esq., a dapper attorney known for theatrics, began his defense. Smith was temporarily insane when he committed the deed, said

Brookes, and the boys "wrought [him] up to the pitch of irresponsibility."

Smith took the stand.

"Are you addicted to strong drink?" Brookes asked. "No sir."

Asked if he remembered the deed, Smith said no. His mind, he claimed, had gone blank.

Smith left the stand. For the remainder of the trial he sat silent, wrote the L.A. Times, "intently watching everything.... If his mental faculties were deranged, he did not evince any signs."

During the afternoon session, after witnesses testified to Smith's mental instability, Brookes put himself on the stand. Under oath, he complained that he was never able to get a "tangible" picture of the crime from Smith. The defendant always seems "wholly oblivious to the consequences."

Brookes questioned four doctors. Each declared that, judging by Smith's behavior, he must have been "suffering from a mania at the time."

During cross-examination, U.S. Attorney W.J. Hunsaker challenged the experts. If he was insane, Hunsaker asked, how could Smith talk so rationally about the murder?

Three of the four doctors stuck to their statements. The fourth, Dr. K.D. Wise, confessed, "I could not form an opinion, under the conditions given, whether he was sane or not."

Hunsaker built his case. One San Diegan after another swore they'd never known Smith to have an "unsound mind."

Hunsaker put young Willie Silbery on the stand. Though the murder had happened a year earlier, Willie still couldn't look at Smith. As the boy recalled the brutal event, the L.A. Times reporter observed: "Old Capt. Smith seemed yet to hear the dying cry of the lad ringing in his ears, for when Silbery repeated the words, he almost visibly shuddered and sank lower in his chair."

The government closed its case. Judge Ross instructed the jury that the law provided only one punishment for convicted murderers on the high seas: death by hanging. Therefore Smith must be found guilty or not. If there were reasonable doubt "that the defendant was insane, or temporarily insane, when he committed the murder," they should acquit.

The jury retired at 5:00 p.m. At 9:50, they asked for a clarification: could they have a verdict of guilty and fix the degree of the crime?

Judge Ross said no.

At 10:25, they jury came back. The clerk asked: "Gentlemen of the jury, have you a verdict?"

"We have," replied foreman E.B. Thompson.

"What is the verdict?"
"Not guilty."

Smith didn't move. He showed neither elation nor relief. If anything, some observers detected disappointment. Smith left the courtroom. No one shook his hand or slapped him on the back. He walked down the corridor, wrote the L.A. Times, "with his hands deep in his pockets and his body bent forward.... He got his hat and went out upon the street into the damp air a free man."

AFTERMATH

George Neale, Sr., died May 25, 1897. His obituary in the Union says that the "upright in all things, charitable and generous man never recovered from the death of his son."

Gabriel was sent to San Quentin. He was the first prisoner in the original building, Stones cell block. Although Father Antonio Ubach and others begged Governor H.H. Markham for commutation, Gabriel was executed March 3, 1893. To the end, he maintained his innocence.

The court ordered Samuel Smith to stay with relatives in Oregon. He promised to move to Missouri, but didn't. He remained in Los Angeles, living on charity. In 1896 Smith returned to San Diego. Although the Union declared him "hopelessly unbalanced mentally" at the time, Smith took up fishing again, though he preferred waters north of the county line.

In the first decades of the 20th century, San Diego attorneys often found work by walking into a courtroom on trial day. Herbert H. Neale, older brother of the slain George, had become such a prominent attorney he attended trials just to observe. On October 8, 1915, he entered the courthouse where Judge T.O. Lewis presided over the murder trial of young Estaquito Villalovos. The previous June, Villalovos had gone on a spree with an old mariner. They had a fierce argument in front of the seaman's waterfront shack.

Villalovos beat his companion to death with a potato masher. The old mariner was Captain Samuel C. Smith.

been living on past her mortal coil in me and countless others for years (we, too, are shuffling off), continuing to quietly nurture us, characteristically expressed in one of her countless poems, "On the Need to Be Nobody." Judith's style was not her style, but there were many similarities.

I'm sorry I didn't get to know Judith as well, but I felt lucky to have been touched by one (make that five — way over my quota). LoVerne went to Berkeley too, even joined MENSA, but was bored by the boorishness. Thence to Alaska (with 50 cents in her pocket, arrived with no more, spent it all on a room, and went to bed without supper), at a time when most women who undertook that journey alone were pretty painted up — she liked her body just the way it was, thank you very much!

LoVerne was the unofficial Poet Laureate of Ocean Beach, was not much for awards, but hell, the girl was published when she was 15! I suspect that Judith might have known her. Pity if she didn't.

Great editors are as priceless as they are rare.

P.S. Note to editor's in-terns: Honesty and passion do not constitute anger — honest! And broken rules have cutting edges. These are crucial distinctions.

Say No!

SAY WHAT? I SHOULD SAY SO! After reading the "Say What?" articles every week, I find myself wondering why such negative, nasty, and downright cruel words and ideas are deserving of their own article. Isn't there anything better to write about than college students making up "code words" describing middle-aged women in unflattering pants? SAY WHAT? is right, Reader.

understands the meaning of "question authority." I taught my children to question authority because sometimes it's wrong. If the Germans had questioned their officers, perhaps the Holocaust wouldn't have happened. If my daughter hadn't questioned authority, Craig Peyer would have killed her. She was stopped on Mercy Road several months before Cara Knott was killed, and he wanted her to go under the bridge, and she didn't. She said, "Just slide my ticket through the top edge of the window — my family is expecting me." That is the meaning of questioning authority. It doesn't mean defy, it means question.

I've worked very hard all my life, and I have a Question Authority sticker on the back of my car. I worked until I was disabled, and I still do laundry and simple chores for my family, even though I'm a cripple. "Question authority" means follow your moral dictates. If someone tells you to do something and it doesn't ring true to you, question that. I hope that Ollie learns the semantic difference between "question" and "defy."

Tim Is Gone

Being an avid weekly reader of the Reader, I have noticed your story string regarding murder in our community ("The Sarcastic Killer," Cover Story, August 2, and "Man Brings Lover Roses," Cover Story, August 9). Most recently, Normal Heights was rocked by a nonchalant murder. Tim, a local resident, walked out of a local establishment, approached his car, and while getting in, a stranger approached him demanding his wallet. Tim complied but was riddled with bullets, as was his friend, who survived. To date the assailant is free, roaming our streets. The mystery is, who killed Tim, a vibrant part of our community?

In an age when terror is omnipresent, this story needs to be told to help the San Diego community not only delve into healing but start proactive efforts to stop senseless murders. This victim's life, loves, and accomplishments impacted our local society, yet his life was ended in a senseless act that rocked our community.

Nobody Needs A Gun

Somebody has taken notice that a killing by a gun is happening every day now here in San Diego. Wow ("The Sarcastic Killer," Cover Story, August 2, and "Man Brings Lover Roses," Cover Story, August 9).

When one of my sons was three years old, he asked me, "Mommy, why are there gun shops?" I simply replied that there are some very stupid people in this world. We do not need to hunt for food. And hunting as a sport is just sick. I have not heard or read of any person saving their life by shooting a potential intruder. A gun in the home is only used for suicide, the death of a spouse, or in the hands of a child, the death of whom-ever. I won't be voting this next election. I don't hear any of the candidates talking about gun control. Nobody needs a gun. Drive-by shootings by gutless punks could not happen if there were not so many guns out there. We really are one sick country. As a woman, I would not even date a man who is pro-gun. Is this country run by the NRA? Sick. Sick. Sick. The right to bear arms was written a long time ago. We need to get rid of that Amendment.

Reunion Truth

We appreciate the mention of the Tell-Tale Hearts' upcoming shows in the "Blurt" section of the August 9 issue, entitled "Tale to Be Told." Unfortunately, the old adage about there being no such thing as bad publicity does not always ring true.

The article left the impression that over the years Mike has somehow been an obstacle to a reunion of the group. Twenty years have passed since the band broke up and 13 since we last shared a stage. In private, Mike, as have all of us, has always left the possibility for a reunion open. We agreed, however, that because the group was such an important part of our lives and has never gained the respect it deserved from the media, we wanted to wait for an appropriately dignified opportunity. Our good friend Steve Kader did not engineer anything. His offer last year was turned down because Bill was unavailable. Several obstacles, both personal and geographical, have at times made considering a reunion impossible, but no individual band member was ever to blame; we felt the time and circumstance were right for us now.

Furthermore, the writer of the article sent us a list of questions, which we mutually agreed to answer playfully. It is unfortunate that our attempts at humor were used to give the impression that money was a factor in our decision to reunite and that the prospect of "a little extra cash" caused Mike to "change his mind." The Tell-Tale Hearts has never been a profit-motivated venture. In fact, the small fees we will be paid will barely cover the expenses of new equipment (including a new drum set), practice-space rental fees, and multiple airline fares to allow Bill to both rehearse and play the shows. Given the time, effort, and energy required by five men in their 40s who have careers and families to participate in such an undertaking, it is nonsense to believe that anything other than a love for our fans, each other, and music could be a motivating factor in our reunion.

Since our breakup, we have heard from thousands of fans from all over the world, many of whom have formed bands which cite us as their primary influence. Our songs have been played and recorded by groups in Sweden, Spain, England, Australia, Japan, Mexico, Italy, and Brazil. We are proud of our individual and collective accomplishments as well as the respect and recognition our fans have given us. We have greatly enjoyed reconnecting, reminiscing, and playing together again. Our shows in September will be a unique opportunity for us to play for all of our old friends, as well as for those who were either too young or lived too far away to see us then. The Casbah and Adams Avenue Street Fair shows are the only two planned, and because it might be some time before we play together again, there are people traveling from as far away as Belgium to see us. We invite all of our fans, new and old, to the shows.

Don, how long ago was it when you and I talked about naked short selling? You had written some articles about it, and commented to me that "an entire biotech park" in San Diego disappeared. I'll never forget the comment of a Carolyn Harris, an attorney for one of the firms.... "We went to the NASD. We thought they'd help us!!!" It is the same SEC/NASD that oversaw that debacle, protected the fat cats, and threw everybody under the bus, that Gary Aguirre is talking about. I hope you saw his Hedgeworld interview. He lumped all the problems together. You were on this in 2001. Stay with it. Stop them, or we all lose, and I mean lose big. Guys like Aguirre and Patrick Byrne are American heroes and should be celebrated. The regulators that allowed this disaster should be incarcerated, and they will be.

And you get to do it all...

UCSD's Herbert Marcuse Remembered

Herbert Marcuse was the single most famous person who ever taught at [University of California San Diego], and there was no living connection to him, no evidence of Marcuse having been there," says Professor Andrew Feenberg. "The university had done its best to forget its most famous scholar."

Feenberg was Marcuse's undergraduate student from 1965 to 1967 and completed his doctoral thesis under Marcuse in 1973. "Marcuse was a serious scholar as well as a Marxist intellectual. He was quite inspiring for students, and he believed he was part of an intellectual community at UCSD and that debates within that community mattered."

LOCAL EVENTS

On Friday, August 24, Feenberg will discuss The Essential Marcuse: Selected Writings of Philosopher and Social Critic Herbert Marcuse, which he coedited with William Leiss. Marcuse criticized capitalism and communism. The German-American philosopher believed in Marx's concept of socialism: "From each according to his abilities, to each according to his needs."

"A lot of people can't figure out why this urban intellectual was in La Jolla," says Douglas Kellner, professor of philosophy at University of California Los Angeles and himself a Marcuse biographer. "He lived the contradictions of the bourgeois life. He liked luxury; he liked the good life. He saw that as an ideal for everyone. Marcuse was a materialist — he wanted to maximize happiness and freedom. Happiness means material satisfaction; he was also a Freudian, so it also means sexual needs. But," Kellner continues, "he's for basic needs and not for surplus needs. I've heard stories of people going into grocery stores in La Jolla with him — he was overwhelmed by the amount of laundry detergent. He thought there was an excess of things; he talked about the excess of a society of abundance. There's just too much."

Marcuse's favorite animal was the hippopotamus, and he often visited the hippo enclosure at the San Diego Zoo. He kept many animal figurines in his office, 20 to 30 of which were depictions of hippos. "He thought the hippopotamus was a metaphor for all sorts of things," says Kellner. "He saw it as the wonder in nature, that nature could produce something so extravagant."

In 1996, Danish filmmaker Paul Alexander Juutilainen produced a documentary called Herbert's Hippopotamus, about the philosopher's last years at UCSD. In the film, one of Marcuse's students says, "[Marcuse] would find the university functioning as a research lab for the Department of Defense to be far more offensive than the university functioning like a fat and absurd hippopotamus that would glean knowledge from one arena and take that knowledge and spread it in another."

According to Juutilainen, as communicated by most of the testimonies he collected in his film, the university — backed by then-governor Ronald Reagan, vice president Spiro Agnew, and the American Legion — wanted to keep Marcuse from influencing any more students with his "communist" ideas (as Reagan called them, confusing Marcuse's pro-socialist stance with communism, which Marcuse openly criticized). The American Legion sent a letter to the university's chancellor offering to buy out the remainder of Marcuse's contract for $20,000. Marcuse received letters threatening his life, one of which was signed "The Ku Klux Klan."

Marcuse supported students in controversial demonstrations against the war in Vietnam and for civil rights. His most famous affiliation was with Angela Davis, a 26-year-old professor at UCLA who was forced into hiding when the FBI added her to its "Ten Most Wanted" list.

"Herbert Marcuse taught me that it was possible to be an academic, an activist, a scholar, and a revolutionary," Davis said in a televised interview. Marcuse was integral in a student demonstration led by Davis in support of naming the newly built third college on the UCSD campus "Lumumba Zapata," after a Congo revolutionary and a Mexican revolutionary, respectively. During the demonstration, students broke into the administration building to overtake the registrar's office. Marcuse was the first person to occupy the building, followed by the marching students. After the demonstration, the chancellor announced that someone had to step forward and pay for the damaged door. Days later, a money order was sent to the chancellor, anonymously, for the full amount. "[Marcuse] recognized the principle that the university's property should be respected," says Feenberg. "It was necessary to break the door, and it was necessary to repair it."

just before the time of sunset. The moon lies very close to Earth's shadow at that moment. In fact, later that night the moon will drift into the shadow itself, thereby undergoing a total lunar eclipse. For any given location on Earth, eclipses of this type can be seen on average about every two years, though this particular eclipse seems perversely timed to maximally disturb the sleep cycle of anyone in our part of the world wishing to view it. The following events noted will take place during the early-morning hours of Tuesday, August 28: Partial lunar eclipse begins at 1:51 a.m. Pacific Daylight Time, with Earth's shadow appearing to take a small bite out of the moon. During the next hour, the moon will gradually drift farther into that shadow. Total eclipse, or "totality," begins at 2:52 a.m. and ends at 4:23 a.m. During the long period of totality, you should still be able to spot the moon — greatly dimmed from its normal full-moon brightness and tinted orange or red owing to a small fraction of the sun's light streaming and refracting through Earth's atmosphere. Use binoculars or a telescope for a better view of the ghostlike totally eclipsed moon. The closing, partial stages of the eclipse will take place between 4:23 a.m. and 5:24 a.m. Having returned to its normal full-moon shape, the fading orb will sink to the west horizon and set at around 6:30 a.m., very close to time of sunrise.

Grunion will be active again next week (Wednesday–Friday, August 29–31), roughly during the hours of 11 p.m. and 2 a.m., following the nocturnal high tide. The small, silvery grunion tend to spawn on wide, gently sloping beaches such as Silver Strand, Mission Beach, Pacific Beach, La Jolla Shores, and Del Mar. California law allows the taking of grunion in summer (except in those areas classified as ecological preserves) by those possessing a state fishing license. The grunion must be caught by the hands only and should be eaten (not wasted).

A GUIDE TO UNEXPECTED SAN DIEGO AND BEYOND | BY JERRY SCHAD

Guarded by freeways and busy streets, the trails around Puddingstone Reservoir in Bonelli Regional Park are hardly the place to get away from it all — unless, perhaps, you arrive early on a Saturday or Sunday morning. During those quiet times you can get a sense of how peaceful a spot this was before World War II. In those distant days, the reservoir nestled among serene hills overlooking a patchwork quilt of citrus groves.

Puddingstone Reservoir, North Shore

Today, the reservoir and surrounding Los Angeles County-operated regional park are quite popular, with attractions such as the Raging Waters aquatic amusement park, a golf course, acres of RV camping and picnic grounds, horse stables, hot tubs, and even motorboat drag races on occasion.

Although many of the trails at Bonelli Park were designed to serve equestrians, they are popular with hikers, mountain bikers, and leashed dogs, too. About 14 miles of dirt roads and bridle trails lace the outer perimeter of the park, not even including some pedestrian and bike paths that follow parts of the reservoir’s shoreline.

To get to Bonelli Regional Park, exit the 57 freeway at Via Verde, just north of Interstate 10, and turn right toward the park’s main entrance. Pay the day-use fee, ask for a trail map of the park, and then find a parking spot. You can circumnavigate the park by at least two different routes. One, about seven miles in length, takes you south, underneath Via Verde by way of a tunnel and onto a grassy slope. Eventually, you reach the top of the slope (elevation 1200 feet) where there’s a fine view over the Puente Hills to the south and across flat lands stretching interminably east toward San Bernardino and Riverside. After following that ridge, generally east for the next mile, you arrive at a road intersection close to the park’s east entrance. From there, some improvisational navigation can take you north across McKinley Avenue and onward across a possibly muddy creekbed to a paved walking/biking path along the reservoir’s north shore. Stay with the goal of circling around the lake as you continue west past a boat-launching area, up and over the reservoir’s spillway, down into a ravine below that spillway, and back up to a large, equestrian staging area. After that, just keep heading south, parallel to the freeway, until you’re back at the starting point.

It’s possible to cut the round-the-lake distance to five miles or less by sticking to roads and trails closer to the lake shore, especially on the reservoir’s south side.

What's That You're Reading?

NAME: BILL WOLFE | AGE: 48 | LOCATION: MISSION VALLEY
 OCCUPATION: HIGH SCHOOL ENGLISH TEACHER
 INTERVIEWED AT: STARBUCKS IN HAZARD CENTER

What books are you currently reading?

"I always read a few books at once, so that I have something that suits whatever mood I'm in. I'm always reading fiction, but lately, I'm reading more non-fiction as well. I've found as I've gotten older that there are a lot of things I don't know, so I'm going back and sort of following up on my college education: reading a little philosophy, science, and history. One of the books I'm reading is The Third Chimpanzee: The Evolution and Future of the Human Animal, by Jared Diamond. He's a professor at UCLA; most people know him from his books Guns, Germs, and Steel and Collapse." Tell us a little about the book.

"It's a nonfiction book about evolution. He explains evolution and natural selection in a way that the layman can understand. I'm fascinated by how closely related we are to chimpanzees and gorillas. On the family tree, gorillas branched off, and then right after them, chimps branched off, and then us. But we're the closest relation to the chimp; it's not the gorilla. We share

98.4% of our DNA with chimpanzees."

What is Diamond's argument?

"He's asking, what is it about that 1.6% difference in our DNA that makes us so phenomenally different? Meaning: we're advanced tool users, we have fire, cultural institutions, art, philosophy. He argues that the trigger for it was the development of speech, the way the larynx allowed humans to start speaking. That led to more advanced communication, which led to one thing and then another and another."

What about the style?

"Diamond is a good prose stylist. He's an academic, but also a gifted writer. Lots of people are smart, yet they can't write well."

What book has been most life-changing for you?

"A Death in the Family by James Agee. I read that during my freshman year at Loyola Marymount University, back in the late '70s. I was an English major, and it blew my mind. He was so sensitive — he saw everything, heard everything, felt everything. He was like a human radar. His depiction of how a family copes with the unexpected death of the father in a car accident, seen through the eyes of a six-year-old boy, was a work of genius. And he started as a poet, so his sentences are gorgeous. I thought, "Wow, people can write like this? I want to write like this."

Who are your favorite authors?

"Well, James Agee. And I love Charles Dickens, his ability to weave stories, cast a spell over you, and immerse you in his story world. His characters are indelible. You never forget Pip or Estella or Miss Havesham from Great Expectations. They're archetypes of literature. I also love Mark Helprin's A Soldier of the Great War. His writing is a little showy. Some people find Agee and Helprin to be purple prose, but I don't think so."

What magazines or newspapers do you read? How many articles do you read to the end?

"I subscribe to The Atlantic Monthly, Harper's, American Journal, Mother Jones, and The Wilson Quarterly. I also read the L.A. Times and New York Times online. Any article I start, I read to the end."

Tell us about the friends you talk to about reading.

"Most of them are other English teachers. We're always recommending books to each other. Our conversations are on the shorter side, because everyone is busy. We do a lot of plot summarizing."

THE TEACHINGS OF LIGHT AND SOUND

Sri Gary Olsen,
Spiritual Leader of MasterPath

There are two approaches to God, the conventional and the universal. Conventional truth instructs us to search for God and truth outside ourselves, whereas universal truth instructs us to search for God and truth within ourselves. There is a vast difference between the two of which greater numbers are growing increasingly aware.

CONVENTIONAL APPROACH

cousin of former Charger linebacker Junior Seau. Attempts to prosecute a third person, rapper Joseph Turner, 22, failed last week when deputy DA Giacomo Buccì — who had a witness refuse to testify on the second day of the trial — admitted he didn't have a case. Judge Joan Weber dismissed the case and Turner was freed.

Buccì's strategy to convict Turner included plans to introduce a "Blurt" article from July 2003. That article included lyrics written and Behymer says the law-enforcement community was "unduly influenced by the lyrics.... I believe they wanted to use [the printed lyrics] to show he was a bad person.... They tried to show that he was a member of the [Oceanside gang] Deep Valley Crips. I don't think he was a full-blown member of a gang. He created this gang persona, and the gang cops really about the case.

Private attorney Behymer was appointed to represent Turner; his fee was paid by the county. (One of Turner's lyrics included the line, "Court-appointed lawyers they don't do us no justice/ Illegal search and seizure just means you're busted.")

Behymer says that Turner never attained success as a rapper and that he has given up pursuing a career in hip-hop. "He has settled down. He has a wife and a child."

Turner (whom Behymer advised not to speak to the press) could not be reached.

City Gets Bad Rap Josh Dunn owns nightclubs in Escondido and San Marcos. His busiest night used to be Thursdays at Club Tropics in San Marcos, where he featured hip-hop. Last summer, he discontinued hip-hop at Club Tropics because he felt pressure from the City of San Marcos and sheriff's deputies.

"This is the way it works," says Dunn. "What they do is have 10 to 15 cop cars park out front. People see that and say, 'I'm not going back there.' That's how they shut [clubs] down.... The Boulevard [in San Marcos] just closed down. They were all hip-hop toward the end."

Blvd. club owners could not be reached, but San Marcos city clerk Susie Vasquez says she received a letter from club management stating that they'd relinquish entertainment and dance permits.

Sgt. Glenn Giannantonio of the San Marcos sheriff station says Club Tropics used to have the most calls for police service. ("The Boulevard was number two.")

He says there were regularly six to eight sheriff cars in front of Club Tropics each Thursday night.

"We have compiled a big, thick binder with all the police calls and hospital reports related to Club Tropics' 'urban night,'" says Giannantonio. "There were fights, stabbings, rapes.... One guy got beaten with a chain. There were shootings in the parking lot. Since they stopped having urban nights, the number of calls for service at Club Tropics has dropped off dramatically.

"There were many Thursday nights when every San Marcos deputy on duty was at Club Tropics, and we had to call in other officers from Escondido. This city is too big to have all of our officers at Club Tropics."

Sgt. Giannantonio disagrees with Dunn's harassment charge.

"If you are looking to have law-abiding patrons, why would you be against having law-enforcement officers in your parking lot?"

Dunn moved his Thursday hip-hop night to Club Anita's — which he owns along with Thee Spot — in Escondido.

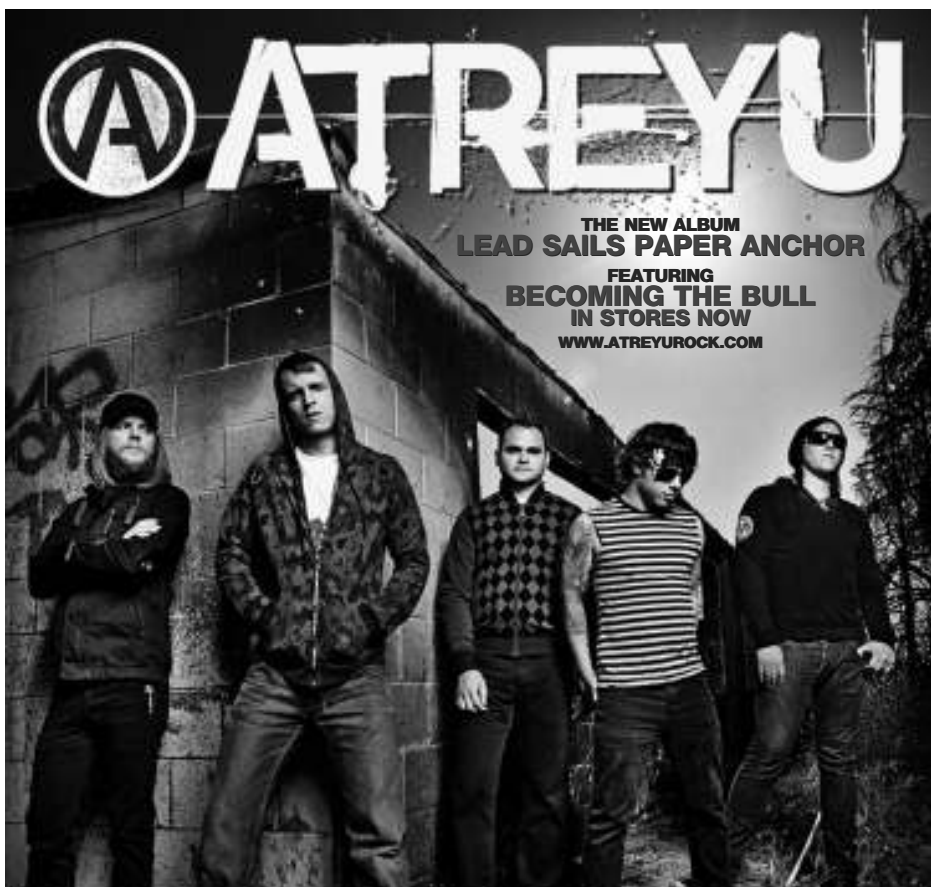

"San Marcos doesn't want hip-hop, but Escondido doesn't mind," says Dunn.

Rappers K-9 and Shy used to appear at the Blvd. Now they're at Thee Spot. K-9 agrees that the cops in Escondido are hip-hop friendly.

"They came in the other night when we were onstage, and we shout out, 'We got 5-0 in the house.' They smiled and gave us the [raise the roof gesture]."

Thee Spot hosts hip-hop on Wednesday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday; Club Anita's offers the same on Thursdays.

More Beats, Please

"This isn't [Richard Simmons's] 'Sweatin' to the Oldies,'" says Techno Sweat CEO Rick L. Frimmer, whose Carlsbad company sells music downloads and CDs remixed at various BPM (beats per minute); the music is designed to assist athletes in training.

"Most of our songs are available at five different speeds, geared for different types of workouts, like aerobic, cardio, [and] treadmill training." Continuous-play music programmed at speeds from 128 BPM to 155 BPM cost from $5.99 to $8.99; a 30-minute sample download costs $5.99.

The music comes from four sources: Techno Sweat originals by Israeli composer/performer Silicon Monk, licensed music from established artists (Metallica, Tears for Fears, Gnarl Barkley, others), songs submitted by performers for remixing, and prerecorded music submitted by athletes who want to reprogram BPM in their favorite workout songs.

Frimmer says no licensing permission is necessary to alter prerecorded music submitted by athletes who want their favorite songs sped up or slowed down.

"Those [CDs and downloads] are custom recorded for the customer.... We don't run multiple copies of their workout set list and sell them to other people, so we don't need [to arrange licensing with] the original performers."

Providing music for athletes is a growing industry. Nike sells running shoes with a music transmitter and is working with Apple on a workout chart designed for iPods. Oakley sunglasses offers a sports model with a built-in MP3 player. Swim goggles by Finis can be Irony! The Death Squad posts songs on their MySpace page (<http://www.myspace.com/thedeathxsquad>) such as "Emo Arab Turbins" [sic] and "White Power":

"Hail Hitler, white power, supremacy is the best, tattoo a swastika on my chest/ I pay respect for I am white, and since I'm white I am always right."

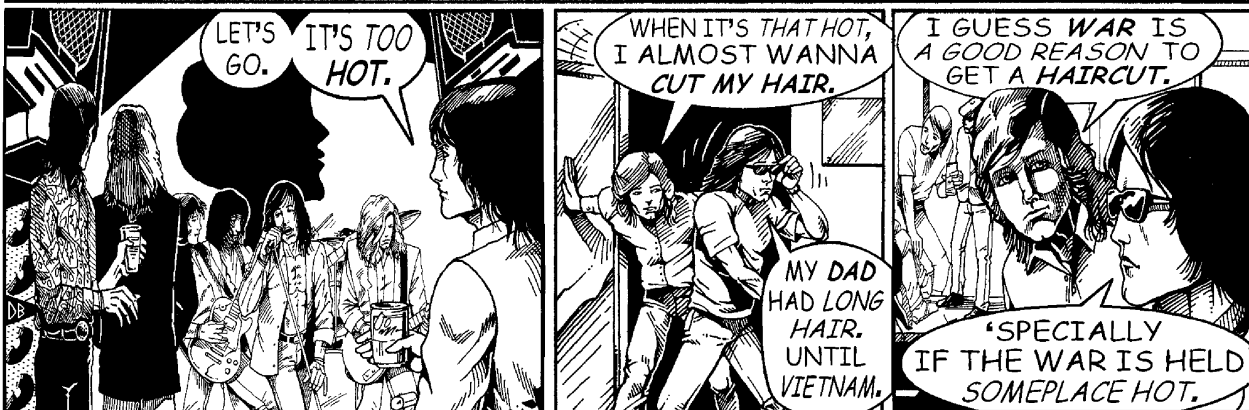

Drummer/singer Brackin Ass Ryan says, "I am Filipino, I'm not white. See my weird sense of humor?" With James Bond Brackin on guitar and vocals, the duo demonstrates their humor in "Death to KFC," which opens with a prank call to a local Kentucky Fried Chicken:

KFC: "Hi, thanks for calling KFC/Taco Bell, how may I help you?"

KFC: "Hang on one momento. Brenda! Oh my God, something about an animal protest group..."

Sophie 'n' Anya Charlie Quinn, operations manager of new radio station

Sophie 103.7, put Anya Marina's "Miss Halfway" into regular rotation (which means it's played about every other day). Marina has been a DJ on FM-94/9 since 2002.

"I discovered the song on the Grey's Anatomy soundtrack," says Quinn. "Miss Halfway" is getting more airplay on Sophie than on FM-94/9, which will play it only on a Sunday-night local show. Quinn says his station plays the song because soundtracks are "an extremely hip" way to connect with Sophie's target audience:

women aged 25–34. "We also play cuts from the Garden State, Elizabethtown, and The O.C. soundtracks."

Quinn says Marina's boss at 94/9 called him when he found out Sophie was playing music by one of his DJs.

"He was just wondering if we were playing it in earnest and that it wasn't a mind game against them.... He was okay with it."

Quinn reasons that FM-94/9 isn't playing Marina's track much because the station is aiming more for male listeners and the song may not appeal as much to men. Mike Hansen, assistant program director at 94/9, offers a different reason:

ENOUGH PLAY FOR MARINA?

"If we start playing her music, we open ourselves to other local artists who would say, 'She's a local artist, so why are you favoring her over us?'"

Quinn says his station plays one unsigned artist an hour on Sundays and one new song an hour on Tuesdays.

Quinn, who was involved in selecting the name Sophie, says he was looking for a campy female name that was popular in the '20s, '30s, or '40s; a name that wouldn't be so feminine that it would chase away male listeners. He denies a rumor that he selected the Sophie name to swipe at Bob Bolinger, the former general manager of 103.7 and its sister station KYYX. Bolinger left the two stations to work at Clear Channel. One of Bolinger's daughters is named Sophie.

More Like Vomiting

Happy Songs About the War, set to debut in January '08 at Sixth@Penn in Hillcrest, is a one-man musical being developed by singer/songwriter J.D. Boucharde and local theater maven Leigh Scarritt.

"It started as a concept album about the war in Iraq that I rewrote as a stage show," says Boucharde. "Then, my wife and I bought a house, and our new next-door neighbor was Leigh Scarritt.... This name meant nothing to us, but everyone we spoke to seemed to go ga-ga when we mentioned her."

Scarritt is a Tony Award-nominated actor, playwright, director, composer, and choreographer with a long history at Sixth@Penn.

"So I brought it over for her to read.... She liked it and immediately offered to direct, free of charge. She immediately sold Sixth@Penn owner Dale Morris on it and — bam — without even blinking, I'm workshopping my first drama production."

Though he scripted the show, Boucharde says, "I definitely didn't write it; it came through me. My name's at the top of the page, but it's no more mine than any of my songs, and this even less so; it was more like vomiting than writing."

Boucharde appears August 29 at Humphrey's Backstage music venue as part of a "Peace Concert" that features Hargo and Randi Driscoll.

Ferrell Laughed

"I don't know. I think they were called Krunk. They didn't last long."

Several months ago, I went to the Sunset Strip in Hollywood to see Slash and a few of the members of the Doors play at the Whiskey A Go-Go. During the day, my friend Doug and I made our way down the Strip and walked past Ben Fong-Torres, a writer for Rolling Stone and the L.A. Times. I stopped him and we chatted.

We grabbed some lunch at the Rainbow Bar and Grill. While sitting there, comedian/actor Tom Green walked by. We hit Book Soup and saw a flyer that announced Doors drummer John Densmore would be there autographing his new book, but we knew this already. What we didn't know was that Jane's Addiction singer Perry Ferrell would be with him, singing and doing poetry.

When we came back for that, the line was long and you needed a reserved ticket. As we walked away, a woman yelled out to us. She handed us her tickets, saying she couldn't stay. While in line, a veterinarian suggested we walk around back to see if we could sneak in early. We couldn't, but we saw Ferrell smoking. We talked to him for 15 minutes before a security guard came over and freaked out, yelling at us to leave. Ferrell laughed.

A few months later, on May 2, Patti Smith was performing at the Roxy on Sunset. She wouldn't be coming to S.D., so we headed up north. We stopped into the Rainbow for lunch. Owner Mario, as usual, puffed on a huge cigar and held court. A guy with long hair walked in, and a few people asked for his autograph. I asked the cute, blonde bartender who it was. She said, "A musician named Hughes. I think he's with Deep Purple." I asked one of the autograph-seekers, a guy in his 50s, who the longhair was. He said angrily, "He's one of the best drummers in rock. He played with Rainbow and Deep Purple!" I said, "Deep Purple's drummer is Ian Paice." The longhair replied, "Well, uh, he's the drummer now...I think. His name is Glenn Hughes." (I Googled him later and found out he is the current bassist of Deep Purple, and he was the vocalist for Black Sabbath for a while in the '80s.)

Later, a woman freaked out when Tommy Lee's brother walked in. I asked her why she cared about the brother of someone famous. She told me, "Well...he was in a band, too." I asked her the band name and she responded, "I don't know."

I think they were called Krunk. They didn't last long." She, too, got his autograph. If the guy wasn't with a woman, I'm sure she would've gotten more.

Doug mentioned David Spade was a regular at the Rainbow, and the bartender told me he does come in once a week. I asked the bartender if she got starstruck, and she said, "Never. Well, it was kind of cool when Cher came in. Oh, and when Jack Nicholson was here. Yeah, I almost couldn't speak. When he was talking to me, it was just...yeah. That was really cool."

As I started to eat my chicken salad, the band Quiet Riot strolled in. It seemed odd to have such activity at three in the afternoon. Doug said, "Dude, I've seen people like that here at night, but this is weird."

Next door at the Roxy, we saw six people lined up who had been there since morning for Patti Smith. They wanted the best spots when the doors opened. We walked down the Strip and passed a model who was being filmed while she walked. A few cars almost crashed as they watched her.

When we came back to the Roxy, the line had increased to eight. I asked the last two people a question, and it turned out they, too, had come from San Diego. The woman works at the Museum of Photographic Arts in Balboa Park. Her husband and I know a lot of the same people in local bands, and we talked about the San Diego music scene. At one point he said, "I still can't believe the Germs haven't sold out the Casbah. San Diego is so ridiculous. No wonder Patti Smith isn't playing there." A girl in line heard this and said, "This isn't her tour. She is just doing this show and one in New York." I found out from another person in line that she was going to be doing an autograph-signing the following day at another record store on Sunset.

When a woman in line heard that I hadn't purchased my tickets yet, she laughed and said, "Are you insane? This show has been sold out for a while." I walked to the box office and found out it was true.

Just then, a woman in her late 40s walked up. She asked if anyone had an extra ticket. We told her our dilemma. She said, "Well, I actually know Patti." I said, "Hmmm...if you know her, why are you trying to get a ticket from us?" She talked about a band she started with encouragement from Patti, and her story made little sense. She told us she performed at the funeral of Fred "Sonic" Smith, Patti's late husband and one of the founding members of the MC5. Nobody believed her. She said her band was called Purple Legion.

Patti Smith pulled up in a silver PT Cruiser, and a few guys surrounded her car, sticking posters and albums through the window for her to sign. We guessed that they were autograph dealers. They showed up 15 minutes before Smith did, and after they got their stuff signed, they drove off. When this lady tried to approach Patti, Smith was ushered into the venue with her manager saying, "We don't have time. We're running late."

The line grew to about 30 people, and we decided to see Elvis Costello at the House of Blues. Tickets were more expensive, and we'd seen him countless times before, but what made this a frustrating decision was a guy pulled up and said, "I need to buy two tickets." Someone in line whipped out two tickets for Patti Smith and sold them at face value. Everyone at the front of the line then asked us why we didn't do that. I said, "Uh, I just figured if someone had an extra ticket they'd say something."

posedly knowing Patti Smith, Smith's twentysomething son and bandmate came outside to smoke a cigarette. The woman started to walk over to him as security was trying to push her away. She said, "I know your mother." He just smiled politely as he puffed away. She said, "I held you in my arms when you were a baby. I haven't seen you since you were five. My name's Karen. I was in the band Purple Legion." He dropped his cigarette and said, "Oh, my God! I still have those Purple Legion stickers. I remember you!" He hugged and kissed her all over. He said, "My mom is meditating now. She does that before the shows. She'll be so glad to see you. We'll definitely get you into the show."

I couldn't believe this woman had been telling a legitimate story. She looked at me and said, "Do you want me to get you a signed CD from Patti?" I laughed and said, "Hell, yeah," and handed her my card.

We then took off and saw Costello. Doug said, "She's not going to send you a CD. She was so flaky, dude."

Not long after, the disc arrived in the mail. ■

A Grammy winner Macy Gray and guests Brand New Heavies bring R&B to 4th&B tonight. The 40-year-old Gray released her fourth studio disc of pop and soul, Big, in March, and the singer, known for her raspy, Billie Holiday-style voice, has appeared in several major motion pictures, including Spider-Man and Training Day. British big band Brand New Heavies carry the acid-jazz torch, infusing funk on last year's Get Used to It. You've probably seen that one in the Starbucks racks.... Thirty years and three singers later, Aussie rock band INXS continue recording and touring. J.D. Fortune, the vocalist set to fill deceased singer Michael Hutchence's shoes, won the role on reality TV, 2004's Rock Star: INXS. Fortune has since toured the world with the band and released the uneven 2005 Epic label disc Switch. The band was subsequently released from Epic. This year's tour books them at Harrah's Rincon in Valley Center.... I just called to say I love you and tell you that 57-year-old hit-maker Stevie Wonder's

Early tonight, you got the Four O'Clock Friday freebee after the Del Mar races, where alternative singer-guitarist Pete Yorn will take the Jack Daniel's stage. The New Jersey native's a songwriter's songwriter, and after three Columbia releases, it's Yorn's 2001 debut, Musicforthemorningafter, and it's hit "Life on a Chain" that hold up best.... Yorn's 2007 tour mates, the recently reunited Australian pop group Crowded House ("Don't Dream It's Over," "Something So Strong"), will crowd Humphrey's stage, along with L.A.'s low-key, hi-fi 16 Frames and New Zealand's indie oddity (for NZ, anyway) Liam Finn.... So you don't forget that punk rock has become a lifestyle, Warped Tour's in town to sell some to your kids. That's at Coors. Whatever.... Can't stop propping Scarlet Symphony shows until, well, they stop playing everywhere all the time. The energetic rock-n-pop band checks in at the Kensington Club Friday night and then Saturday at the SoCo Music Experience.

SATURDAY 25

Southern Comfort gives you Flaming Lips. (Sorry, couldn't resist.) The Oklahomans will unleash their festive show of aliens, animals, confetti, and giant balloons at the SoCo Music Experience Saturday (outside Petco Park downtown). The event starts at 3p and is free-of-charge. Also in the mash: hip-hopper Z-Trip, San Fran psych-rockers Black Rebel Motorcycle Club, and acid-jazz dance band Galactic, 'mong others.... Reggae acts Elijah Emanuel and Ziggy Marley will lend their tropical cadence to the surf and turf at Del Mar track. This post-race show is free with paid admission.... Mission Hills record shop M-Theory invites ex-No Knifer Ryan Ferguson to prop his solo wares at a free in-store at 3p. Ferguson's latest disc of power pop, Only Trying to Help (think No Knife without the "artistic differences"), came out Tuesday on Better Looking Records.... That's a lot of free music Saturday.... Repent. Go check out The Prayers at Tower Bar and insist on paying a cover. The Prayers is most of the old Plot to Blow Up the Eiffel Tower band, and they add a '60s pop vibe to pretty up the Plot's musical idiosyncrasies. Check out their new EP, God Save the Prayers, out on local Art Fag Recordings. They share the bill with the Atoms and the Nice Boys.... No? Unrepentant? Then go see Marilyn Manson and Slayer at the Sports Arena.

It's piano night at the Casbah, when Brooklyn trio Au Revoir Simone and Austin pop act Oh

No! Oh My! wheel in the Wurlitzers and all their other plunky gear. The three gals in Au Revoir Simone each play keys and harmonize simple juvenilia on their latest The Bird of Music. Boy quartet Oh No! Oh My! is a by-product of Decemberists/Clap Your Hands Say Yeah pop inflection. And they write sing-a-longs! Check out their latest, Between the Devil and the Sea, to learn your parts.... South Park's favorite Sunday hangout, the Whistlestop, has got a bunch of stuff on tap for you this week: DJ Claire will host her end of the month cocktail afternoon, Citizen Video will screen cult flick Rushmore, and assorted turntablists will spin trad jazz for "Night of the Cookers."

MONDAY 27

Americana dad rockers Wilco take the stage at SDSU's Open Air Theater. Since the release of experimental hit Yankee Hotel Foxtrot and experimental curiosity A Ghost Is Born, the Chicago-based band appears to have settled for loafers. Their latest, Sky Blue Sky, harks back to early country-pop gem Summer Teeth, except without the teeth. Your call.... New York gypsy punks Gogol Bordello roll through House of Blues Monday Night. The Bordello is a group of immigrants from Eastern Europe who play that regions frenetic gypsy rhythms with American punk rock, working up a Pogues-style stew in their theatrical stage show, which includes stomp dancers and a psyched-up Borat-looking dude on vocals.... Dago's cellar punk super group, Beehive and the Barracudas, will take down Pink Elephant with plastic ware Monday night. B&TB haven't seen light of day in a long time. They've missed you. Have you missed them?

TUESDAY 28

The Saw Doctors will heal what ails you when they make a house call to Belly Up Tuesday night. The Irish trio play a blend of traditional Irish barroom and American roots rock, falling somewhere between Van Morrison and the Kinks musically and politically. It's been about five years since the band's last studio release, as they tour behind a recent live recording, the setting for which their best known. San Diego folk-rock quintet Exfriends open.... Old Time Relijun call it experimental punk, you can call it "old wave." The Portland foursome have been touring their Captain Beefheart on Devo Street rock-roll for ten years on a couple less-than-inspiring discs, but live they are...entertainment. As is Pall Jenkins-led Mr. Tube and the Flying Objects. Think Blackheart as Latin dub. Catch them at the Casbah with Old Man Hands and Free*Stars in the Atari Lounge.

WEDNESDAY 29

New York glam pandrogynists Psychic TV will pack the Casbah Wednesday night as this experimental punk and art-rock outfit take the stage for the night to play highlights from their storied 20-year career. The seven members don a variety of glam guises and set an atmospheric stage to match their gasping acid-house rhythms, stinging guitars, and otherworldly vocals.... Ex-Black Crowes guitarist Marc Ford will sling the blues-based rock of his latest, Weary and Wired, at Belly Up Wednesday night. Ford is joined by local garage rockers the Swedish Models.... Country rockers Lonestar will ride in to town to kick it at 4th & B. They are touring in support of their shiny new disc, Mountain—a collection of Texas country with that new-Nashville polish.

NOTE

BY DAVE GOOD

Cute Is What We Aim For is a new band. They built their small fortune in the way of most young bands today, via the Internet. They formed in 2005 in Buffalo, New York, and released one album before joining this year's Warped Tour. Their music is mostly power-pop ballads of a stripe first brought to market by Blink-182. And as Blink did before them, Cute sings about the narcissism of youth: "I spend more time in front of mirrors/ Than any gent should/ Because let's face it/ One on one is more fun anyway/ And everybody knows it."

Dick's Last Resort, 345 Fourth Avenue, downtown. 619-231-9100. Live rock and roll almost every night.

Dublin Square, 554 Fourth Avenue, Gaslamp. 619-239-5818. Sunday, 10:30 p.m. to 1:30 a.m., Adrienne Nims and Raggle Taggle, Celtic folk.

I experience high school politics all over again in Cute Is What We Aim For. The band has recreated the hormonal drama and blinding ego that most of us assumed at that time, and the word "drama" describes the first couple of Cute's years. To say that their lineup changed much in a short span of time would be an understatement. One must wonder if they didn't make that inner-band commotion public in some of their music: "You are a sellout/ But you couldn't even do that right/ So your price tag has been slashed/ And now you're chillin' on the half-price clearance rack."

But even Blink's members learned that when all is said and done, cute only goes so far. As for the name, Cute frontman Shaant Hacikyan told Today's Teen magazine: "It was something of a joke; we didn't expect to be a real band. It just kind of stuck. It haunts us, 'cause we don't like it."

CUTE IS WHAT WE AIM FOR

BY WILLIAM CRAIN

Earlier this summer, my friends and their three-year-old daughter invited my wife and me and our almost-two-year-old son to join them at a festival in the park to see a blue-grass-ish band. My son is obsessed with guitars and spent the show at the front of the stage, excitedly pointing out the instruments. The band members liked him, and at the end of the show, one of the singers threw him a toy monkey.

Complicating this sweet scene was the fact that I had just seen this same singer, whose name is Wammo, bellowing a song that compared the effects of numerous illicit drugs and found them inferior to beer. For each refrain, he held up his glass and got the audience to join him in shouting, "We love beer!"

The band in question is Austin's long-running Asylum Street Spankers. Yes, they have released an album of children's music, but they have also released theme CDs of songs about drugs and sex. Yes, they play acoustic instruments, but that day in the park they used them to play blue-grass, punk, death metal, a Led Zeppelin cover, and to simulate a skipping record and a record played backwards (with simulated backwards-masked vocals, naturally). Yes, they sang in beautiful harmonies, but they used them to perform that "Sodomy" song from Hair.

Don't get me wrong: I loved the show. The kids loved the show, too. But we parents were glad they were too young to understand the lyrics. Someday my son will ask me about that toy monkey, and we'll have a talk.

Album: Thou Shalt Rock It (2007)
Artist: New Loser Studio
Label: self-released
Where available/price: Online at www.myspace.com/newloserstudio and Snocap.com for $10.
Songs: 1) Ewok #3 2) More Pillows 3) Mall Workers 4) Jacques vs. Jocks 5) Solar Eclipse = No Fun 6) Multi-Ethnic Cuisine 7) F.A.R. 8) Public Restrooms 9) Ewok #1975 10) Iron Michael 11) The Future Corpses 12) IMN Infant 13) The Duck 14) Get Off Your High Horse 15) The Whiskey Robber 16) The Life Aquatic 17) Loser Anthem 18) Ewok #4804 Band: Dryw Keltz (guitar, keyboard, drum machine)

When Dryw Keltz moved into a new apartment, his sister asked him, "How's the new loser studio?" He kept the name as well as the streak of whimsy and humor; his music soaks in it.
What did Keltz come up with at the "New Loser Studio"? This catastrophe called Thou Shalt Rock It. Many have heard the description "so stupid, it's genius" or "so ugly, it's cute." Thou Shalt Rock It not only falls into that category, it falls in, wiggles, grabs its ankles, and barks. To describe it as "good" would require some limber stretching, but New Loser Studio carries around "interesting" like a two-headed cat.

How to describe this "music"? Let's start with track six, "Multi-Ethnic Cuisine." In it, Keltz plays loud, metallic guitar and clanging drums on his drum machine. His monotone voice states what kind of food he likes, mantra-like: "I like Chinese food/ Yes, I like Chinese food/ I like Chinese food/ Yes, I like Chinese food." He goes on and lists them from Thai to German in the same fashion. Ending the song with "Gummi Bears."
With his acoustic guitar backing him in "F.A.R.," Keltz pleads with Freddy Krueger to spare teenagers' lives and lists the young actors' accomplishments: "Johnny Depp hasn't even starred in Pirates of the Caribbean yet ... And the girl who played the lead/

New Loser Studio

Who can forget whaterz-name?/ I mean, seriously/ What the fk was her name?" It's slow and intoned as if it's the reading of a grocery list along with a lullaby, stream-of-consciousness style.
Keltz never gets within a stone's throw of a correct tone, note, chord, tune, or any other musical attribute that denotes a correctly played "song." And it's genius.

as i hear it

BY BRIAN CARVER

Artist: The Boyish Charms

Heard By: T.J. Ramirez, Pacific Beach

T.J.

I would say the music reminds a little bit of Death Cab for Cutie. Maybe a little bit of Weezer because it was upbeat. It was, like, acoustic rock — I wouldn't call it pop music. I liked that it was acoustic guitars — I'm into acoustics, but I also play electrics. I liked the drums. It was catchy, as well. Probably the vocals could have been louder, but you've got to give props to any band who's recording and has a CD out there. I can hear the melody of the words, and I liked it; it went with the song. That's totally a summer song. I can just think of driving down the highway listening to that song or something like that...just kicking it with friends.

Artist: Rob Crow

Song: "Forced Letter" (from the CD Up) Heard By: Buddy Trotpmann, Sherman Heights

Buddy

I definitely recognize [Crow from] Pinback because that was a heavy playlist at my last job. Not exactly my cup of tea, but I know there's definitely an audience for it.... I'd say it's indie pop. It's pretty produced, lots of layers to it. It's not something I'd listen to again. I usually don't like stuff that's that slick. It sounds like he's spent a lot of time in the production area. I tend to go for a more raw sound with music. [When I hear this music, I imagine myself] going to sleep.

Artist: Vocoder

Heard By: Diego Aldrete, City Heights

Diego

It sounds very energetic. It's good; I like it. I don't really listen to this kind of music — I like more reggae — so I don't know a lot of bands that play similar music. It reminds a little of Green Day or blink 182...or 185...I don't really know the number. English is not my first language, [so] it takes, like, three times to listen to the same song to get the lyrics. I didn't really know what they were singing about. I liked the fast pace. [It would be a good song for] extreme sports...either for surfing or climbing.

INTERNATIONAL MAN OF PARTYING

by Josh Board

I grew up in Mira Mesa and played basketball at USIU off of Miramar Road. Kids of different races played in that gym. The idea of an "international" university seemed cool.

I had never heard of Intrax International Institute until their party at the Kava Lounge on Kettner. The place was packed, which was surprising for a Sunday night after 11:00.

As I parallel parked, trying to get into a space that I had barely enough room for, I noticed a couple making out in one of the cars. Another couple was embracing outside a few cars away.

There were several smokers around the building. It reminded me of the crowd down the street at the Casbah — people in their early 20s thinking they were hip with a cigarette in their hand. This crowd was better dressed and 80 percent Asian.

I met Chris, who seemed to be running the show. He looked overdressed in a blazer and tie. And when I tapped him on the shoulder, I could tell he was sweaty. I realized why after I walked into the club.

It was over 100 degrees and packed with people on the dance floor. I overheard a few people talk about DJ Ratty, who was spinning the tunes. He's a teacher at the school. Someone said, "He knows the owner of this place, so he got a good deal here."

Chris, slipping from party mode into PR mode, handed me some flyers about the school, one of which indicated that it's $299 a month for an afternoon program that teaches English.

"Pig Latin? I do not know of this language."

Another explained internship programs and scholarships. When I saw the address — 1250 Sixth Avenue, World Trade Center, downtown — I wondered if things had gotten more difficult for foreign students here after 9/11. I turned around to ask Chris but he'd disappeared.

I went upstairs where it was less crowded and took a photo of a couple of Japanese girls sitting on a couch. A guy was kneeling down and talking to them. As I walked to the bar, he came over and asked in broken English, "Excuse me? You picture take?"

He did the motion of a camera with his hand and asked, "Why you take pictures?" We talked for a few minutes, and he seemed satisfied with my explanation.

Chris came back with a baseball-style shirt for me. It read "Got English?" on the front and had the school's information on the back. I wondered if people would be offended if they saw just the front. But I never look a free gift shirt in the mouth.

I met a girl named Kiu. I could tell she wanted to strike up a conversation, but she didn't say anything. I said, "I'd buy you a drink, but I don't see a bartender up here." She said, "No. I would buy you the drinks."

I like foreign women.

I asked where she was from. In perfect English — no accent — she said, "I was born and raised here. Did you just assume I was foreign?" I said, "Well, uh, yeah. Aren't most people that go to this school?" She smiled and said "Yeah, that's true." It turned out she worked for the school, and Chris had sent her up here to talk to me. I thought, Damn, that guy is good.

He won't let up on the PR.

She told me they had students from Asia, South America, and Africa, and that there are 6000 international students in San Diego. I asked her if it's been difficult for foreign students since 9/11. "Oh, yeah, it is. I just got back from the Middle East. It's good, though, that America is realizing the importance of students from Saudi Arabia and the Gulf. Americans need to learn about other cultures. Other cultures should be celebrated."

She told me that she was going to dance and walked away. I felt like a perv watching all the college girls dancing. One looked exactly like Beyoncé Knowles.

I saw Chris was giving away iPods and talking with several people. That made me realize that I wasn't mingling the way I should. I guess I was worried that the people I'd talk to wouldn't understand English or that I'd have trouble understanding them.

I looked at a flyer that read "Besos not Bombs." It had a picture of lips on it. I asked a guy what that meant. "It's like the expression, 'Make love, not war.' Besos is love." Just then, a Latina woman, at least ten years older than everyone else, walked by. I was told that the flyers promoted her salsa show earlier in the evening. She handed me a CD

The DJ played older dance tunes. I heard the Beastie Boys and Herbie Hancock. One girl jumped on a platform near the stage to dance. You could tell she was uncomfortable at first. She slowly got into it. She tried looking for her friends after a few songs, but the lights were bright in her face, and it looked as if she couldn't make out anyone in the crowd.

I saw a couple holding hands. He was a tall Caucasian. She was a short Asian. His other hand was in a cast, and I asked him how he broke it. He told me it was a snowboarding accident. I said, "That's why I've never tried that. All my friends go, and they've all broken bones doing it." He said, "Well, it was only my second time. I'm a skier; she's the snowboarder. I thought I'd give it a try."

I heard a guy speaking French. I asked him how many languages he spoke. "French, English, of course, Italian, Spanish. I'm learning Japanese and Latin. Some say it's a dead language." He went on to tell me that in other countries people speak several languages.

"It's only here in America that most people only speak one or two languages."

I said, "I can only speak one, unless you consider pig Latin a language." He said, "pig Latin? I do not know of this language."

I looked toward the dance floor and saw that there was one person not dancing. He was just standing there and he did not look happy. I'm not sure why he didn't leave or at least move away from the dancing crowd.

I noticed several people on the dance floor checking their cell phones. A few were text messaging.

I glanced at my phone and saw that it was 1:30 a.m. I headed for the exit.

Chris was outside talking to a group of girls. One looked like Lucy Liu and was wearing a Catholic schoolgirl outfit. They gave him hugs and left. A group of three African guys came over and Chris introduced me to them. I said, "Oh, you don't introduce me to the girls, but you introduce me to these guys." He smiled and explained that it was one of their birthdays. I asked the guy how old he was and couldn't understand his answer. His friend was holding a pizza box from where they ate earlier in the evening.

I said, "Hey, speaking of pizza, I got some cold pizza in my fridge that I want to go nosh on."

As I walked away I heard a guy say, "They eat pizza cold in America? Impossible." His buddy replied, "And what is this 'nosh' they put on it?" ■

San Diego

Hushed House

The darkness creates a sense of privacy, a place for journals and diaries, not blaring TVs.

I have always wanted to turn the eyes of local theater artists outward: have them look at examples of their craft in San Diego at large. Eric Lotze, the award-winning lighting designer for Cygnet, Moxie, and New Village Arts, among others, agreed to join me at the Whaley House in Old Town and talk about 19th-century lighting.

Thomas Whaley built the two-story brick structure in 1857, its Greek Revival style a far cry from the tile-roofed, low adobe buildings 500 yards to the north. Whaley bought the lot at a city sale for $1.50 and paid an estimated $17,000 for construction. Save Our Heritage Organization (SOHO) has furnished the interior with "period correct" chairs, beds, draperies, carpets, and lighting fixtures from 1868-1871.

Lotze and I accepted the furnishings as a given (most aren't original to the house) and concentrated on the theatricality of effects: subjective moods and psychological rinses the lighting would inspire, along with the differences between then and now.

The Big Room/Courtroom The Whaley House is almost a small city. At various times it had a granary (holding up to 400,000 pounds), a store, Sunday school, theater, courtroom (between 1868 and 1871), jail, and morgue. It was the San Diego County seat until the evening of March 31, 1871, when four armed men took — family members say stole — the county records to New Town. Even with late afternoon sunlight streaking though the windows, the courtroom feels somber. A brass chandelier hovers over a wooden railing between the mahogany dais and three rows of seats. Oil lamps flank the judge.

"Were Hollywood to film a scene here," says Lotze, "they'd light it bright, open it up for pounding gavels and hot emotions. But period lighting'd be much darker, especially the corners. Focus is on the judge and plaintiff; the jury" — two rows of six chairs to the judge's left — "would be only three-fourths lit. When court was in session, they probably left windows and doors open, even in winter, for light and air."

"There's very little mystery in rooms today. They're fully illuminated, wall-to-wall. For us the courtroom feels dark, a close atmosphere, like a cloak."

"But for them it's their normal state. They had more shadows and darkness than light. At night they went from room to room holding a candle to guide their way."

For modern eyes the Whaley House feels hushed, almost secret. Where nowadays everything's lit, and everyone's encouraged to be open and confessional, the darkness creates a sense of privacy, a place for journals and diaries, not blaring TVs. And yet there's almost a safety in the gloom. A light would reveal where you are.

Before and after it was a court, the big room hosted balls attended by all of Old Town. "Imagine party time," says Lotze, "chandelier blazing, probably rows of candles and oil lamps." A bright, above-board moral atmosphere, laced by mild cordials and sterner stuff.

"A lighting designer'd want to arrange the candles and lamps into well-chosen groups and shapes, on steep diagonals, say, angling up a wall. That'd make a pretty picture but probably isn't how they did it. They lit for utility, not effect."

He notices the overhead smoke detector blinking red. "...And safety: keep open flames away from the dancers and drunks. They had an ongoing fire hazard here."

The Store Between 1857-58 the big room was a store, but Whaley got too few customers and moved it to the plaza. The Office/Store next to the courtroom replicates the kinds of goods Whaley sold. Along with soap and bolts of cloth, rows of oil lamps and glass chimneys line the shelves. The Whaleys probably used kerosene oil (which became popular around 1859) for their lamps but may have also relied on whale oil for lamps and spermaceti candles, which emitted more smoke and a distinctly odiferous stench.

Years ago, for Halloween, writes Bonnie Vent, "the house was lit using the original lighting...kerosene lanterns in each room and sconces with lit candles on the walls...I must say the smell of kerosene was quite overwhelming. And pictures were hard to take since the setting was so dark."

The Whaley House

The Hallway Faux white marble suggests something ancient, aristocratic. "But look," says Lotze, "the glossy finish on the doors and molding isn't just ornament. It helps reflect light. The shining surfaces make the entrance more agreeable. They kind of dance."

"Also, the courtroom and store have no wallpaper. Very businesslike. But the hall and other rooms have rich patterns on the walls. In this lighting they almost become dimensional."

The Family Parlor Tourists see the antiques: the Brussels carpet (with an 1854 pattern), lace drapes (from 19th-century looms), a stereoscope, pump organ, mahogany and rosewood furniture. Lotze sees the fireplace, source of warmth and light; stately, west-facing windows to catch the afternoon sun; a high ceiling, lighter than the walls, to help reflect sunlight; and a showcase chandelier, with cut crystal drops that resemble wind chimes.

Calendar THEATER

“Such a lively room, obviously where the family entertained. Those crystals must have shimmered.

“Candles actually throw off quite a bit of light when you’re used to them. But they’re also irregular, burn down at varying speeds. People were always making adjustments: lighting candles, fixing wicks, snuffing out used ones — you never blew a candle out; too much smoke, real bad for the lungs. A room never looked the same for long. And movement through it, even the slightest breath of air, could really stir up the flames.”

Lotze — pronounced LOT-ze — had no dazzling fiat lux moment that made him a designer. While a student in junior theater, he worked as an electrician’s sidekick. “Light appeared as an opportunity. I just walked into it and turned out not to be tragically bad. It found me.”

He believes theater lighting should be more felt than seen and never stand in front of the story. Content to be “just one of the shoulders that pushes a production,” he admires designers who never shout “Look at me.”

One of his favorites, Luc Lafortune, works for Cirque du Soleil. “He has an infinite palate, thousands of lights, but it never feels like that. He uses only the ones he needs, never the full system unless called for. He makes gorgeous pictures and never calls attention to himself.”

The parlor’s the one room so far, Lotze says, where a designer could go overboard. “The Whaleys probably didn’t, but you could light 10 or 12 candles, the lamps and chandelier, the fireplace — and do an extravaganza to accompany the organ music, singing, laughter. Of course, the heat’d make everyone grab for a fan.”

The adjacent study, an alcove between the parlor and a rear bedroom framed by an arch, feels like a shroud. Even love letters from Whaley to his wife on the writing desk can’t perk up a solemn, hulking enclosure where Poe could have penned his tales of the macabre.

The desk has only one lamp. Ridges on the hand-blown bookcase glass cast dappled reflections. Late-afternoon sunlight beyond a solitary window doesn’t illumine much beyond lace curtains. Everything looks vitamin D deficient.

Lotze: “That room make you feel like writing?”

Just my last will and testament.

“You can tell why stories get fixed to a place. They say the Whaley House is haunted. I don’t know if it is or not. But shadows, in this room especially, contribute to the mystery. Creepy. Let’s move on.”

The Dining Room We enter the dining room at sundown: walnut chairs and mirrored sideboard, a coal-black, cast-iron stove. “Look at the glass panels on the stove,” says Lotze. “They’d throw a low orange or tallow-colored light across the floor — like visible warmth.

“Imagine a dinner here: brass chandelier, oil lamps, candles, the stove and stovepipe, steaming food, silver plates and glass serving pieces — everything would reflect light. Plus, look at the wallpaper!”

A metallic gold fleur-de-lys pattern, maybe 100 per wall. “If it was original, during dinner the flickering candles and steadier flow of lamplight would pick up the gold on the walls and you’d have floating crosses beaming off and on around the room. Suddenly you’ve got hundreds of candles instead of just a few and some lamps. Like fireflies. The whole room would come alive. A lighting designer would do back flips to get that effect!”

Next time: we go upstairs. We don’t see any ghosts or have any ectoplasmic epiphanies, but we do find a treasure. ■

after the quake

On January 17, 1995, a 7.2 earthquake struck just north of Kobe, Japan. Almost 7000 people lost their lives. In 2000, Haruki Murakami, Japan’s master fiction writer, wrote after the quake, short stories about the psychological aftereffects of the disaster. Frank Galati wove two of them — “honey pie” and “super-frog saves Tokyo” — into a theatrical piece about healing, ultimately, but also about facing monsters in the world and, maybe more real, in the imagination. The piece blends the stories the way Murakami blurs boundaries (for whom the mundane has mystery and the mysterious is everyday) and, also like the author, contain much more than at first appears. Galati’s adaptation is so faithful to the words that narrated portions lag (when characters talk about themselves in the third person, we’ve drifted far from theatrical immediacy). To his credit, director Galati refuses to spike moments for mere entertainment’s sake. He trusts the material, his excellent, attentive actors, and musicians playing a cello and koto to weave the spell. On the surface, the actors don’t change all that much. But understated performances allow the audience to enter the characters, where emotions swirl and create a cumulative effect.

Worth a try.

Bell, Book, and Candle

If Superman falls for Lois Lane, will he lose his powers? Will Gillian Holroyd, witch extraordinaire, lose her magic if, while slumming among mere mortals, she falls for dashing publisher Shepherd Henderson? John Van Druten’s 1950 comedy spawned the Kim Novak movie and TV show Bewitched. There seems more to Bell, Book as you watch it than after (it edges toward themes then opts for sitcom safety), but the well-crafted three-act consistently funny and, in the hands of director Darko Tresnjak, enjoys a stylish production at the Cassius Carter. Tresnjak and his designers, smartly, treat the light, dated comedy as a period piece (including the music: you need mood? Eartha Kitt purrs “Santa Baby”). As Gillian, Melinda Page Hamilton steers clear of previous interpretations — Lilli Palmer in the original, Roz Russell in the road show, Novak onscreen — but is too icy, especially when she’s supposed to thaw. Wearing Perry Como sweaters (Emily Pepper’s costumes are textbook early ’50s), Adrian LaTourelle is just right as Shepherd, the disillusioned romantic lead. The fun

Fritz Blitz: 2007 Festival of New Plays by California Playwrights
I want to plug this enterprise sight unseen. For 14 years, the Fritz Theater has presented world-premiere works by California authors. This year, the biggest festival of its kind on the West Coast stages six new works (including Mary Steelsmith's controversial Isaac, I Am), chosen from hundreds of entrants. The four-week festival offers a different program each week, and a host of genres, from comedies to drama to experimental pieces that otherwise might never have a hearing. The Blitz has become a cauldron for the creative process. It also showcases local actors and designers, and, quite possibly, future voices of the American theater.

Hamlet

Director Darko Tresnjak has set the great tragedy of dilatory revenge in Shakespeare's age — of ghosts, hell-fire, and divine right of kings. He makes no visual attempt to tweak Hamlet with forced relevance (and for this relief from contemporary narcissism, much thanks). Robert Morgan's excellent costumes bespeak the period: ruff collars and regal flecks of gold. The spare, well-spoken production has some questionable choices, and the performances are uneven (the younger actors tending to emote the ends of their scenes at the beginning). Charles Janasz's Polonius is near perfect, however, a state department official sliding toward senility. And Celeste Ciulla gives Queen Gertrude, usually played as a docile bystander, depth and vitality. The night I attended, Lucas Hall did a metamorphosis. At first he was just acting Hamlet, and watching himself do it. Then about two-thirds through, it was as if Hall grasped the impossibility of Hamlet's plight: revenge a death, kill the king, but stay pure and "taint not" his mind. Instead of just saying his lines, suddenly Hall meant them. From that point on, Prince Hamlet walked the stage.

Worth a try.

Julius Caesar

New Village Arts sold out its run of Shakespeare's play of power (and the rhetorical spin used to justify it) at their new Carlsbad space. But the company's moving its capable production to Vista for two performances (which are free; but phone ahead for tickets). To justify assassinating Caesar — an aging, self-imagined demigod who aspires to dictatorship of Rome — Cassius urges his cohorts to "think of the world." But of all the conspirators and counterrevolutionaries only Brutus does. The rest leap into the gap and try to convince friends, Romans, and countrymen (since country's women had no say) that theirs is the rightful claim. Staged with togas, sandals, and short-swords by Christopher Williams, the acting is vocally uneven (Patrick Welk-Wolf's Cassius and Ron Marchand's soothsayer, often sprint their lines and blur the sense; others drag through a speech and lose character). NVA regulars Francis Gercke (conflicted Brutus), Walter Murray (proud Caesar), and Kristianne Kurner (as Portia, Rome's Cassandra) make strong contributions. The company's new find, Chris Connor, does a splendid Marc Antony (especially the famous speech where he marbles his meanings with submerged anger). And Tom Hall does a fine turn as the meddlesome, and funny Casca.

Worth a try.

NEW VILLAGE ARTS THEATRE, AVO PLAYHOUSE, 310 MAIN STREET, VISTA, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, AT 7:00 P.M. MATINEE SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, AT 2:00 P.M. 760-433-3245.

Measure for Measure

Looking for an undemanding summer bagatelle? Go see the Old Globe's Measure for Measure. It's a real crowd-pleaser. Of course, if you want an earnest exploration of one of Shakespeare's most intricate works — designed, writes John Wilders, "to show the impossibility of writing comedy" — look elsewhere. Director Paul Mullins has glossed over subtexts and staged things just for yuks. He's tweaked every comic moment and inverted the major and minor characters. The subordinates cavort like headliners (especially Lucas Hall's hyperactive Lucio, flitting about Ralph Funicello's handsome stained-wood set as if on loan from Cirque du Soleil). The comedy frames, and in the end mocks, the somber leads. They drone on about human frailty and "lawful" mercy and feel like a nuisance the director couldn't sweep under the carpet (so he took away their inner lives). All production elements serve the comedic concept. The ensemble work, in particular, has no weak links. The pacing is brisk, the blockings appropriate. The show, in short, is of a piece. It just isn't Measure for Measure.

The Two Gentlemen of Verona

For a director, staging one of Shakespeare's earliest plays is a good news/bad news deal: you get to do the Bard, but it's Two Gents, which has gaps you could drive a truck through. Matt August's work, on the Old Globe's outdoor stage, looks as if he's burned for the assignment. Young Veronans, Valentine, Proteus, and Julia, are really innocent. And when the country boys reach Milan, they go through the looking glass into decadent Restoration England. In this lust-steamed environment the young men's rude behavior makes a bit more sense (since the adults are scruple-free), if you don't look too closely. You will wonder how Stephanie Fieger's appropriately adamant Sylvia could have remained so unlike her surroundings, and how Tom Hammond's Mick Jagger-agile Duke shrinks in the final scene, giving way to young Valentine's (likable Ryan Quinn) dimly motivated emergence as the play's moral voice. And surely Joy-Farmer Clary's sparkling Julia would regard Proteus, in the end, with a more discerning eye, especially since Corey Sorenson makes Proteus's flip, from ardent innocent to sexual terrorist, so convincing. In such a fickle world, only the clowns — Celeste Ciulla, Sam Breslin-Wright, and Jonathan McMurtry, accompanied by a scene-stealing dog named Monty — are constant.

Worth a try.

Night and Day in Portugal

"Point Loma and Ocean Beach were the traditional centers for the Portuguese in San Diego," said my friend Laura, a native San Diegan, as we settled down to our first meal at Portugalia. "They were tuna fishermen who settled here close to the coast." It's hardly surprising, then, that Jason Nascimento, himself the scion of a New England Portuguese fishing family that relocated here, would choose the neighborhood for his restaurant, Portugalia. More surprising, given local history, is that it's the only Portuguese restaurant in the county.

Portuguese cuisine is best known through its currently chic culinary offshoot from its former colony, Brazil. Unfortunately, the most popular Brazilian genre in the States is not its most alluring or exotic (that is, the lush, spicy tropicalia of Afro-Brazilian Bahian cuisine) but its simple "cow-boy cooking" — the churrascaria or rodizio grilled meat-o-rama (represented locally by Rei do Gado and Samba Grille). Portugalia's current menu includes both Brazilian genres, with several Bahian dishes, along with a new option for a rodizio-style meal of skewered proteins. In addition, it offers the nearly unknown food of the Portuguese homeland, which has plenty to offer. Remember — it was the world-sailing 16th-century Portuguese, not the Spaniards, who recognized the allure of South America's native hot peppers and spread them to Africa and Asia, causing a revolution in world cuisine and nutrition. Those sailors must have been born foodies — or at least very food-savvy traders.

The street-face of Portugalia is colorfully painted with Portuguese motifs, and the walls on the flight of stairs up from street level are lined with the flags of the country's many previous colonies in Africa, Asia, and South America, conquered during the age of its seafaring, slave-trading might in the 16th and 17th Centuries. The restaurant itself is a spacious, informal room decorated with strings of Christmas lights. It resembles an ethnic community center, with a dining room at the street end, a bar (next to the kitchen) in the middle, and a dance floor with some chairs and a platform for entertainers in the back. Eclectic music from Portugal's empire — from fado (Portugal's mellower equivalent of Spanish flamenco) to Cape Verde's Cesária Évora — plays softly on the sound system. At our first meal, several tables had been set up in the entertainment section to accommodate a party of 40 white-haired Portuguese. Laura asked if they were a tour group. "No," said our waitress, "local people." What the waitress didn't mention was that they'd all waltzed in without a reservation, calling to announce their imminent arrival while already en route to the restaurant. This plunged the kitchen (including Jason) into a frenzy of cutting and cooking as the invasion gobbled its way through the restaurant's food stocks. The food and service that night reflected the panic of dealing with a sudden plague of human locusts (no insult intended to the Portuguese nation, just to nonreserving large parties). My original title for this review was "Amateur Night in Portugal."

Our waitress that evening was a lovely, languid little blonde with an enchanting accent. (She has since flown off to become an air hostess, which is worse luck for passengers but good news for Portugalia's patrons.) When we asked for a wine list, she answered, "Our wines are Portuguese. You want white or red?" We ordered a white to start. It was so-so but cheap ($13). Sometime later we noticed the owner, Jason, a handsome, bearded 31-year-old, bringing a six-bottle rack of reds to a pair of pretty girls at the next table and squatting by their table to describe each wine. The girls split a pizza (compared to our party of five, ordering 13 dishes), but they probably had a good wine with their pie. Fortunately for us, Sam had brought a fine California red with him and got the waitress to open it early, while she was still occasionally paying attention to us.

She steered clear of our table for nearly half an hour until finally bringing us a basket of savory, warm soft rolls. The basket held wrapped butter pats, too, so we didn't have to wait another half hour. A few minutes later, the real food began to arrive. All of it was new and interesting, and much of it was delicious. (Details soon.)

After increasingly frantic calls, I reached Jason by phone a few days later (see "About the Chef"), ready to turn in my review as soon as I'd gotten the interview. He told me about the invasion by the party of Portuguese and about training a brand-new cook from Brazil who usually worked days but was called on to stay for that night's crisis. Even more relevant, he disclosed that shortly after our dinner, he'd totally changed the menu, introducing numerous Brazilian dishes, including several of Bahia's best. Realizing it wouldn't be fair to base a review solely on the Night of the Locusts, particularly with the menu changes, I rushed off to Bite for a last-minute substitute review. Promising Bahian delicacies, I lured the Bite posse (who hadn't suffered the first meal) into a visit to Portugalia early the next week. And that second visit went fine — better food, much superior service. Even the wine tasted better. (Jason had just changed distributors for his wine, so it was better.) Night and day.

At that visit, a Tuesday, there were only a few occupied tables (but a lot of family members hanging out at the bar, including kiddies), and Jason himself was cooking — and cooking very well. The food was mainly terrific. We were served by a cheerful, bustling Portuguese-American brunette who knew the menu and the wines, understood the food, and was as professional and efficient as she was helpful.

A number of Portugalia's offerings do double duty (in appropriately sized portions) as both appetizers and entrées, and these are among the kitchen's best dishes. Bolinhos de bacalhau (salt-cod fritters) are superb — airy, salty puffs of flavor, with a spicy coral dip on the side. You want these, oh yes! Camarões alinho consist of large, sweet shrimp dressed in a light garlic sauce (served over a salad in the appetizer version), and they're lovely. Linguiça com batatas and calabresa com batatas are the same dish, basically (linguiça is Portuguese sausage; calabresa is Brazilian). The slices of savory sausage mingle with sautéed potatoes, garlic, onion, herbs, and red peppers. This is better as an appetizer than entrée, because the plethora of potatoes can wear out its welcome, although it was much improved (fewer spuds, more onions) the second night. We also wanted the rissóis de camarão, fried pastry pockets filled with shrimp, but the Portuguese elders had hoovered up the first night's supply, and the pastry wasn't ready on the return visit.

All the "skewered" dishes (espetadas) are available as both appetizers and entrées. The server brings a picturesque wrought-iron stand fitted with a tall, arched meat-hook to hang the skewers, in the style of some rodízios. Among the choices are espetada de vieira, tender grilled scallops served with a charming sauce of lemon-butter and crisply caramelized onion-crumbs. Also appealing to those curious about the origins of rodízio was the espetada madeirense, skewered beef "Madeira style," marinated with bay leaf and wine. Had the beef been cooked a minute or two less, it would have been terrific. (But it wasn't, so it wasn't.)

My familiarity with Portugal's famed caldo verde soup (of sausage, kale, and potatoes) stems mainly from the robust recipe in Emeril Lagasse's first cookbook. (Mister "Bam!" is, by birth, another Portuguese-American New Englander.) I've usually cooked this soup as a main course. At Portugalia, it deserves its demotion to a starter. At least at our first dinner, it was thin and watery, the sausage mushy and sparse.

Most entrées come with your choice of starch (boiled potatoes or rice) and vegetables or salad. The first night we said, "Mix and match." Now we know: Go for the salads and rice. The salads are an ebullient mixture of shredded carrots and mushrooms, julienned lettuce, and canned black olives. You have to ruin the painterly composition to toss it with its delicate red-wine vinaigrette. It's worth the desecration. We thoroughly enjoyed the red rice, too — done pilaf-style and just moist enough, with subtle seasonings. Potatoes and mixed vegetables are plain and uninteresting.

Our outstanding entrée the first dinner was bife de moçambicana — "African"-style steak from Mozambique, with shrimps and scallops in a garlic-lemon sauce. (In Africa, it's all seafood, no steak.) We requested rare, and the beef came almost rare, accompanied by huge, sweet Bangladeshi shrimp and sliced sea scallops, with a garlicky sauce good enough to dip your rolls into. The boiled potatoes eventually were sufficiently steeped in it to be worth a few carbs.

However, in the real Mozambique this is a very spicy dish, with lots of piri piri (the local hot chilies). Portugalia's kitchen does make a piri piri sauce, but they don't automatically include it with this plate. (The old menu didn't even mention its availability.) You have to ask for it.

Do. We ordered some with our second meal (in case the Brazilian dishes were "de-spiced for gringos"). It was beautiful to look at and to taste — a rich, dark-red mixture of bell peppers, hot chilies, and garlic, faintly smoky, with a long, slow burn, the kind of heat that doesn't smash your taste buds but excites them.

At our return, our smart waitress recommended gomes de sa, one of her favorites — fresh cod with oil, vinegar, garbanzo beans, and shredded hard-cooked eggs. It was the rave of the evening, rich and complex, earthy but sophisticated in a way that reminded me of the cuisine of Provence. It tasted less like fish than some wonderful light meat, and the garnishes never for a moment lost their fascination.

My own favorite was bife apimentado, a Brazilian dish of beef sautéed with onions, peppers, and chilies. Jason brought us a saucer of farofa to sprinkle on it — toasted, seasoned manioc flour (made from ground, dried cassava root), which Brazilians sprinkle on almost everything they eat. I've sampled farofa often but never appreciated it before. Whether it was Jason's rendition of the dish or its matchup with the beef, this time it was gold dust, a lively, crunchy, perfect garnish.

Once we tasted them, my posse and I were less excited by two Bahian classics, moqueca de peixe (fish stew) and bobo de camarão (shrimp stew), both lush, slightly spicy dishes based on coconut milk. But Jason had cooked both stews with potatoes, and the spuds' heavy starchiness overpowered the sensuous tastes and textures, turning them dull and coarse. Traditionally (both at other Brazilian restaurants and in the recommendations in Brazilian cookbooks), the coconut-milk-based seafood dishes of Bahia are served over self-effacing plain white rice.

Several entrées at the first dinner flopped harder. Bacalhau assado (grilled fresh codfish with peppers and onions) was slightly overcooked and oversalted and generally less exciting than it sounded. As for lombo de porco assado (pork loin) and frango assado (marinated chicken breast), the first was shoe leather and the second, the sole of the shoe. (Jason, clearing the table, asked us why we'd left these over. When I phoned him, he told me that he'd taken the remains to the kitchen to bring their toughness to the attention of the new Brazilian cook who had prepared the dishes. However, he didn't take either dish off our bill.)

Desserts were excellent — even at the first dinner. Jason brought out a pastry tray to choose from, all made by his mom — some from old family recipes, some from cookbook recipes adapted to family tastes. The array included his mother's rice pudding, which she'd slaved over a hot stove for two hours to cook, from the owner's great-grandmother's recipe. On its surface, she'd drawn the silhouette of a rooster in cinnamon. Who could refuse? It was a charmer, light and none-too-sweet. A passion-fruit mousse was tart and intense, topped with barely sweetened whipped cream. And pasteis de nata, a pair of miniature pastries with red bottoms from implanted strawberries, proved to be made of puff pastry, concealing a custard filling. We gave them three cheers and four stars for flawless craftsmanship. Jason took our order for coffee, too, but never came back with it. (At least he didn't charge us for it.) The pasteis weren't available at the second dinner (a customer had bought out the day's supply), so we tried the Portuguese pound cake, which was pleasant, with whipped cream and huge ripe strawberries — but not in the class of the glorious custard puffs.

I can't guarantee that Portugalia will always be free from amateurish glitches, particularly at busy times. When a restaurant has been in business for three or four years and nobody has reviewed it (or even blogged about it), there's usually a reason; my guess here is that the restaurant's performance may be inconsistent even without a surprise invasion. It's basically an inflated Mom 'n' Pop — run by Junior. The chef-owner is young (although I've known many French chefs with 17 years' hard knocks in professional kitchens at his age). He's better-looking than is good for him and struck me and the posses at both dinners as rather taken with himself. (As our Commander in Chief has amply demonstrated, that's a characteristic that can inhibit the ability to learn from one's mistakes.) He has neither been to culinary school nor worked in other peoples' restaurants, missing out on all the slaving and suffering, saving and hustling that most chefs undergo before they finally get to open their own places.

But when he cooks, he's cookin'! If a meal at Portugalia may be something of a gamble, it's also an adventure, with fascinating dishes to discover and enjoy. Like the old nursery rhyme, when it is good, it is very, very good. With its moderate prices, comfortable atmosphere, and exciting, little-known cuisine, I'm betting that it's worth the risk.

ABOUT THE CHEF-OWNER

"It has been my dream to own a Portuguese restaurant, to enhance the Portuguese community in Point Loma and Ocean Beach and keep the unique traditions alive," writes chef-owner Jason Manoel Agrella Nascimento on Portugalia's website.

Soon after my first dinner at the restaurant, I started phoning Jason for an interview. Evidently, the blonde waitress didn't pass my messages on. (No surprise, she hadn't written down our reservation either.) Five days after the meal, on a Tuesday (not normally a busy restaurant night), I finally reached Jason. "I'm too busy cooking to talk right now," he said, and gave me his cell phone number to call the next afternoon. When I phoned at the specified time, he told me to call back in two hours. (I heard what sounded like a loud foreign-language TV program in the background, but maybe it was his mom yelling at him.) Next three calls, he'd turned the ringer off his cell phone. I left messages on voice mail but received no call-backs. Finally, I tried the restaurant number again. The blonde lied that Jason wasn't there, but he grabbed the phone and was ready to talk at last — on my ninth attempt to reach him. (For a guy with a degree in international relations, his public-relations acumen seems less than impressive. Restaurant professionals are usually eager to talk to reviewers. Several hot-shot chefs have even taken an hour out of their well-earned vacations to return calls before press deadline.)

"I grew up here in Ocean Beach and Point Loma," he said, speaking rapidly. "There never was a Portuguese restaurant here. My family was from back East, a fishing family. There were a lot of Portuguese restaurants back there. And when I was doing my master's degree thesis in Portugal, I hung out with an aunt, and she taught me a lot of Portugal's cooking — different meats and so forth, and I always sorted of wanted to do that.

"I'm kind of self-taught. I love to talk to people, and I knew I'd be great with customers. I earned a master's degree in international relations; it really helped me too. When I look at people, what I talk about, I get their interests going and things like that. I tell people a lot about the history and the food, the history of Portugal. I bring in a lot of Portuguese fusion with its previous colonies. I'm the executive chef, I cook three times a week, and the other three nights I have other cooks using my recipes, but I'm always here. The other chefs are all Portuguese or Brazilian. I wanted to keep it as traditional as possible.

"My restaurant's new menu is definitely Brazilian food — Portuguese food is Brazilian food, but Brazilian food is not Portuguese food. I added everything together. My Portuguese clientele is very happy because I have all the Portuguese staples, six different ways of doing the bacalhau [codfish]...

"We make everything fresh. We're a mom 'n' pop, not a corporation, we don't have bags of stuff premade. I consider myself to be a conductor in an orchestra. Why did I do this? I want my culture to shine, my community to shine, my family to shine. Owning a restaurant, every day you throw a party. Some days, not enough show up — other days, too many show up." ■

Kebab Invasion

"It's like soccer... Everywhere in the world except the U.S. So I'm bringing it here."

The pedicab driver hauls up to the sidewalk. He leaves all his lights blinking and darts into a refurbished brick building. A couple of minutes later he's back out, leaning on the lamppost, chomping into what looks like a wrap.

"Mmm," he says. "Istanbul."
"Wrap?" It looks like a tortilla, stuffed with meat and salad.

"No, no," he says. "Doner kebab. Real Turkish-style."

His name's Ufuk. He's a student of naval architecture back in Istanbul, but he's here for the summer, discovering San Diego the best way.

"I come here for this every night," he says.

We're standing outside this faux-bricky frontage with "The Kebab Shop" sign backlit above the entrance.

"Turkish foods," says Ufuk, "there's a difference. We were always on the spice routes from Asia, so we got used to rich flavors. To us, American food is a little dry, a little unexciting. But this meat...go have one."

Good idea. Nine p.m., but they're open till ten. Why not?

Inside there's more brick, but it's really cool decor. Lime-green chairs at the half-dozen white tables. Brown-stained concrete floor, a yellow wall, a white wall, a black wall, black ceiling, glowing Moroccan hanging lamps, photos of Turkey, Turkish-sounding music, and one big, vertical cone of lamb rotating in front of gas flames. That's what "doner" means in Turkish: "turned on a spit." (If you want to be a stickler, you spell it "döner" with the dots.) "Kebab" means "grilled meat," either speared on its own spit, or like here, carved off the big spit. I notice the cook. A way-tall redheaded guy in his '20s, looks like.

"Doner kebabs are coming to America!" says the menu. Huh. So this is new?

"Actually," says the cook, Aaron (he's also the owner), "I am just about the first doner kebab place in the United States. Maybe second. And yet they're all over Europe. Every street corner."

Aaron's a San Diegan, born and bred, six foot seven. He has trained as a chef, worked as an IT man, got this idea in his head when he was in Europe after he married his Swiss wife Sandra. "You get hooked. See those kids?"

He points to a bunch of guys and gals noisily heading out after a meal. Turns out they're all students, just back from Spain. Came here to relive the "Span-ish" food they'd eaten there: doner kebabs.

"It's like soccer," says Aaron. "Everywhere in the world except the U.S. So I'm bringing it here." Guess I'd better see what the fuss is about.

The choice is pretty simple. The basic items, doner kebabs, are all $4.95. They're wrapped in flatbread that looks like a flour tortilla, and in fact is. Aaron says flour tortillas are identical to traditional Turkish unleavened bread. It's stuffed with slices of lamb, chicken, or falafel (the chickpea patties), plus a raft of salad items. Shawarma kebabs, served in buns like burgers, have exactly the same ingredients and are exactly the same price. Aaron says the name "shawarma" comes from an older Turkish term also meaning "turned on a spit," except by hand.

Shish kebab plates, such as the Moroccan shrimp kebab ($8.95), the beef köfte (spiced ground beef) kebab ($7.95), or the grilled vegetable kebab ($6.95), come with two sides, like rice and Algerian eggplant, or salad and fries.

The one I'm really tempted by is the Iskender kebab. I know "Iskender" means Alexander and kinda honors Alexander the Great, or Colin Farrell, that Irish actor, to you and me (come on now, you saw the movie). So it's gotta be an important dish.

Turns out it's the most important, the most Turkish, and whoa — see one coming across the counter — just the most, period. The moby oval plate is loaded with chopped-up pita bread, tons of shaved lamb kebab, a coating of tomato-based sauce, white blobs of yogurt, and greenery sprinkled on top. Enough for two, I'd say, and it's only $7.95.

"We bake the bread so it's crispy," says Aaron, "pile on the lamb, add our tomato sauce, then add browned butter, which gives it a mysterious richness. Then lebneh yogurt, sweeter than regular yogurt. And finally I roast an Anaheim chili for the side."

I almost go for the Iskender. But honestly, I'm not sure I can handle it all. Plus I have a secret lust to try the kebab in a bun. Exotic hamburger idea. So I order the lamb shawarma and get a $1.50 iced tea.

Oh gosh. Now I see they have a cabinet full of really interesting side salads ($2.50) too, including minted zucchini, curried egg, and that Algerian eggplant.

I add a side of eggplant and go find a table to wait. Two gals and a guy have just picked up their Iskender. They tuck in. One gal and the guy are speaking a foreign language — could it be Turkish? I have to ask.

"Yes, we're Turkish," says the guy, Ali. "Melek has just arrived from Istanbul. This is her first night in San Diego." The other gal, Karyn, is American. Works at the convention center.

I have to ask. "Is this Iskender like the real thing?"

"For sure," says Ali. "Very Turkish. This is the one you must have."

Too late. I see Aaron sawing off my kebab meat, not with the traditional long knife, but with a mini circular saw. He just strokes it down the cone of lamb and the meat falls off, fine-cut. I go up and get my tray, sit down, and pig out. Must say, this lamb is luscious. Better than a baa-becue, heh heh. The meat melts in your mouth. You can taste a garlicky yogurt sauce, plus lots of good fresh salad. Lettuce, red cabbage, cucumber, onions, little bit of mint. It's like a burger for health freaks. And the eggplant side salad gives tang to this thang.

So has Aaron nailed it, Turkish-foodwise? "Look around you," says Ali, who owns the VIP Pedicab Company. "Almost everybody eating here right now is Turkish! We Turks come to an American to cook us our home comfort food. What else can I say?" ■

NORTH COASTAL

Beach Grass Cafe 159 South Coast Highway 101 (one block south of Lomas Santa Fe), Solana Beach, 858-509-0632. Formerly a branch of Parkhouse Eatery, Beach Grass has been bought by a mini-chain (with Swami's Cafe and Honey's), but still serves the original recipes. You could eat breakfast here daily and never get bored with the creative morning menu, which includes foamy, fresh orange juice and "Beach Benedict" with eggs and house-made hollandaise on a soft, lush crab cake. Oddly, though, the "maple" syrup and "butter" spread are both mass-market blends. Lunches and dinners feature multi-ethnic "coastal cuisine," with the best results in seafood dishes like "Moroccan crabcakes" and the fish-n-yam chips (with fine house-made tartar sauce). Vegetable accompaniments are tasty and creative. Reservations essential for weekend breakfasts. Free parking in back via driveway to right of restaurant. Breakfast through dinner daily. Moderate to slightly expensive. — N.W.

Besta Wan Pizza House 148 Aberdeen Drive (off the 101), Cardiff-by-the-Sea, 760-753-6707. This is a North County restaurant that continues to be popular. Their thin-crust East Coast-style pizzas are famous locally. Also check for the big-pile spaghetti or lasagna specials if you just want to fill up. Open seven days, lunch and dinner. Inexpensive. — E.B.

Cafe Zinc 132 South Cedros (at Lomas Santa Fe), Solana Beach, 858-793-5436. The Rancho Santa Fe set like to hang out here in the garden patio with their Porsches at the curb and their shih tzus under the table (dogs are welcome). Even for non-doggie people, the California pepper trees and garden sculpture make this indoor-outdoor eatery a really pleasant kick-back place (which gets its name from the zinc-top bar inside). The menu, a mixture of Italian and vegetarian, offers dishes like frittata with cucumber salsa, and baked eggplant "pizzette" (personal-size pizza) with marinara, mozzarella, and Parmesan cheese. The vegetarian chili and the Zinc veggie burger (served on a La Brea bun) are tasty too. Open daily, 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. Inexpensive. — E.B.

El Q'ero 564 South Coast Highway 101, Encinitas, 760-753-9050. You'll feel like a guest at an intimate party eating a leisurely dinner in this small, noisy, pretty dining room. Chef Monica Szepeszy offers personalized, home-style renditions of South American cuisines, including house-made beverages. Be sure to try the house's chicha morada, a tangy soft drink made from Peruvian purple corn. The fare includes numerous types of empanadas, tapas-like small plates, and full-size entrées — most from the family homeland, Peru. Desserts vary nightly and can include a cloud-like tres leches cake. Vegetarian and allergy-restricted diets accommodated. Lunch and dinner Tuesday through Saturday. Reservations necessary. Moderate. — N.W.

Firefly 251 North El Camino Real (at Mountain Vista), Suite B, Encinitas, 760-635-1066. At this spacious wine bar and restaurant (sharing a small mall with well-known Savory), the wine list emphasizes California boutique wineries and lesser-known bottlings from around the world, and plentiful choices by the glass make it easy to experiment with unfamiliar wines. The menu starts with a half-dozen wine-bar snacks including a cheese plate and a charcuterie plate. The most popular lunch item is a grand Cobb salad, and at dinner there's a tasty bourbon-and-mustard-brined pork tenderloin. Desserts are a strong suit here, including a creative crème brûlée featuring white chocolate and the fragrant bergamot of Earl Grey tea. For weekend brunches, Firefly does it up big with a long, seductive array of choices, including a delicious Dungeness crab Benedict. The menu changes frequently, but this likeable spot feels like a sophisticated neighborhood restaurant where, if you're old enough to enjoy a taste of the grape, you can pretty much come as you are. Open for lunch Monday through Friday, brunch weekends, dinner nightly. Moderate to expensive. — N.W.

seafood and organic, locally grown produce. It's quality all the way, but some nights the restaurant is a victim of its own success. The riotous overflow crowds can challenge the kitchen's capacities, not to mention diners' tender ears. (Best strategy for pleasure: Reserve for early or late on a weeknight, and ask for patio seating or Room #2.) Fun list of low-priced mini-appetizers, plus great baked oysters, seared scallops, mustard catfish, and house-cured rib eye. The award-winning wine list is half price Thursday nights, and the full bar specializes in creative martinis. "Pacifica Dine-In" offers call-in take-out for selected items. Lunch and dinner daily. Early-bird dinner discount. Pacifica Breeze Café (a level down) offers savory dishes for breakfast through late lunch daily. Expensive to very expensive. — N.W.

Paradise Grille Flower Hill Promenade, 2690 Via de la Valle (at I-5 off-ramp), Del Mar, 858-350-0808. There's a new blossom unfolding at the Flower Hill mall, as chef Justin Hoehn hones his mixture of Caribbean, Polynesian, and California coastal cuisines. Creative house-made flatbread serves as a canvas for a wide range of imaginative toppings. Appetizers are witty — grilled skewered shrimp are coated in Rice Krispies and calamari tempura misto includes batter-fried lemon slices, a surprise substitute for the standard lemon wedges. The pistachio-coated salmon entrée arrives precisely cooked to order. Other entrées include guava-glazed pork ribs, horseradish-seared ahi tuna, and short ribs braised in plum wine. The wine list is long and eclectic. Most desserts come from Opera Bakery, and they're quite good for out-sourced sweets. Weekend brunch menu is painfully tempting: Brioche French toast, flatbread with gravlax, crabcakes Benedict, even jerk chicken sandwiches. Open for lunch and dinner weekdays, brunch and dinner on weekends. Expensive. — N.W.

Potato Shack Cafe 120 West I Street (off South Coast Highway 101), Encinitas, 760-436-1282. Check out the cute potato-toon mural on the side of the building — a sign for spud-lovers to load up on portions sized for lumberjacks from The Lumberyard across the street. American fries (served "All you can eat!"), French fries, potato patties, and baked potatoes with various toppings are the heart of the menu, along with eggs, omelets, biscuits with sausage gravy, and beer-battered onion rings made from sweet reds. If size counts, consider the daunting inch-thick "manhole" pancake that's bigger than the plate. Lunch runs to "deli" sandwiches (with potatoes), or a hearty bowl of chili con carne. Arrive early weekends. Open daily, breakfast to late lunch. Inexpensive. — N.W.

Savory 267 North El Camino Real, Encinitas, 760-634-5556. Chef-owner Pascal Vignau was executive chef of the Four Seasons Aviara when he decided he wanted his own little place. His casual strip-mall restaurant has been perpetually packed for dinner since opening day. Here he serves a monthly changing menu of Southern French and Mediterranean cooking spotlighting seasonal local produce. Highlights include an ultra-rich macaroni-and-ham casserole. The adventurous mainly-Cal wine list is remarkably affordable, with many choices available by half-bottles and glasses (and modest corkage if you BYO). Dinner reservations urged; groups larger than ten accommodated with manager's approval. High tea Saturday afternoon. Lunch Tuesday through Saturday; dinner Tuesday through Sunday. Moderate. — N.W.

Tom Giblin's Irish Pub 640 Grand Avenue (at Roosevelt Street), Carlsbad Village, 760-729-7234. Occupying the whole of a handsome, sprawling, block-long Elizabethan-style building, this friendly "small-townish" saloon offers some above-average pub-grub, especially the perfect, moist corned beef with firm-tender cabbage, the huge, lively salads, and the house-baked brown bread. Boxty (Irish "peasant" potato pancakes, rarely found in California) are done up rather doughy rather than crisp to serve as "wraps" for corned beef and other dishes. Live music Tuesday through Sunday, 9 p.m. to midnight. A large, attractive heated patio next to the parking lot offers some

Tony's Jacal 621 Valley Avenue (between Genevieve Street and Juanita Street), Eden Gardens, Solana Beach, 858-755-2274. Come here at night, when the mysterious low mud-brick arches with the stained glass windows make you think Old Mexico, when the Del Mar racing bar makes you think 1930s Hollywood, and the dining patio, under the 100-year-old chinaberry tree, looks straight out of Guadalajara. Back in 1946, Tony Gonzales's wife Catalina started preparing food for fellow Mexican workers. Since then, their daughters have continued the tradition, and everybody from Liz Taylor to J. Edgar Hoover has passed through these portals. Try the "La Colonia" combination of just about anything with rice and beans. Turkey meat is big here, and the (real) crab quesadilla in a corn tortilla is delicious too. Cheapest: probably chicken strips with French fries. And "Jacal"? It means "shack." No lunch or dinner on Tuesday; no lunch Sunday. Inexpensive. — E.B.

NORTH INLAND

Abbey's Real Texas BBQ 6904 Miramar Road (at Commerce Street, behind Denny's), Miramar, 858-566-5235. Newer, smaller branch at 9353 Clairemont Mesa Boulevard (at Ruffin Road), Kearny Mesa, 858-279-7427. Texas barbecue consists of meat, chicken, turkey, and links that are repeatedly mopped with a marinade and cooked in a big cast-iron smoker (rather than grilled over a fire). Here they use mesquite to barbecue the poultry quickly and the brisket ve-r-r-y slowly. In addition to the usual BBQ sides (potato salad, coleslaw, beans, etc.), they offer a Caesar salad. At the Miramar branch the room is large and unadorned but very clean. Wheelchair accessible. Same menu lunch and dinner. Open daily; continuous service for lunch and early dinner weekdays; normal dinner hours weekends. Inexpensive to low moderate. — E.W.

El Bizcocho Rancho Bernardo Inn, 17550 Bernardo Oaks Drive (at Rancho Bernardo Road), 858-675-8500. In this rural golf-and-tennis hideaway, Chef Gavin Kaysen features upscale, creative French-California cuisine, incorporating old-is-new techniques and imaginative combinations of seasonal ingredients. Desserts run fancy and very sweet. The weighty wine tome starts out expensive and goes up from there, with relative bargains at the high end and some half-bottles; by-the-glass choices are just adequate. To find it: Take Bernardo Oaks Drive (a long block west of Pomerado) north to the end of the road, to the RBI parking lot (with validated parking for restaurant-goers). If disabled, specify when you reserve, and they'll set up your table in an accessible area. Otherwise, there's a maze of short staircases to negotiate en route to the restaurant. Tie-and-jacket requirement now relaxed, but still very dressy. Great service, luxury resort ambiance. Dinner nightly; Sunday brunch. Very expensive. — N.W.

Galeon (Escondido) 503 West Mission (at Centre City), Escondido, 760-746-5951. Mexican seafood, along with the usual dishes, is featured in a bright coffee-shop atmosphere with comfortable booths, big windows, a lunch counter and a salad bar. Shrimp and langostino ("squat lobster," in fishermen's terms) are the house specialties, and are well treated. Also consider an intense little marlin taco (squeeze some lime onto this rich, strong fish), or the savory albondigas soup (lime it up, too). Open daily, breakfast through dinner. Inexpensive (standard dishes) to moderate (seafood). — N.W.

Pho Hoa Hiep 9910 Mira Mesa Boulevard, #A, 858-578-1468 (also at 6947 Linda Vista Road, 858-268-8406). This pho (soup) place of the brothers Hoa and Hiep is a clean, busy eatery near hi-tech offices. It's popular at lunch and dinner, partly because of frequent two-for-one deals. Try the #1, Dac Biet Xe Lua, an "extra large bowl" of soup filled with rare steak slices and well-done brisket, flank, tendon, and tripe along with mint and bean sprouts. A popular breakfast pho is "French bread with beef juicy cube soup." They

Rancho Valencia 5921 Valencia Circle, Rancho Santa Fe, 858-759-6216. Nestled in the lush garden setting of the Rancho Valencia Resort is one of San Diego's dining gems. They advertise the cuisine as California-French. Whatever. Every bite from appetizer to dessert is prepared and presented to delight Californians, French people — actually, any person on the planet with taste buds. Enjoy an entrée of prime mesquite-grilled steak, fresh fish, veal, or chicken. Portions are generous, as is the wine list. Casual-elegant dress. Open daily, lunch and dinner; brunch Sunday. Very expensive. — S.M.

Vincent's Sirino's 113 West Grand Avenue, Escondido, 760-745-3835. French-born chef-owner Vincent Grumel serves Gallic classics in an intimate, small-town bistro setting. This is a cuisine of rich dark sauces robbing fine ingredients, such as a huge, flavorful veal chop (no factory calf, that). Mushrooms and vegetables (from local farmers or Grumel's own garden) are the season's best and sensitively treated. Desserts are worth every calorie — save room for the spectacular Bavarian. Full bar, fine wine list. Lunch Tuesday

LA JOLLA

A.R. Valentien The Lodge at Torrey Pines, 11480 N. Torrey Pines Road, La Jolla, 858-777-6635. A superb choice for a splurge: Chef Jeff Jackson cooks up a daily changing menu of California cuisine emphasizing the natural flavors of peak, in-season produce and top-quality well-raised meats and wild seafood. Not only is the food delicious and quietly inventive, but it's relatively healthy, with less fat, salt, and "bad carbs" than at most restaurants. Note that all dishes on the "chef tasting" dinner are also available solo. The setting (a "country inn" on a golf course) is beautiful, the warren of dining rooms quiet and romantic unless packed. Validated valet parking, free self-parking; full bar with steeply priced wines, moderate-price cocktails. Reservations essential for weekend and holiday dinners. Open three meals daily. Very expensive. — N.W.

Brockton Villa 1235 Coast Boulevard, La Jolla, 858-454-7393. Pretty and romantic, this sprawling cottage perches above La Jolla Cove and offers heated terraces as well as semi-enclosed tables indoors to admire the view. The culinary masterpiece is "Coast Toast," served until noon — the French toast of your happiest dreams, puffy and airy with a lovely orange flavor. (And the coffee is excellent.) Lunchtime features sandwiches on flavorful Bread & Cie breads while dinner runs to San Diego international-eclectic cookery that can be hit-or-miss. Affordable wines and corkage. Steep stairs to all dining areas. All nearby pay parking is uphill in a garage under Trattoria Acqua or up on Prospect. Unisex restroom. Open three meals Tuesday through Sunday; breakfast/lunch Monday. Moderate to expensive. — N.W.

The Cheese Shop 2165 Avenida de la Playa, La Jolla, 858-459-3921. Used to be the Cheese Shop had 100 varieties of cheese from all over. No more. "The cheese trade is dead," says owner Phil

RESTAURANTS

Schutz. They still have all-cheese sandwiches with mixes of provolone, Monterey Jack, Cheddar, Swiss, Muenster, Danish Havarti, or Norwegian Jarlsberg. But today this small, busy café is more famous for its “overstuffed” meat sandwiches. The leg of lamb, top round beef, and roast pork loin are all spit-roasted right beside you as you walk in, to waken your taste buds. Cheeses like crumbled Greek Mizithra add tang to the taste. If you’re into salami and ham, try the foot-long. Inexpensive. Other location: 427 Fourth Avenue, Gaslamp, 619-232-2303, open daily breakfast to late lunch, with delivery to downtown addresses. — E.B.

Great Khan’s Mongolian Festival 4545 La Jolla Village Drive (UTC), 858-678-0950. This is a chain that stretches almost as far as the Mongolian Empire, but that’s because the idea is good. One meal, plenty of it, and guaranteed fresh because it’s either frozen (curled shavings of beef, chicken, turkey, pork) or raw (veggies including cabbage, celery, broccoli, cucumber, green peppers, carrots, mushrooms, pineapple, water chestnuts). Stuff as much as you can into your bowl and hand it to the chef to braise on the huge hotplate, and add noodles. Bonus: gallery view of skaters or an ice hockey match while you eat. Open lunch through dinner weekdays, earlier closing weekends. Inexpensive. — E.B.

Harry’s Coffee Shop 7545 Girard Avenue (at Pearl), La Jolla, 858-454-0100. When Harry Rudolph II opened Harry’s back in 1960, his idea was simple: to create a down-home eatery and soda fountain where all La Jolla — rich, poor, Brahmins, and gardeners) — could mix and meet with plenty of good eats. Everyone from Joan Kroc to Junior Seau to Brooke Shields has been spotted here, along with regular folks who’ve been coming in for three decades. Now Harry III reigns quietly among a dozen whirling dervish waitresses at lunch. The big ham steak and eggs is a favorite breakfast, as is the simple, rich “Hot Creamy Oatmeal” with strawberries. Pecan pancakes and thin, crisp waffles ring true to many Easterners (though Harry offers thick Belgian-style waffles, too), and for lunch, turkey burgers and the bacon-loaded British Burger are popular. At the counter, the banter between been-here-forever waitresses and customers sounds like family life. Nice sidewalk patio, too. Breakfast and lunch daily. Long lines on weekends. Inexpensive. — E.B.

La Taverna 927 Silverado Street (at Girard Avenue), La Jolla, 858-454-0100. Reservations are a necessity at this tiny trattoria, especially if you’d prefer the relative quiet of the roofed sidewalk patio to the din of the cute but cramped dining room. Look for Italian cooking styles ranging from Tuscan, which showcases pastas with simple fresh sauces, to meatballs and red sauce. Highlights include chef-owner Mary Ann Vitale’s house-made Sicilian-style fennel sausage, and if the feather-light potato gnocchi is on spe-

Marrakesh 634 Pearl Street (at Draper), La Jolla, 858-454-2500. The North African fare of Morocco is like no other in the world — influenced by Arab cuisines, but more intense and sheerly hedonistic. At this Moroccan restaurant, the fare is arranged into a nightly five-course prix fixe feast, with superb lentil soup (harira), a salad plate, bastilla (a chicken-filled filo pie), an entrée, and finally mint tea poured from on high to accompany almond baklava perfumed with orange-flower water. The setting and service are dramatic — tented ceilings, lowbanquette seating at carved round tables, belly-dancing interludes, servers in fezzes. (You’re the Sheik of Araby.) A short list of entrées (a maximum of two choices per table, to be shared) features fine chicken (or lamb) with olives and preserved lemons; moist, fatless duck; lamb with couscous; and rather dry fish. You can request the dreamy lamb with honey, an extravaganza that includes fruits, almonds, sesame, and cinnamon. Lunch and dinner daily; reserve for weekends. Moderate. — N.W.

Piatti Ristorante 2182 Avenida de la Playa, La Jolla Shores, La Jolla, 858-454-1589. Whether you sit inside to enjoy the warm, rustic decor or outside under the giant ficus tree listening to the fountain, you’re in for a treat at this secluded restaurant. Meals begin with crunchy corn-studded ciabatta and spicy balsamic dipping sauce, but don’t fill up too soon: the appetizers and salads are varied and tasty. All pastas are house-made and served with lively, unusual sauces. Lemon-herbed rotisserie chicken, wood-fired pizzas, veal piccata, and bistecca (a grilled ribeye steak) round out the entrées. Portions are generous, so pace yourself if you’re planning to have one of their house-made desserts. Lunch and dinner daily, brunch also available Saturday and Sunday. Moderate. — S.M.

Sadaf 613 Pearl Street (at Cuvier), La Jolla, 858-551-0643. You worry — those formal fixtures and black-tux waiters, the gold-encrusted paintings, and the crisp, pink table linens all scream “expensive!” Actually, prices are easygoing, especially at lunch. After the basket of complimentary bread, fry skewers of chicken or ground filet mignon with rice or salad, or albalou polo (rice, dried cherries, and chicken). Pistachio-and-rosewater ice cream is a great finale. Nonspecials and evening meals cost more, but at any price this is real Persian food, with typical riotous herbage and sybaritic spicing. Another branch in the Gaslamp turns into a nightclub after dinner, but the food’s better at this La Jolla flagship. Inexpensive to moderate. — E.B.

Trattoria Acqua 1298 Prospect Street, La Jolla, 858-454-0709. This popular restaurant has charming decor, with arched doorways dividing a warren of white-painted, high-ceilinged rooms and terraces arranged around a tiled, heated courtyard. The seasonally changing menu could be called “avant-garde Italian,” a style that more than pushes the Italian envelope with assorted international influences. The food can be divine — or dismaying. Given Acqua’s “destination restaurant” status, there’s a surprising air of bean-counting that manifests itself in oddly lightweight silverware, waiters unclear about proper wine service, and, at times, tired veggies. Desserts, though, are superb. Full bar with extensive, wide-ranging wine list that includes half bottles as well as choices by the glass. Walk-ins accepted but weekend reservations advised. Restaurant is two floors down from Prospect, with validated parking in underground garage on Coast Boulevard. Elevator access from both directions (Acqua’s stop is the first floor). Lunch or brunch and dinner seven days. Moderate (pastas) to very expensive. — N.W.

Tutto Mare 4365 Executive Drive (at Executive Way), Golden Triangle, 858-597-1188. The modern Italian cuisine here emphasizes pasta and fresh seafood from the mesquite grill or oak-fired oven. Lunch hours roar with chic crowds from the surrounding office buildings, but the kitchen is most on its toes then, too. Pastas come with fresh-tasting sauces, and substantial seafood salads are available. Entrées (whether seafood or meat) may be overcooked by the fierce wood fires, and most come with minor variations of the same lemon-butter sauce and a one-size-fits-all veggie medley. Full bar, interesting wine list, good happy hour nibbles. Complimentary valet parking. Call for careful directions (very hard to find). Extremely noisy. Lunch and dinner weekdays, dinner weekends. Pastas and salads moderate, entrées expensive. — N.W.

MISSION VALLEY
& THE MESAS

Aladdin’s Cafe 5420 Clairemont Mesa Boulevard, Clairemont, 858-573-0000; Uptown Shopping Center, 1220 Cleveland Avenue, Hillcrest, 619-574-1111. These cafés offer a bright, clean atmosphere for bright and clean, if rather generic, Middle Eastern favorites (hummus, tabbouleh, kebabs, shawerma, etc.), plus imaginative Levantine-flavored pizzas and salads. There are ample choices for vegetarians. Both locations offer beer and wine. Hillcrest’s owners offer a more Lebanese cuisine. Inexpensive to moderate. — N.W.

Andrés Restaurant 1235 Morena Boulevard, Bay Park, 619-275-4114. This is a cozy cultural surprise on hard-to-define Morena Boulevard. The food is flavorful (and not spicy-hot like Mexican and South American dishes). A good introduction to it is ropa vieja (“old clothes”): shredded beef sautéed with mushrooms, green pepper, and tomatoes with ever-present rice and black beans. And the Cuban sandwich (roast pork, baked ham, and cheese) shows off the Cuban handling of pork. Other interesting dishes include alcapuria (pork and green plantain) and luscious, messy yuca con mojo (yuca root with garlic oil). Open for lunch and dinner Monday through Saturday. Inexpensive to moderate. — E.B.

Dumpling Inn 4619 Convoy Street #F, Kearny Mesa, 858-268-9638. Hole-in-the-wall? Yes. But what a hole-in-the-wall. For those who love the Far East and its food, finding the Dumpling Inn is a little revelation. It’s located in the busy Jasmine/Korean Market Center among Oriental herbalists, man-size-vase shops, even feng shui experts. The Inn itself is tiny but charming. Long hanging lanterns, decorative strings of scarlet and gold firecrackers, Chinese flutes, and even the odd conical straw hat. The food is serious but not expensive. Dishes like ten fish and green chive dumplings, spicy stir-fried three-ingredient lo mein (thick noodles, jumbo shrimp, calamari, and chicken plus hot red peppers) are challenging and exciting, as is the Dumpling Dinner (including hot-and-sour soup, cold cuts, shredded pork bun, pot-stickers, shrimp and pork dumplings). Don’t miss their divine jellyfish salad — crunchy-tender, bright and spicy (but not too) — you’d be hard-pressed to find its like outside of Hong Kong. Open 11 a.m. to 8:30 p.m., closed Monday. Inexpensive. — E.B.

Phuong Trang Vietnamese Seafood Restaurant 4170 Convoy Street, Kearny Mesa, 858-565-6750. Tired of putting up with the crowds at the popular Convoy Street restaurant? Go east, where you’ll find the same menu without the hassles. The fare centers on Vietnamese “people’s food” emphasizing numerous genres of noodle soups, but there are a handful of more elegant house specialties — including the extraordinary “Special Sauce” Dungeness crab from the live tank. (The sauce is tangy tamarind.) Call ahead to order steamed or grilled live-tank catfish. Reservations and credit cards accepted, both branches. Vietnamese beers including “33”; just two generic wines. Also bring a pad and write down the numbers of your orders to give the waiter, as staffers speak little English. Open daily. Inexpensive to moderate (higher for live-tank seafood). — N.W.

Shanghai City Restaurant 3860 Convoy Street #105 (off Balboa), Kearny Mesa, 858-278-5883. Forget the blah strip mall it hides in — this little piece of Shanghai is a jewel. It feels like one of those century-old places in San Francisco’s Chinatown. A two-foot-long, satin-silver arowana fish greets you as you come in. Brightly painted dragon columns support a gold dragon arch that leads you into the gold-walled dining room. Mainly, Chinese seem to come here, often eating Shanghai seafood dishes or choosing sumptuous specials like clay hot pots filled with eel and chestnuts or steamed rockfish on a big oval platter. Or, for around five dollars, you can choose lunches like Shanghai chicken, chicken chop suey, or Szechuan pork with crispy noodles, soup, steamed rice, a spring roll, and the main item. Open daily 10 a.m. to midnight. Inexpensive to moderate. — E.B.

Spice House Cafe 9035 Clairemont Mesa Boulevard (at Complex Drive, across from courthouse), 858-565-1028. When your “head feels like an old potato” and your “tongue like a button hook” (to quote Kipling), Spice House’s answer is their Hangover Omelet. We don’t know if it’s the Ortega chilies or Jack cheese or super tangy tomato sauce, but some guys swear they feel better for eating it. Other excellent choices include Portuguese sausage with three eggs; Italian sausage frittata with ham, tomatoes, mushrooms, and thick French toast topped with strawberries and whipped

Sunrise Buffet 3860 Convoy #121, Kearny Mesa, 858-715-1608. “Oysters are here!” It’s what everyone here waits for. Apart from the usual array of meats, fish, shellfish, and novelties like stuffed mushrooms, stuffed clams, dragon rolls (cucumber, avocado, asparagus), and mochi (sticky rice cake), these plates of raw oysters in their big shells are one of the big draws. This buffet restaurant is smaller than many, but it still looks like a mega-McDonald’s eating barn inside, except for a sky-blue-lit ceiling recess “heaven.” Like McDonald’s, it attracts lots of families, maybe because it’s not just all-you-can-eat, but all-you-can-drink, too — included in the price. Lunch and dinner daily. Inexpensive. — E.B.

24-Hour Valley Kitchen Family Restaurant 875 Hotel Circle South, Mission Valley, 619-819-1017 or 619-298-8282. Great when everything else is closed. The place feels like a Midwestern chain eatery: all carpets, dark-wood walls, etched glass. Prices are a little up there, but hot French dip is great and burgers are generous. Best news may be that if you feel like breakfast at midnight, no problem. Ask for the pork chops, two eggs, hash browns, and biscuits and gravy. Chops are crumbed and buried in hash browns. Splish on lots of applesauce, and leave room for the biscuits — their bacon-fat gravy will have you licking the plate. Bonus: You can sit here with a book and a coffee all night long if you like. Inexpensive to moderate. — E.B.

THE BEACHES

Bare Back Grill 4640 Mission Boulevard (at Emerald), Pacific Beach, 858-274-7117. This may be the first New Zealand food place in town, but that’s not what keeps the customers coming in. It’s BBG’s claim that most of their meat is certified organic. The owners guarantee hormone-free beef and lamb, both from New Zealand. So, what to eat? Burgers, burgers, burgers — all kinds — from prime NZ Angus to “Bare Li’l Lamb” burgers with wasabi dip. They also offer chicken. Decor inside is strictly Kiwi-land, from the all-black rugby shirt on the wall to the declaration of food principles. People who had given up on hormone-treated meat are coming here for their first burger in years. Open seven days, 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Inexpensive. — E.B.

Brazil by the Bay Restaurant and Sports Bar 3770 Hancock Street, Loma Portal, 619-692-1410. It’s not by the bay, but the food is definitely by-the-book Brazilian. You know because the first things you see are guaraná, the Amazonian energy drink, and açaí, the Amazonian palm berry energy bowl. If you’re not strapped for cash, go for the popular feijoada stew, black beans cooked slowly with “six types of pork and two kinds of beef,” offered Saturday and Sunday. If you don’t have the dough, have what most of Brazil eats every day: the “PF,” prato feito (“ready plate”). It’s beef, chicken, or fish with rice and Brazilian beans. End with the cheapest dessert, the wicked brigadeiro. Open seven days. Inexpensive. — E.B.

The French Gourmet 960 Turquoise Street, Pacific Beach, 858-488-1725. In the mood for pâté, ratatouille, or calf’s liver in a homey atmosphere? Make a reservation at The French Gourmet tout de suite. Start off with traditionally prepared escargots or mussels. The onion soup is good, but hope that the soup du jour is gingered cream of carrot. Entrées include lamb loin, veal tenderloin, bouillabaisse, and fish, with several preparation choices for chicken or filet mignon. The pan-roasted halibut is gently enhanced with a champagne beurre blanc sauce and topped with crispy braised leeks. Desserts abound, with an imported French cheese plate topping the list — along with pastries, meringues, etc., all freshly prepared in-house. Bakery, breakfast, and lunch daily; no dinner Sunday or Monday. Moderate to expensive. — S.M.

Gringo’s 4474 Mission Boulevard (at Garnet Avenue), Pacific Beach, 858-490-2877. With better cooking than you’d guess from its name, this ambitious spin-off of the local Moon-doggies chain serves the sort of Mexican cuisine you might find at a seaside resort in Cabo or Puerto Vallarta — skillfully prepared with good, fresh ingredients, just a bit dumbed-down in the flavors. The chile verde, say, is beautifully seasoned, if barely picante. Given the surefire location at the hub of PB party town, the food is actually better than it needs to be. A vast list of tequilas, interesting margaritas, and a sensible wine list emphasizing affordable, food-friendly Chilean bottlings add to the draw for a lively young crowd that revs the decibels to a roar on weekends. Three meals daily, brunch available Sunday. Moderate. — N.W.

The Mission Cafe and Coffee House 3795 Mission Boulevard (at San Jose Place), Mission Beach, 858-488-9060. Gourmet and Latino breakfasts served in funky surroundings. Outstanding are cinnamon French toast, blackberry-banana pancakes, and roast beef hash with rosemary potatoes and eggs. Chino-Latino lunch items. All dishes plus fabulous bread, scones, muffins, available for take-out. Open daily 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. Inexpensive. — E.W.

The Surfside 4527 Mission Boulevard (at Garnet Avenue), Pacific Beach, 858-273-2979. In the evenings, it’s a “scene” here — for good reason. You’ll find fresh sushi, sashimi, and “California coastal cuisine,” i.e., fun and flavorful fusion-y tapas, many of them going for half-price during weeknight happy hours. You can actually reserve for the sushi bar (it’ll put you at the head of the line), where the chefs are unusually friendly. They shine on simple, pure Japanese sushi, although they make the usual “party rolls” too. Most seafood is of fine quality (except the toro, which seems to have problems). For those preferring a tapas-style sit-down meal, there’s a breezy, informal dining room with large windows looking out on the street, plus a small private dining room for parties. At least four Japanese beers and more than a dozen sakes available. Reservations urged for large groups. Parking is tight; just one handicapped slot in front lot. Inexpensive to low moderate. — N.W.

Sushi Ota 4529 Mission Bay Drive (at Bunker Hill Street), Pacific Beach, 858-270-5670. What becomes a legend most? At its best, this renowned sushi bar offers fish of exceptional quality, perfect tart-sweet rice, tight wraps, and disciplined creativity. These joys don't come easily. First, find the place: Driving south from Balboa, look left, and pull into the mini-mall with the large 7-11 sign (opposite Rubio's). Sit at the sushi bar to snoop on your neighbors' choices, watching for off-menu extravaganzas. Don't miss the ama ebi with crisp shrimp heads, atypically flash-baked (not batter-fried). Cooked dishes are dull except for chawan mushi (custard broth with ginkgo nuts). Alas, when Ota-san's away, his elves may play — amateurishly. Best bet: Reserve a bar seat when the master's most likely to be present. Lunch Tuesday through Friday, dinner daily. Disabled access chancy. Long, crowded waits unless you've reserved. Moderate. — N.W.

CENTRAL SAN DIEGO

La Fachada 20 25th Street (near Commercial Street), Logan Heights, 619-236-8566. The thing about La Fachada is: You can have anything anytime. This restaurant near the trolley's 25th Street stop is Mexican but has Anglo food too — maybe because the cops' Central Division HQ sits across the road. Great not-quite-morning place for breakfast at, say, 3 a.m. They do a pretty good Western omelet breakfast with cheese, bell peppers, onions, and ham, bacon, or sausage. They also have great Caldo Siete Mares and Vuelta a la Vida, tasty soups laden with seafood. But the best fun is in the evening up to 11 p.m., when an outdoor kitchen operates, mostly serving tacos to eat under a big white garden canopy. Open 7 a.m. to 3 a.m. (Friday and Saturday open 24 hours). Inexpensive. — E.B.

Los Reyes 2496 Broadway (at 25th), Encanto, 619-231-0716. Smaller branch at 47th and Market. If you've ever craved those fabulous Mexican fish soups that can be such energy restorers, these strip-mall Mexican restaurants have a great one. It's Caldo 7 Mares (Seven Seas Soup) and it comes as a big bowl of savory red fish soup clunking with giant crab legs, clams, chunks of white fish, shrimp, the pink and purple suckers of octopus, and vegetables. It's also called Vuelta a la vida: "Return to life." On a hot day, their Cocktail Campechana (shrimp and octopus in a light, spicy tomato broth) will return you to life, too. Four brothers and one sister from Michoacan run the place. A very Michoacan dish is carnitas — pork shoulders. Or try their gringo lunch deal of a bacon cheeseburger with fries and a can of soda. The prices make this a tightwad's paradise. Three meals daily. Inexpensive. — E.B.

Saigon 4455 El Cajon Boulevard, City Heights, 619-284-4215 or 619-284-4288. You're in a big glass palace here. It's especially good on Sundays, when three- or four-generation Vietnamese families gather for lunch. Gaggles of waiters hover a glance away, but take your time. The menu has over 250 items on it. Default choice: pho, the famous, filling soup-meal of Vietnam where beef cooks in the soup. Another safe bet is stir-fried crispy or soft egg noodle with seafood and assorted vegetables. "33" Vietnamese beer is on hand to make Saigon lovers sentimental. Open daily. Inexpensive. — E.B.

Trieu Chau Restaurant 4653 University Avenue, City Heights, 619-280-4204. This is as near as you'll come to eating breakfast in Phnom Penh or lunch in Vientiane. Cambodians come in the morning to talk politics and play Cambodian chess. At lunch, Laotians replace them. Maps of "Kampuchea" decorate the walls, as well as long-distance telephone ads. The menu includes Chinese, Khmer, and Lao dishes. In the morning, ask for "djak kvai coffay dok ko" — fried bread with Cambodian coffee, the standard French-Khmer breakfast. Later in the day, you might try pan-fried noodles with broccoli and beef or shrimp and gravy ("koitiow bahat sai kho"). If in doubt, ask for Kathy, who speaks Chinese, Khmer, Lao — and English. Open daily, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Inexpensive. — E.B.

RESTAURANTS

Turf Supper Club 1116 25th Street, Golden Hill, 619-234-6363. At this cozy saloon (a landmark since 1950, “re-established” in 1998), if your meat’s done wrong, it’s your own fault. Every night’s an indoor cook-out, as patrons huddle by the communal fire-pit tending their steaks (a choice of three ritzy cuts, well-marinated in garlic and olive oil), burgers, chicken breasts, or portobello mushrooms; others choose the veggie kabobs or teriyaki skewers of beef, chicken, or fish. And that’s the menu. The only side dish is a simple salad — not even fries. But the meat’s a treat, especially the huge, juicy Delmonico rib eye. If you’re an utterly hopeless cook, a staffer will mind your meal for you, but you’d miss half the fun. Full bar, no reservations. Weekdays dinner only; open until 2 a.m. Wednesday through Saturday. Inexpensive to barely moderate. — N.W.

EAST COUNTY & COLLEGE AREA

Barnes Bar-B-Que 2625 Lemon Grove Avenue, Lemon Grove, 619-462-9206. Clayton Davis’s sign says it all: “Let Us Bring Tha South to Ya Mouth.” You can tell this is the real deal from the two heavy iron doors in the brick wall behind the counter and the big wood fires burning oak inside. This is Memphis-style soul food, mild and mouth watering — and cheap. Expect dollar portions, from smothered chicken or pork, neck bones and cabbage, to country yams, corn on the cob, and corn bread. Other lip-smacking dishes include chopped beef brisket sandwich, pork ribs or shoulder, beef ribs, red snapper, and hot links or ham — all with two sides and bread. Oh yes, they also serve catfish sandwiches and sweet potato tarts. Or you could just stand outside and smell the smoke. Open Tuesday through Sunday, lunch and dinner. Inexpensive. — E.B.

Jimmy’s 9635 Mission Gorge Road (at Town Center Drive), Santee, 619-448-8994. We’re at the end of the line here, the trolley’s Orange Line. Feels like a safari. You walk back through the grass to the streets of Santee. Thank goodness for this family-friendly restaurant with good, old-fashioned American food. Their six-page plastic menu tells all — forget your diet and dig into the breakfast “Eggs and Cakes” (two eggs, three pancakes), the “Touchdown” (two eggs, two hotcakes, four strips of bacon or three link sausages), or the “Monte Cristo” hot sandwich (ham and turkey grilled on batter-dipped Texas toast with Swiss cheese, hot syrup, and French fries). Later in the day, the New York strip or sirloin steak with all the trimmings, and desserts like homemade cinnamon bread pudding with raisins and whipped cream. Open three meals, seven days. Inexpensive. — E.B.

Los Michoacanos 8001 Mission Gorge Road, Santee, 619-449-9032. You get a lot for a little here. Order even one really cheap potato taco from Luis Gabriel, the owner, and you get the full treatment of tortilla chips and salsa beforehand. Then out comes this hot, crisp-shelled taco, bursting with shredded lettuce, two cheeses, and inside, the most scrumptious sautéed potatoes. It may be way cheap, but it’s no way mean. Other good Mexican dishes here include the chorizo torta or the grand garlic shrimp combo. Added bonus: The place is new, bright, red and yellow, and sports a terrace looking out across the valley. Open seven days, three meals. Inexpensive — E.B.

The Omelette Factory 7941 Mission Gorge Road, Santee, 619-596-9686. The Factory sits in the kind of stand-alone building you expect to see in a country town: long, angled roof with a portico dressing up the basic shed structure behind. It’s a great sprawling place that’s ideal to bring the kids for a big breakfast. You can’t beat their omelets, all nineteen of them, from the Just Say Cheese (with Swiss, Jack, Cheddar, or American), to the magnificent Factory Omelette (a build-your-own: up to four meats, veggies, or cheeses). A Greek family has turned this location, outside Santee, from an abandoned social hall into a regular pit stop for half the community, it seems. For lunch, try the Factory Burger. It has two hamburger patties plus gyro meat, two cheeses, and onions. Breakfast and lunch, seven days. Inexpensive. — E.B.

FAR EAST

La Posta 32337 Old Highway 80, Pine Valley, 619-478-5600. Is the Wild West dead? Not out here. Swagger in past the rocking chairs on the wooden porch, by the “NRA meets here, every 3rd Wednesday, 7 p.m.” sign, past bows and arrows, dream catchers, lariats, and brass spittoons, and swing into a chair. Now think vintage American food. Hefty anytime-breakfasts include two eggs, hash browns, biscuits, and coffee or eggs with chicken-fried steak or a bulging veggie omelet. (“With syrup” breakfast items, such as pancakes, stop at 2:30 p.m.) Their sourdough cheeseburger with fries or potato salad is big, or delve into a bowl of chili. Folks hereabouts talk about that chili in low, reverent voices. For dinner, the rib eye steak or pork chops is good enough to make city folks swoon. Three meals daily. Inexpensive. — E.B.

Ramon’s Smokehouse BBQ 1730 Alpine Boulevard, Suite 110, Alpine, 619-445-1008. The smell of mesquite wood burning under fresh-cut beef rib is beyond resistance. The secret Texas recipe draws crowds. Go Sunday morning, especially, when chefs in maroon aprons dance around the fat-spitting fire, disappearing into the clouds of fragrant smoke to flip the racks of beef and pork ribs. In good weather you can eat out back next to an authentic chuck wagon. Inexpensive. — E.B.

OLD TOWN

ing menu tries to embrace several disparate styles and can’t quite get its arms around any of them. The dishes are often ambitious; a few soar, but many falter due to flaws in conception, execution, or both. Largely ho-hum wine list needs selections with enough sweetness to stand up to items featuring Asian spice — try the Rieslings. Still, the place seems full of happiness and friendliness: yellow and orange walls, plenty of smiles amid the bustle. Soups receive lavish attention and sometimes live up to their billings. As to treats, the generous, marvelous lavender-infused crème brûlée makes this a dessert destination — pause to sniff a spoonful before slipping it between your lips. Lunch and dinner daily, breakfast Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. Inexpensive to moderate. — A.M.

Asian Bistro 414 University Avenue (just east of Fourth), Hillcrest, 619-296-4119. The historic building has been freshly redecorated, keeping only the overhead sign that used to mark a one-time Chinese “dive.” Now the eclectic pan-Asian menu emphasizes Thai flavors — the owners and kitchen staff are Thai, including executive chef “Miss Songri” (who put Celadon on the map), working in a more casual vein here. Don’t miss “Atomic Hog’s Wings” (small pork shanks) or the Louisiana fried buster crab dish named “Jumping Jarvis.” The beer and wine lists are international and affordable. Lunch and dinner, serving until 3 a.m. nightly. Lunches inexpensive, dinners moderate. — N.W.

Bread and Cie 350 University Avenue (at Fourth), Hillcrest, 619-683-9322. At least twenty breads emerge daily from this bakery’s 10,000-pound French stone hearth oven. Most are dense, crusty, and delicious French or Italian peasant breads, including the outstanding anise-fig and black olive loaves that are served in many top local restaurants. Scones, brownies, muffins, banana bread, and cookies are the sweet side of the house. Focaccia pizza and sandwiches (many with thick-sliced bread and rather thin fillings) are available to take out or eat on the spot — inside the café or on the sidewalk patio. Open daily except Christmas, breakfast through early dinner. Inexpensive. — N.W.

Cafe on Park 3831 Park Boulevard (at University), Hillcrest, 619-293-7275. Okay, it’s trendy, from the rusty spoon-and-fork sign at the door to the PC industrial interior (concrete walls, exposed plumbing). But don’t expect PC food. The plates are huge and overflowing with fodder. Breakfast scrambles are popular with add-ons such as smoked salmon, artichoke hearts, or Brie cheese. Health nuts choose the Park Porridge stuffed with apples, raisins, and honey. But the prize may be the dish that Placerville, California, miners ordered when they came down from the mountains with pockets full of gold: the Hangtown Fry — luscious marinated sautéed oysters scrambled in eggs. Three meals Tuesday through Saturday; only breakfast and lunch Sunday and Monday (line at door on Sunday). — E.B.

Ichiban 1449 University Avenue (at Normal), Hillcrest, 619-299-7203. Is this Paris or Tokyo? At night, the café outside glows like a Van Gogh painting, except the customers are eating sushi and drinking green tea, not red wine. The best values are at lunch, with weekday specials like Bento combos (sushi rolls, crab, salmon, rice) and filling soups overflowing with veggies and thick udon noodles. Healthy? You betcha. The miso soup (with every dish) made from soy and seaweed is a great daily iodine fix. Number One — that’s what “ichi-ban” means. Open to 9:30 p.m., Sunday until 9 p.m. Inexpensive. — E.B.

Jack and Giulio’s Italian Restaurant 2391 San Diego Avenue (at Arista), Old Town, 619-294-2074. After more than four decades in business, this father (Giulio) and son (Jack) operation manages to stay fresh. The antipasto salad, with its thin-cut prosciutto and salami, will get your juices flowing. All the traditional Italian entrées like veal parmigiana and fettuccine Alfredo are there, but go for the house specialties like Spaghetti New Orleans with shrimp, crawfish, and crab meat, or the expensive scampi dishes. Broke? Get a simple Angel Hair Mediterraneo or rigatoni with meat sauce to enjoy out on the patio. Open for lunch and dinner, seven days. Moderate. — E.B.

Khyber Pass 523 University Avenue (at Fifth Avenue), Hillcrest, 619-294-7579. The room’s very modern, but Afghan cuisine is full of history, carrying echoes of both Persian and Indian foods, with even a hint of Greek (Alexander the Great conquered the region). Dinners feature kebabs, tandooris, curries, and some unique regional specialties. Flavors are exotic but oddly comfortable to the cosmopolitan palate. Among the don’t-miss items are the outstanding aushak (spring onion ravioli) and mantu (ground-meat ravioli) — both with lively yogurt sauces — and zamodd chalow, a spicy lamb-and-spinach stew. Save room for the sexy desserts. Can be noisy inside; small sidewalk patio. Private dining room upstairs bookable for parties. Open daily for lunch and dinner. Moderate. — N.W.

Ono Sushi and Pacific Spice 1236 University Avenue, Hillcrest, 619-298-0616. If you are searching for huge portions, fresh tasty food and reasonable prices, don’t overlook this colorful Japanese/Pacific Rim café. Excellent specialty rolls, entrées, appetizers. Very crowded weekends; lively young crowd. Dinners nightly; open for lunch Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. Inexpensive to moderate. — E.W.

Sushi Itto 441 Washington, Hillcrest, 619-291-6060. Don’t come here looking for Japanese food. This is Mexican sushi, from a chain based in Mexico City that’s dedicated to creating rolls for Mexican tastes. Nearly all the party rolls feature cream cheese and avocado and most include a shot of hot spice and some fake crab (surimi), too. In their own way, they’re fun, so long as you’re prepared to give up any puristic standards and go with the flow. But don’t bother with the plain nigiri — the rice lacks classic sushi seasonings (and is often dry), and the seafood is too mediocre to be appealing in simple preparations. Rock-bottom prices, though. Another branch is in the Gaslamp at 409 F Street, 619-237-1037. Open daily, lunch and dinner. Inexpensive. — N.W.

Terra 3900 Vermont Street, Uptown Shopping Center, Hillcrest, 619-293-7088. Co-owner Jeff Rossman, formerly in charge of the front of the house, has moved into the kitchen to serve as chef at this comfortable neighborhood spot, serving venturesome, if uneven, tropical-influenced American cooking. You can settle in a spacious southwest-tinged dining room or people-watch from a sheltered outdoor patio (with smoking permitted). Generously sized tapas can serve as appetizers or as a sustaining bite before venturing into Trader Joe’s across the street. The dinner menu changes seasonally, featuring barbecue items during the summer, comforting fare in colder weather, and special dinners on all major holidays. Good wine list with several flights available, full bar with tropical cocktails (Pisco Sours, Caipirinhas, etc.). Reservations advised, especially for weekends, holidays and special events (e.g., Sunday “blues and barbecue” during the summer). Saturday and Sunday three meals, weekdays lunch and dinner. Moderate. — N.W.

DOWNTOWN

Athens Market 109 West F Street (between First and Front), 619-234-1955. Alex Spanos and lots of local hotshots come here for honest Greek home cookin’. Yes, it’s classy — white table cloths, linen napkins — but you can fill up on just a bowl of fakee, owner Mary Pappas’s “secret recipe” lentil soup, and an appetizer, like spanakopita (spinach and cheese pastry pockets). Entrées come with rice, roast potato, a vegetable, soup or salad, and French bread and butter — all at a darned good price. Oh, and don’t despise the gyro. Meat flavor’s great, and it takes a football player to empty this plate. Lunch and dinner Monday through Friday, dinner only Saturday, closed Sunday. Inexpensive to moderate. — E.B.

Bud’s Louisiana Food Shoppe 2034 Kettner Boulevard (at Grape, next to the Waterfront Bar), Little Italy, 619-239-4210. Bud Deslattes, a New Orleans native, was the original chef-owner of the late Bayou Bar and Grille and the inventor of the legendary white chocolate bread pudding served there. Now he’s cooking it in this cute, casual eatery. A brief but choice menu features authentic Cajun-Creole specialties, to eat in or “to geaux.” (If taking out, ask for your rice on the side.) Among the treats are a fine seafood bisque, crawfish étouffée, and a “cupa-cupa-cupa” sampling of gumbo, jambalaya, and red beans and rice. For lunch, check out the roast beef po’ boy. Some Louisiana grocery items intermittently available at retail (frozen andouille, tasso, crawfish, etc.). Parking’s usually a pain but worth it. Beer and generic wine. Closed Sunday and Monday. Inexpensive. — N.W.

Cabo Cafe & Grill 808 West Cedar (near Pacific Coast Highway), Little Italy, 619-595-1618. This miracle restaurant is run by homeless kids from the Monarch School Project next door, with a little help (okay, a lot) from Rubio’s and its founder Ralph. He helped raise a million dollars to get the school and the restaurant running. Think Starbucks meets Taco Bell (oops, sorry Ralph). The place is like its kid-staff: smart, cheery (they painted all the seals and porpoise murals), with a great fountain-gurgling patio outside. Try the grilled burrito (grilled chicken or steak with guacamole, roasted salsa, sour cream, black beans, Mexican rice, and melted Jack cheese in a warm tortilla) or, as a great filler, the Cabo Maestro Bowl, with marinated grilled chicken or steak in a bowl with black beans, Mexican rice, cheeses, guacamole, and shredded cabbage. And yes, they do make the Rubio fish taco. Daily specials. Open weekdays, 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. Inexpensive. — E.B.

Edgewater Grill 861 West Harbor Drive, Seaport Village, 619-232-7581. An easy walk from the Convention Center, the dining room is spacious and handsome, and the view from the crowded dining terrace is optimal (the bay, the Coronado Bridge, a park, etc.). The menu, though, is convention-centered — like a Howard Johnson’s for the 21st century. The fare features middle-of-the-road faux-fusion salads, seafood, grilled steaks, pastas (most with shellfish), and individual pizzas, plus daily fin-fish dishes listed on a card in a plastic holder on the table. The lighter dishes are the most successful — this is not a bad place to “graze” on appetizers and a mini-pizza when you’re starved for a view. Difficult wheelchair access to terrace. Open daily, breakfast through dinner. Entrées high moderate to very expensive. — N.W.

Fat City Steakhouse 2137 Pacific Highway (at Hawthorn), Little Italy, 619-232-9303. In the Deco “pink palace” at the edge of downtown, the USDA Choice steaks (and one velvety Prime cut) are cooked over mesquite charcoal, which lends them a deliciously smoky campfire flavor. Don’t like beef? You can choose nicely grilled chicken, pork, or salmon; two vegan pastas; or scampi. The appetizer list is mainly trite pub grub, but the fry cook does a great job with calamari. And in fair weather, the lush garden dining patio is a little piece of Eden. Full bar, rather basic wine list. Casual ambience, above-average wheelchair access from large, free parking lot. Dinner daily 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. Inexpensive to moderate. — N.W.

Gen Lai Sen Hakka Seafood Restaurant 1065 12th Avenue (at C Street), downtown, 619-239-5478 or 619-239-5479. Across the street from City College, you’ll encounter a split personality. The good twin provides superb Hakka dishes, a style developed by a nomadic people originally from northwest China, now residents of mainly the south China coast. The bad twin dishes out gluey cornstarch-ridden stir-fries for starving students. But it’s easy to tell which twin is which: The “chef recommend sizzle plates,” the hot pots that taste like home cooking (best ordered by four or more), the greaslesse fried rice, the noodles (especially “house special rice noodles”), and the whole steamed fish-of-the-day are palpable hits. And if you really want to know what the fuss about Hakka is all about, try the sizzle plate stuffed tofu — these deep-fried crisp rectangles with a pork meatball inserted in each tender center resemble meat-flavored roasted marshmallows, and may just change your mind about bean curd. Open brunch through dinner Monday through Friday. Pleasant service, very casual, mainly inexpensive. — N.W.

Las Cuatro Milpas 1857 Logan Avenue, Barrio Logan, 619-234-4460. This isn't a restaurant, it's a legend. The same Estudillo family has been serving old-fashioned Mexican food here for three generations — seventy years. Rice, beans, pork tacos (they don't serve beef), pork tamales, chorizo with eggs — that's about it. So how come they have lines outside every day? Blame a potent mixture of sentiment and the lard they refuse to abandon. Folks say that lard flavor is the real Mexico. Also famous: their Saturday menudo. Warning: go easy with their deep wine-colored hot sauce. It's room-rocker strength. The name? From a famous mariachi song, "The Four Cornfields." Open morning to mid-afternoon, Monday to Saturday. Inexpensive. — E.B.

Mediterranean Cafe and Lounge 1352 Fifth Avenue (between A and Ash), downtown, 619-515-2233 or 619-325-1900. Don't come early. You'll be all alone. Turn up around midnight, and you'll see just how social the Lebanese can be. Meals are spread over a couple of hours with lots of conversation, probably finishing with a baklava, Turkish coffee, and a sheesha — water pipe (much cheaper by the hour here than down in the Gaslamp; best flavor: rose). They have the whole panoply of Middle Eastern and Greek food, but the best deals are probably the single lamb skewer on a roll of pita bread with hummus, tomato, lettuce, and pickles, or the meat pie on pita. Open 5:30 p.m. to 3 a.m., seven days. Inexpensive to moderate. — E.B.

Ocean Room and Lounge 630 Fifth Avenue (north of Market), Gaslamp, 619-501-6550. Sometimes you don't want a temple of haute cuisine, merely an easygoing place for folks to meet — especially if there are oysters involved. Ocean Room fills that bill handily, one of the few Gaslamp joints where you can enjoy a conversation without straining over the noise. The fare is mainly Mediterranean-style seafood, with a few nods at Cajun cuisine. Pleasant dishes include mussels mariniere, "Cajun" seafood pasta (with sub-Cajun spice levels), seafood pan roast, and Fanny Bay oysters on the half-shell. Or try the oyster shooters. Valet parking, bar for single diners, casual feel. Dinner nightly. Expensive (but less than average for the neighborhood). — N.W.

Pete's Quality Meats 1742-1/2 India Street, Little Italy, 619-234-1684. Pete's Meats was just a butcher's shop until Pete's daughter and sister-in-law got the idea to set up a grill there. Now aficionados line up for Sicilian specialties like Italian-sausage sandwiches, steak sandwiches, and especially spitini — veal rolled around two cheeses, onions, tomatoes, pine nuts, currants, parsley, prosciutto, and bread crumbs. Pete stuffs all of that into a hot bun with marinara sauce, sautéed peppers, and onions as packing. Nuff said? Inexpensive. — E.B.

Rama 327 Fourth Avenue (near K Street), Gaslamp, 619-501-8424. This large, handsome restaurant is the younger brother of Celadon in Hillcrest. It's named for the king of Thailand and offers Thai cuisine fit for royalty, made with top ingredients (including Chino Farms produce). The menu includes all the popular favorites but adds authentic dishes rarely found locally, such as chicken and squid with flat noodles and caramelized palm sugar, and a wicked Thai version of Chinese twice-cooked pork — a fat-fest made with unsmoked bacon. Soups and curries are based on freshly made coconut cream of swoony richness. The extensive wine list, un-

Rei Do Gado Churrascuria 939 Fourth Avenue (between E and Broadway), Gaslamp, 619-702-8464. The meats just keep on coming at a Brazilian rodizio: skewer after skewer of churrasco (Brazilian barbecue), a near-endless procession of rotisserie-grilled meats and poultry. At each table there's a wooden cone with one end red and the other end green. Turn the green side up to start the servers parading to your table, offering you tastes cut from long spits of salty, simply seasoned pork, poultry, ribs, sausages, and numerous cuts of beef. Turn the cone red side up to take a break from the protein parade. The gargantuan spread includes a buffet in the front of the restaurant with a changeable array of alluring side dishes, salads, fruit, and such intriguing hot entrées as seafood in coconut milk, with exotic but oddly comfortable flavors. There's always a potful of feijoada, the national dish — slow-cooked, meaty black beans (in a somewhat bland version, which you can liven up with a splash of hot sauce). No matter how often you eat here, you'll never have the same meal twice. Reservations advisable for weekends. Full bar (have a Caipirinha). No doggie-bags. Lunch and dinner daily. Moderate (considering the food amount). — N.W.

Sadaf 828 Fifth Avenue (at E Street), Gaslamp, 619-338-0008. Vegetarian-friendly. Quiet and relaxed weeknights, the room becomes an ear-splitting mob scene weekends (even before the restaurant goes disco at 9:30). The hearty but sophisticated Persian fare centers on well-marinated kebabs and herb-rich stews, served with various savory rice dishes. There's excellent spinach borani, sieved yogurt relish with cucumbers, lamb chop kebabs, and a vibrant, sweet-sour fesenjan (pomegranate-walnut sauce with chicken). But the Gaslamp branch's kitchen is wildly inconsistent, e.g., your fesenjan dumped on dry kebabs instead of mingling with simmered poultry. Desserts are always dreamy — try rosewater ice cream and/or pudding, or bamieh, a delicate ladyfinger soaked in (what else?) rosewater syrup. Moderate. — N.W.

Sevilla 555 Fourth Avenue (at Market Street), Gaslamp, 619-233-5979. This site has three faces: a crowded but civilized tapas bar for spontaneous snacking, a romantic dining room with serious Spanish entrées, and a basement nightclub dishing out assembly-line paella. The best food is upstairs. You can get tapas in the restaurant and entrées at the bar, and in either case the choices are varied, interesting, and highly cosmopolitan, executed with wonderful consistency. Be sure to look for something that includes potatoes; the humble spud gets Cinderella treatment here. No reservations (or wheelchairs) at tapas bar; reservations strongly recommended for dining room. Dinner daily. Moderate. — N.W.

The Westgate Gourmet Delicatessen Third Avenue, between Broadway and C Street, downtown, 619-557-3698. This is where you take your respectable Aunt Martha for lunch. The place reeks of gentility. Green carpets, white linen cloths, fresh flowers, chandeliers, giant potted palms. It's part of the Westgate hotel and looks like a grocery for the rich who just can't live without specialty olive oils and expensive wines. But prices for sandwiches, light breakfasts, and lunches are down there with the best Market Street liquor-deli. Among the menu items offered, the best deal is the soup and half-sandwich combo, especially the Friday cioppino: a tomato-based soup filled with fish such as sea bass, shrimp, and scallops. Open Monday through Friday for breakfast and lunch. Inexpensive. — E.B.

SOUTH BAY & CORONADO

Coronado Boathouse 1887 1701 Strand Way, Coronado, 619-435-0155. For a relaxing good time with lovely views and tasty food to match, put on your aloha shirt and head over the bridge. The old Coronado Boathouse boasts a handsome, historic structure with architecture mirroring the nearby Hotel Del, plus enthusiastic servers, terrific water views, and satisfying mainstream American cooking. The herbed artichoke appetizer and fresh macadamia-crusted halibut sauced with coconut milk are wonderful. The juicy roast beef here is USDA Prime (translates to "melt in your mouth") and even the desserts offer some old favorites cooked with classy ingredients and imaginative twists. A perfect place to entertain your in-laws or hold your birthday dinner. Full bar. Dinner seven days, moderate to expensive. — N.W.

Da Kine's Plate Lunches 1635 Sweetwater Road (at Prospect), National City, 619-477-8494. You go here for your Pacific Island fix — hundreds of Hawaiians do, every day. You'll find Hawaiian license plates and surfboards on the walls, "Aloha Maid" Guava Nectar, and island food. Although the kalua pig here isn't cooked in an imu — a hole in the ground — it sure tastes like the real thing and comes with cabbage, rice, macaroni salad, and kimchi. But beware of the haupia cake — it may cause serious addiction. Lunch and early dinner daily. Inexpensive. — E.B.

Filipino Desserts Plus 2220-Q East Plaza Boulevard, National City, 619-479-6748; also at 8955-F Mira Mesa Boulevard (inside Seafood City), Mira Mesa, 858-271-5754. Filipinos often mix sweet and savory, so it's no surprise that this desserts place has regular dishes too, including adobo pork, pancit, and lumpia. Diniguan, a Filipino specialty, is pork made with "chocolate milk," slang for pig's blood. But the pride of the place is the desserts, from the ube halea (purple yam custard) to the sapin sapin (multicolored layer cake) and fried sweet saba banana on a

Island Wok 922 Orange Avenue, Coronado, 619-435-6835. This tiny indoor-outdoor-takeaway café is a standby with locals, especially the high school crowd. It serves good Vietnamese-Chinese food, and plenty of it. The owner, Xuan, makes scrumptious fresh (not fried) Vietnamese spring rolls wrapped in rice paper with shrimp, pork, or chicken and vegetables in the middle. But most customers go for the steam-table combination plates. You always get chow mein, fried or steamed rice, and a fried spring roll to start off, and then you can add entrées like orange chicken, kung pao chicken, or sweet-and-sour pork. Lunch and dinner Monday through Saturday. Closed Sunday. Inexpensive. — E.B.

Parisi's Italian Restaurant 323 Broadway, Chula Vista, 619-420-4490. This is an area where a lot of folks live in trailer parks on fixed incomes, and Parisi's has become their affordable, often daily treat. The good news is they don't just open cans. Nick and Rosemary Parisi, who opened here back in 1979, brought New Jersey traditions with them. Nick had been a butcher. His son Nick still makes his own delicious fennel-flavored sausage just as his dad taught him. Sons and daughters now run the place and still make their own spaghetti sauce, too. Other dishes include the eggplant or veal Parmesan sandwich and meatballs and sauce with garlic bread. This isn't the smart, spare Gaslamp Italian, it's the old-fashioned Moonstruck Italian. Lunch and dinner daily. — E.B.

Peohe's The Landing, 1201 First Street, Coronado, 619-437-4474. This gorgeous, view-endowed restaurant offers upscale, Hawaiian-inspired fish and gargantuan steaks in a plush tropical-style setting with indoor waterfalls and three separate patios. Given the visual splendor, much of the food is better than it needs to be, featuring top-quality seafood prepared with care, e.g., halibut in a lush, sassy Frangelico-touched macadamia beurre blanc. A chocolate shell filled with macadamia nut ice cream may be worth the calories, too. Full bar. Reservations advised. Lunch (with limited breakfast) Monday through Saturday; brunch Sunday. Dinner nightly. Expensive. — N.W.

Swaddee Thai 1001 C Avenue (at 10th Street), Coronado, 619-435-8110. Tourists never stray to Swaddee's quiet residential location a block from the bright lights of Orange Avenue. Their loss is the locals' gain. The dining room is a quiet, lovely haven from the hustle; the service is caring and gracious. Even if the long list of Siamese specialties is merely standard, the kitchen, too, is devoted to the art of gently giving pleasure. The peanut sauce accompanying the saté, for instance, is classically balanced; the complex but soothing coconut-chicken soup can wash away all cares; and the calamari in the many seafood arrays is cleverly knife-scored to achieve sheer tenderness along with good looks. Even the jasmine rice is an exceptionally fragrant brand. Unless you specify otherwise, spicy dishes have a nice nip tuned to brave but tender farang tastebuds. Lunch and dinner daily. Inexpensive to moderate. — N.W.

BAJA

From the United States use the prefix 011-52-664 when calling Tijuana; when calling in Tijuana use only the restaurant's seven-digit number.

Cien Años Calle José María Velasco #1407, Zona Río, Tijuana, 634-3039 or 634-7262. This lovely, comfortable, dressy-casual "destination restaurant" serves extraordinary Mexican haute cuisine, graced with a brilliant variety of sauces based on elaborations of Mexican ingredients, including tropical fruits, nuts, and above all a vast variety of chile peppers, each with its own distinctive flavor (not all of them spicy). You could eat here a dozen times and not begin to exhaust the possibilities. Just a few of the treats are mushrooms steeped in beef marrow, crocodile meat mini-tacos, pozole with crab meat, and an irresistible beef and shrimp stew. (Food critic Ruth Reichl consumed a meal of exotic Aztec delicacies, including art roe and mecal worms, and you can try them too when they're in season.) The wine list is devoted wholly to ambitious Baja wineries; you're also welcome to BYO. Bar choices include damiana and hibiscus liqueurs. Menu and staff are bilingual. Reservations strongly advised; ask for directions. Moderate. — N.W.

La Costa Calle Galeana #8131 (Seventh Street between Revolución and Constitución), Tijuana, 685-8494 or 685-3124. Even after four decades, fisherman-singer Adrián Pedrín Aramburo's seafood place looks fresh, with its blue-and-white floor tiles, polished brass portholes, and varnish. Some seafood combos can be costly, but most fish and oyster dishes are reasonable. Everybody seems to go for fileted sea bass — the baked "Catalina" with mushroom cream sauce, or "Olivia," stuffed with octopus and shrimp, are really good. So are "Madrazo" oysters, with chipotle and bacon. But you can't go wrong with the less expensive whole fish plates, like the charcoal-broiled "Sarandeadó" (just watch out for the bones). Each entrée comes with soup, hors d'oeuvre, salad, rice, and coffee, plus a Kahlua-based drink-dessert. Bonus: the owner's charming menu inserts. Open daily, late breakfast through dinner. Moderate to expensive. — E.B.

La Fonda Baja Highway 1, Km. 59 (Alisios exit from toll-road, about halfway between Rosarito and Ensenada), 661-628-7352. It's hard to imagine a better start to the day, in any sweeter ambience, than at La Fonda ("The Inn"), which offers Mexican and American breakfast dishes and a lavish Sunday brunch buffet with both. Arrive early for patio seating under a straw umbrella with a full-out ocean view. The bilingual menu is written on chalkboards and dinner choices change nightly, featuring American and Mexican seafood entrées and deluxe meats aged in-house. Most staffers speak some English. Full bar, including Bajagrown wines. Open daily, three meals, starting about 9 a.m. Inexpensive to moderate; cash only. — N.W.

La Leña Agua Caliente Boulevard #11191, Tijuana, 686-2920. The nicest thing about La Leña ("The Fire Log") is its view. You come off noisy, fume-y, traffic-wracked Agua Caliente into this quiet, dark-wood, creamy-yellow walled room and a full view of... countryside! Actually, a green golf course studded with trees. In the middle of Tijuana? Golfers thwack balls, giant mowers look like Star Wars creatures. So no surprise that you get country-club type eating: open-grill charro food for well-to-do charros. Old-style BBQ steaks, surf-and-turf combos, and big slabs of Mexican-cut filete cabrería, which are flabby but tender. Most arrive at your table sizzling on black iron hotplates. Servings are generous (meals come with soup or salad and you get a free appetizer such as shredded beef and tortillas) if not remarkable. Or even especially Mexican — their hamburger is darned tasty. But the atmosphere is a great break from the raucous TJ we all know and (sometimes) love. Lunch and dinner daily from 11 a.m. until late. Moderate. — E.B.

Manzanilla Riveroll 122 (off Lopez Mateo), Ensenada, Baja Mexico, 646-175-7073. At this art-filled, very "Euro" bistro, a pair of gifted, classically trained chef-owners are pioneering "new Mexican cuisine," creating sophisticated combinations of superb local products and traditional Mexican flavors. Fresh-caught seafood, local-grown vegetables and mesquite smoke from the wood-burning grill are featured players on the seasonal menus; a spectacular rib-eye steak, tender and intensely beefy, is also a constant. Little wonder this has become the destination restaurant south of Tijuana. The menu is in Spanish, but owners Benito Molina and Solange Muris Evans speak fluent English, as do some wait staff. (The only communication problem will be the exotic music blasting on the sound system.) Reserve for weekends, especially during tourist seasons. Full bar featuring tequilas, Baja vintners. Wednesday through Saturday, late lunch through dinner, until midnight. Moderate. — N.W.

Original Ortega's In Puerto Nuevo, next to Casa de la Langosta, on the first street to your left (Calle Principal) after entering town through the entry gate. Open since 1952, this is the original "Lobster Village" restaurant, and not much has changed. Eventually Ortega's grew into an octopus with multiple arms in Puerto Nuevo and Rosarito Beach, all pretty similar. The menu is longer than most, with numerous starters (including a tasty ceviche and an excellent tortilla soup), varied seafood entrées and antojitos, desserts, and even fancy coffees (including "Viagra," which features reputedly aphrodisiac Damiana herbal liqueur). The spiny lobsters (once local but now from who-knows-where) are first fried in lard, then finished off on the grill, and served with a greasy-tasting melted "Kitchen Maid" margarine blend, frijoles, rice, tortillas, and salsa. Full bar, English menu, staff marginally bilingual. Moderate to high, but with low-moderate specials. No reservations, cash only. — N.W.

MULTIPLE LOCATIONS

Bully's East 2401 Camino del Rio South, Mission Valley, 619-291-2665. Also at 5755 La Jolla Boulevard, La Jolla (858-459-2768), and 1404 Camino del Mar, Del Mar (858-755-1660). Despite the plasma TV sports screen, this place is very sixties. For example, dark, woody, plush red booths. And always crowded. Word is, they serve more prime rib with au jus and horseradish than any eatery in San Diego. The "Petite Cut" 8 ounce, their smallest, fills you plenty, with its baked potato and salad. But just once, come here with your main squeeze and order up the "full cut for two." It hangs ten over the edges. Or go bonkers and order the 32-ounce cut (available in Mission Valley) — just to watch your neighbors' eyes bug out. Not flush? Try the "Bully Burger," French Dip sandwich, or calamari sandwich. Lonely? Go to the horseshoe-shaped Low Bar. Lunch and dinner daily. — E.B.

Cilantro Live! 315-1/2 3rd Avenue, Chula Vista, 619-827-7401. (Newest opening at 3807 Fifth Avenue, Hillcrest, 619-325-1949. Also at 7822 Broadway Avenue, Lemon Grove, 619-433-0678; and 300 Carlsbad Village Drive, Carlsbad, 760-585-0136.) Look in Cristina Guzmán's kitchen: no ovens, no burners. Only warmers. Her theory? Never heat food above 112 degrees or the enzymes will die. Enzymes? They're life. They give you energy and do your digestion for you. What's amazing is how much real-looking and -tasting food she can create with raw nuts and twigs. And fruit. And especially seeds. She creates tuna wraps using sunflower-pumpkin seed pâté and burgers using flax seeds — both pretty credible and edible. Drinks? The margaritas (green apple with ginger, lime, and cinnamon) have to be good: Ms. Guzmán comes from Mexico City. Open for lunch and dinner Tuesday through Sunday. Lunch and dinner daily at Hillcrest branch. Inexpensive. — E.B.

National City, 619-470-3002; 3489 Santo Road (at Aero Drive), 858-573-0035; Metropolitan Center, 1737 Euclid Avenue (north of Federal Boulevard), Chollas Creek, 619-527-6565; and 6095 El Cajon Boulevard (at College Avenue), 619-286-3322. This is the one major national chain to cling firmly to a regional American identity: Wherever you go, if you find a Popeye's, you'll be eating Louisiana flavors. But some flavors travel better than others in fast-food translations: The spicy, crisp fried chicken and air-light drop biscuits are fine as can be. The étouffé (whether of chicken or crawfish, when available) is surprisingly decent. The gumbo, offered at some locations, is weird — flavors aren't bad, but it's more like a Creole risotto, with wet rice instead of liquid (where's the soup?). Dirty rice and jambalaya are nasty and dry. Food quality varies subtly from branch to branch, as does the attitude of the counter-persons. Open daily, three meals. Inexpensive. — N.W.

Ruby's Diner 1 Pierview Way, Oceanside, 760-433-7829. One thing about Ruby's: You can build an appetite just getting there. It's at the end of the 1/3 mile-long Oceanside pier. (There's a $1 shuttle tram, too.) Ruby's is part of a themed "forties diner" chain stretching from LAX to Scottsdale, Arizona. But it's still fun. Shiny Chevy Corvette-style red leatherette and chrome booths, white walls, portholes, old Coca-Cola signs, "Dewey-Warren" presidential buttons, and that view to Hawaii. Good-sized servings, too — try their omelets. Also in Carlsbad and Mission Valley. Open daily. Inexpensive. — E.B.

Uno Chicago Bar and Grill The 1943-born Uno chain made its mark by transforming the flat Italian pizza into something a little more upstanding. Deep-dish pizzas have become one of Chicago's better-known exports. Now Uno does serious steak too, with variously sized Angus top sirloins. They come pretty much as is, but the meat itself is plenty flavorful and tender. Its expanded menu includes fajitas, ribs, shrimp scampi, and steak'n cheese burgers. Still, most lunchtime customers we saw seemed to stick to the staple: deep-dish pizzas and salads. Open daily, continuous service, lunch and dinner. Inexpensive to moderate. 4465 Mission Boulevard, Pacific Beach, 858-483-4143; Fashion Valley Center, 619-298-1866; 5th and H, Chula Vista, 619-420-8660; 890 W. Valley Parkway, Escondido, 760-480-8667. — E.B.

Angst and Infamy

The winning new teen romp Superbad was written by Evan Goldberg and Judd Apatow's protégé Seth Rogen and directed by The Daytrippers' Greg Mottola, but it still feels like the concluding film in Apatow's trilogy of raunchy, big-hearted, improvisation-heavy comedies about man-children torn between the pleasures of eternal adolescence and the relentless pull of adult responsibility. The stars and sensibility get younger with each successive film: The 40-Year-Old Virgin's middle-aged Steve Carell gave way to twentysomething Knocked Up star Rogen, and now teenagers Jonah Hill and Michael Cera step in as codependent buddies facing the end of high school and scary/exciting college careers pulling them in separate directions.

Like American Graffiti and Dazed and Confused, Superbad condenses all the cruelty, mixed emotions, angst, fun, and insanity of high school life into a single night of kinetic mayhem. In the tradition of such end-of-class movies, Superbad chronicles Hill and Cera's epic misadventures in securing alcohol for a raucous party where they hope to finally score with their respective crushes. In a hilarious subplot, über-Poindexter/unwieldy third wheel Christopher Mintz-Plasse gets separated from Hill and Cera and spends the night tagging along with a pair of goofy, underachieving Super Troopers (Seth Rogen and Bill Hader) who immediately take to Mintz-Plasse because they never really stopped being goofy teenaged dorks themselves. The looming specter of college and its friendship-testing separation gives the film a bittersweet undertone that seldom gets in the way of big-ass laughs and infectious high spirits.

With Superbad, producer Apatow solidifies his position as the undisputed king of dick-joke movies with surprising emotional relevance. But the element of surprise is largely gone: After Virgin and Knocked Up, people have come to expect Apatow's productions to include a little pathos with the scatological tomfoolery. Superbad consequently sets itself apart through the quality and quantity of its manhood-themed humor. From a riotous flashback to Hill's monomaniacal early obsession with drawing male genitalia onward, this is the Citizen Kane of dick-joke movies. Superbad is a funny, boozy, ramshackle party, but it's more likely to leave audiences with a tingly afterglow than a pounding hangover.

First published in 1955, Jack Finney's novella The Body Snatchers enjoyed a five-decade run in which it seemed incapable of inspiring anything less than haunting films. Don Siegel's 1956 attempt, Invasion of the Body Snatchers, echoed anti-Communist paranoia but muddled the message by making the bad guys take the form of bland '50s suburbanites. In 1978, Philip Kaufman used it as an excuse to look at Me-Decade myopia. Abel Ferrara's little-seen 1993 version (called simply Body Snatchers) channeled the unquestioning nationalism stirred by Desert Storm. Even Robert Rodriguez's unofficial high school remake The Faculty wasn't bad, and each film had something cutting to say about the times that inspired it. The new Invasion at least acknowledges this tradition of timeliness, filling to the temperance leader or the rocking multicultural babes in Beyond the Valley of the Dolls is anybody's guess. This atrocious comedy doesn't have an idea in its head but still screams at the top of its lungs, taking pains to distinguish between its rich heroines and their even richer enemies (including Jon Voight). Sean McNamara directed, but the auteur must be coproducer Steven Paul, who made his debut with Slapstick (Of Another Kind). — J.R.

Broken English — This bitter-sweet romantic comedy, an auspicious feature debut by writer-director Zoe Cassavetes, gives versatile Parker Posey one of her most complex roles. She plays a lonely, pill-popping, hard-drinking New York single under pressure from her mom (Gena Rowlands) to settle down. Her best friend (Drea de Matteo) urges her to just get out there, but all her dates — like a one-night stand with a vain actor (a very funny Justin Theroux) — end disastrously. Enter a coworker's visiting French pal (Melvil Poupaud), who seems destined to cause her even more pain. How Posey's neurotic, self-destructive heroine finds her way to healing is the core of this generous film, whose moral is that happiness can't begin unless you're open to its possibility. With Peter Bogdanovich, Bernadette Lafont, and Josh Hamilton. — A.G.

Colma: The Musical — This hip little coming-of-age comedy marks the feature debut of gifted director Richard Wong and actor-screenwriter-songwriter H.P. Mendoza. Set in dreary Colma, California ("home of cemeteries and car dealerships"), it follows three teenagers fresh out of high school — gay Rodel (Mendoza), straight Billy (Jake Moreno), and Maribel (L.A.

Renigen), the gal-pal both boys take for granted — as they slouch toward adulthood and face the dissolution of their tight unit. Packed with catchy pop melodies, humorously deadpan lyrics, and imaginative musical staging, the movie combines quirky irony with insights into adolescent angst. — A.W.

El Cantante — Jennifer Lopez doesn't sing, but as the feisty wife, caretaker, and enabler of Puerto Rican salsa star Hector Lavoe, she throws herself so wholeheartedly into this cliché-ridden biopic it can't help but recall the Judy Garland version of A Star Is Born. Marc Anthony plays the smack-addicted singer, who has some dynamite numbers but not much to say for himself. Writer-director Leon Ichaso presents the whole chronology of Lavoe's professional life in numbing proportion, with such intriguing episodes as the star's Sante-ria cure for addiction given the same weight as his showbiz accomplishments. — J.R.J.

Daddy Day Camp — Like its methane-filled outhouse that explodes right on cue, this sequel to Daddy Day Care (2003) smells. Cuba Gooding Jr. and Paul Rae take over the Eddie Murphy and Jeff Garlin roles as fathers who renovate a decrepit summer camp for their sons, only to be sabotaged at every turn by a rival camp owner (Lochlyn Munro). The juvenile actors come off as movie brats, and the pacing is slowed by treacly speeches about father-son bonding. As a child star on The Wonder Years, director Fred Savage worked with some of TV's best, but you'd never guess it from this. — A.G.

Death at a Funeral — In & Out (1997) showed how adroit director Frank Oz can be with a well-written farce; Bowfinger (1999) showed how easily he can coast along with routine material, which is much closer to what happens here. A standard but serviceable vulgar farce, it chronicles all the embarrassing disasters that overtake mourners at a genteel English country funeral, with gags involving bathroom humor, a hallucinogenic drug, the wrong body in the coffin, a sexual scandal, and Peter Dinklage. If your taste runs in this direction, you're bound to be amused. With Matthew Macfadyen, Keeley Hawes, Andy Nyman, Ewen Bremner, Daisy Donovan, and Jane Asher. — J.R.

Goya's Ghosts — Since cleaning up at the Oscars with Amadeus, Milos Forman has favored biopics (Man on the Moon, The People vs. Larry Flynt), and this is one of his more fanciful, spinning a historical melodrama around the great Spanish painter Francisco Goya. Stellan Skarsgard cuts a rather drab figure as Goya, whose dark imaginings are mostly ignored to accommodate a fictional tale about a priest of the Inquisition (Javier Bardem) and the merchant's daughter he wants to save/fondle (Natalie Portman). The turning point, Napoleon's invasion of Spain, sets in motion a number of fine historical ironies. But in the second half, set 15 years later, Forman pushes Portman into a gimmicky dual role as both the priest's victim, now crazed and decrepit from years in prison, and her

tence at nearly every turn dilutes the film's suspense. The physical stunts by Maggie Q as a lethal martial arts expert and Cyril Raffaelli as a Euro-trash sniper who rappels down buildings are more thrilling than the over-the-top chase sequences, so contrived as to verge on self-parody. Len Wiseman (Underworld) directed. — A.G.

Mr. Bean's Holiday — Mr. Bean (Rowan Atkinson) goes on holiday to the South of France. With Willem Dafoe and Emma de Caunes; directed by Steve Bendelack.

The Nanny Diaries — A recent college graduate (Scarlett Johansson) goes to work as a nanny for a rich New York family; adapted from the novel by Emma McLaughlin. With Laura Linney and Paul Giamatti; directed by Robert Pulcini.

No End in Sight — Charles Ferguson, a senior fellow at the Brookings Institution, makes his documentary filmmaking debut with a damning history of the Iraq war's mismanagement. The movie is oddly framed, opening with a primer on U.S.-Iraq relations that its art-house audience probably won't need and its right-wing critics will easily dismiss (it revisits the 1991 Persian Gulf war in some detail, then leapfrogs over President Clinton's bombing of Baghdad). But Ferguson is admirably tenacious in assigning blame for the boneheaded mistakes that have doomed Iraqi reconstruction. Paul Bremer, former head of the Coalition Provisional Authority, is hung out to dry, and ping-ponging interviews show the CPA's Paul Hughes and Walt Slocombe shamefully passing the buck back and forth over who disbanded the Iraqi army. In English and subtitled Arabic. — J.R.J.

No Reservations — I don't believe in fixing things that aren't broken. Sandra Nettelbeck's wholly accessible Mostly Martha (2001) is one of the most delightful comedies of recent years, so the idea of a remake with English instead of German dialogue is already pretty dubious, an insult to the capacities of both audiences and the original filmmakers. Catherine Zeta-Jones plays a neurotic chef trying to get along with both her eight-year-old niece (Abigail Breslin), whose mother has been killed, and a sous-chef (Aaron Eckhart) who joins her kitchen staff. She's miscast, but she can't be blamed for lacking the verve and smarts Martina Gedeck showed in the original: Carol Fuchs's silly, mushy script has her character swerve without warning between obtuse rigidity and sweet normality — to make her character believable would have been all but impossible. Scott Hicks directed, and even the usually adept Patricia Clarkson as the heroine's boss is set adrift. — J.R.

Once — In the opening scene of John Carney's engaging indie, a Dublin busker (Glen Hansard of the Frames) hands his guitar to a passerby and gives chase to the wastrel who's snatched his guitar case and change, but when he finally collars the culprit, he lets him keep the money. That sort of humanity infuses the movie, a low-budget and leisurely plotted DV project in which the singer, a poor vacuum-cleaner repairman, falls in love with a young Czech immigrant (Markéta Irglová) who plays the piano and helps him put together a band for a demo session. The songs don't advance the narrative lyrically so much as follow the two characters' uncertain relationship through the slow realization of their themes; in particular a scene in which they first jam together in the back room of a music store is a gem. — J.R.

Paris, Je T'Aime — Most features composed of sketches by different filmmakers are wildly uneven. This one is consistently mediocre, albeit pleasant and watchable. It helps that none of the episodes runs longer than five or six minutes. Many of the most famous areas of Paris — the Latin Quarter, the Champs-Élysées — are omitted, but Olivier Assayas, Gurinder Chadha, Sylvain Chomet, Joel and Ethan Coen, Wes Craven, Alfonso Cuarón, Gérard Depardieu, Christopher Doyle, Vincenzo Natali, Alexander Payne, Bruno Podalydes, Walter Salles and Daniela Thomas, Nobuhiro Suwa, Tom Tykwer, and Gus Van Sant, among others, do pretty well with their chosen parts of the city. In English and subtitled French. — J.R.

ambitious and meditative than his Oscar-winning The Incredibles. “Anyone can cook” is just one of the lessons of this superbly rendered CGI animation about a young rat (voiced by Patton Oswalt) who longs to work in the Paris restaurant made famous by his late idol (Brad Garrett). The novice rodent chef transcends his clan’s prejudices by teaming surreptitiously with a human, an inept scullery boy (Lou Romano) the rat coaches to gastro-nomic acclaim. Cooking tips abound, and the Proustian moment a snooty food writer (Peter O’Toole) enjoys is a corker. With the voices of Ian Holm, Brian Dennehy, and Janeane Garofalo.

Rescue Dawn — Released by MGM, starring two busy Hollywood actors, and easily slotted as a Vietnam POW adventure, this could be Werner Herzog’s most commercial movie ever. But it’s also elemental Herzog, a story of superhuman willpower that he first told in his moving 1997 documentary Little Dieter Needs to Fly. Christian Bale gives a committed performance as Dieter Dengler, the U.S. fighter pilot shot down over Laos in 1966 and held in a jungle camp; Steve Zahn and Jeremy Davies are compelling as Dengler’s suffering prison mates, respectively drawn to and repelled by his irrepressible optimism as he plots their escape. With its clumsy treatment of the Laotian guards and its macho denouement back in the States, Rescue Dawn sometimes stumbles into Rambo territory (it was screened for U.S. troops in Iraq on Independence Day). But like much of Herzog’s work, it’s essentially apolitical, focusing on a man at war with his environment — and no one plunges into the foliage the way he does. — J.R.J.

Resurrecting the Champ — A sports writer (Josh Hartnett) discovers a homeless man (Samuel L. Jackson) is in fact a former boxing champion long assumed dead. Directed by Rod Lurie.

Rocket Science — Five years after directing his hit documentary about spelling bees, Spellbound (2002), Jeffrey Blitz returns with a high school comedy that builds on that film’s winning combination of academic stress and offbeat individuals. A put-upon student with a stuttering problem (Reece Thompson) is dragged by a ferociously competitive schoolmate (Anna Kendrick) to be her partner on the debate squad, and their assigned topic — teaching abstinence in public schools — proves ironic given his deep desire to get his hands on her. The hero’s sexual feelings are complicated by his situation at home: his dad has recently moved out and been replaced by his mother’s obnoxious new lover (Steve Park) and his teenage son. Quietly written and convincingly played, this coming-of-age story mines its rueful laughs from a thick vein of performance anxiety, in both senses of the term. — J.R.J.

Rush Hour 3 — Brett Ratner’s action-comedy franchise has always been aimed at the international box office, and in this entry mismatched cops Jackie Chan and Chris Tucker are lured to Paris by a Japanese assassin (Hiroyuki Sanada) of Sunshine) who’s kidnapped a Chinese consul’s daughter (Zhang Jingchu). Noemie Lenoir is the eye-candy love interest, and Max von Sydow, Youki Kudoh, Yvan Attal, and Roman Polanski help legitimize the silly plot. Chan shows he still has the chops during a showdown at the Eiffel Tower, but you’d think the movie’s reported budget of $140 million might have bought Tucker at least one side-splitting gag. In English and subtitled Cantonese, Japanese, and French. — A.G.

September Dawn — Romantic drama set against the Mountain Meadows Massacre of 1857. Starring Jon Voight, Terence Stamp, and Lolita Davidovich; directed by Christopher Cain.

Sicko — Asked who the greatest French poet was, André Gide said, “Victor Hugo, alas.” I feel the same way about Michael Moore. He qualifies, sometimes lamentably, as our most important political filmmaker, in part just because the media do such a poor job of delivering basic news to us. His blistering attack on the American health care system and the abuses of medical insurance companies offers eye-opening contrasts with national health services in Canada, England, and France, and, atypically, he delays appearing on-screen for some 40 minutes to keep the focus on this country’s victims. When his comic persona finally does come in, there’s something a bit irritating about him asking so many questions he already knows the answers to, sometimes paying more heed to the audience members he perceives as clueless than to the people he’s talking to (as when he asks some Cubans on the street, “Is there a doctor here in Cuba?”). But this is still essential viewing — a moving, informative, corrosive, and even sometimes hilarious call to arms. — J.R.J.

The Simpsons Movie — Matt Groening’s cartoon series The Simpsons has never made me laugh quite as hard as his Life in Hell anthologies, which seem to spring from a deep well of personal bitterness that the show’s writers can’t fake. But of course that’s a relative judgment — the show has been the gold standard for satirical TV ever since it debuted in 1989. This long-awaited movie adaptation has plenty of laughs, plus an assortment of milestones for fans (Bart shows his privates, Martin gets to thrash his enemies). The writers also take advantage of the PG-13 rating to violate a few small-screen taboos, as Otto the bus driver is caught sucking on a bong and Homer tells his pet pig, “Maybe we should kiss just to break the tension.” — J.R.J.

Cockfighter

VERNON MORTENSEN

Filmmaker and board member, San Diego Filmmakers

Looking for something different? Try the long-lost ’70s gem Cockfighter, based on Charles Willeford’s novel. Roger Corman produces, Monte Hellman directs, and world-class cameraman Néstor Almendros provides the beautifully disturbing images. Professional cockfighters Warren Oates and Harry Dean Stanton are locked in a bitter rivalry that leaves a wake of pain and ruin for all those who have the misfortune to know them.

It’s strange to have two Corman films included but he only made a handful of art-house films, and for the most part, they’re gems. In what has to be the performance of a lifetime, The Intruder features William Shatner (that’s right, Captain Kirk) as a racist Northern carpetbagger who comes to a sleepy Southern town to stir up bigotry and hatred. The real treasure on this DVD is an interview where Corman recounts the amazing and harrowing story of how this film was made.

Thumbsucker: Both Tilda Swinton and Lou Taylor Pucci turn in excellent performances in this story of an adolescent’s struggle to communicate in an adult world.

Kinky Boots: A great set-up as a reluctant young British man inherits his father’s conservative shoe factory only to find that it’s losing money. Much to the chagrin of the old-time factory workers, he employs a transsexual (Chiwetel Ejiofor) to design a new line of boots.

Last Year at Marienbad: A surreal French classic. Filmed in black and white by Alain Resnais, I remember this film from the ’60s as being about elegant people gathering in a luxurious mansion. A beautiful married women is told by a stranger that he met her there a year before and she promised to meet him again. She has no recollection of such a declaration and the conflict ensues.

they run out of ideas, which is often. Derived from a Neil Gaiman novel, the story involves a wall separating a mundane English village from a supernatural “parallel universe” on the other side. This might have been interesting if the production were unified by a particular style or vision, but it’s nearly all filigree, including the decorative overload of stars (Claire Danes, Sienna Miller, Peter O’Toole, Michelle Pfeiffer, Robert De Niro, Rupert Everett, Ricky Gervais). At least Pfeiffer and De Niro seem to be enjoying themselves. Matthew Vaughn (Layer Cake) directed and contributed to the script. — J.R.J.

The Ten — Writer-director David Wain (Wet Hot American Summer) and cowriter Ken Marino based this anthology of darkly satiric sketches on the Ten Commandments, though the biblical connection is sometimes so loose it barely seems to apply. The best sketches are a wicked send-up of celebrity worship, with Adam Brody as a skydiving casualty; a story about a virginal librarian (Gretchen Mol) who finds personal salvation in the arms of a Mexican handyman named Jesus (Justin Theroux); and a bit about a sullen detective (Liev Schreiber, very funny) who covets his neighbor’s goods so badly that he self-destructs. Wain and Marino try to tie all this together with a framing narrative about an unfaithful husband (Paul Rudd), which turns into a clever parody of Woody Allen movies. — A.G.

Transformers — Not a movie, just one gigantic commercial for Hasbro, this collaboration between director Michael Bay and executive producer Steven Spielberg is a textbook case of cynical Hollywood extravagance. State-of-the-art CGI might please the now-grown fans of the popular line of Autobot and Decepticon toys introduced in the ’80s, but the embarrassingly weak screenplay by Alex Kurtzman and Roberto Orci (The Island, Mission: Impossible III) will disappoint those hoping for entertainment value beyond the spectacle of robotic aliens morphing into cars, trucks, tanks, and jet fighters. As if aware of their insignificance, Shia LaBeouf, Tyrese Gibson, Anthony Anderson, and John Turturro ham their way through the boring high-tech drivél about a war over earth’s future, while Josh Duhamel and Jon Voight play it straight. Hugo Weaving voices the evil Megatron. — A.G.

Underdog — Based on the ’60s cartoon series, this live-action feature takes certain liberties, adding a silly back story to explain the title canine’s superpowers. The TV show was mildly subversive, with humor that children and adults could enjoy on different levels, but the movie strives for a blander, family-oriented middle ground. As the voice of Underdog, Jason Lee pales in comparison to Wally Cox; Peter Dinklage is properly menacing as the evil Simon Barsinister; and Patrick Warburton, while forced to perform some lowbrow physical comedy, is the funniest thing in the movie as Barsinister’s thuggish henchman, Cad. Frederik Du Chau (Racing Stripes) directed; with James Belushi and Alex Neuberger. — J.K.

War — An FBI agent (Jason Statham) is out for revenge against an assassin (Jet Li); directed by Philip G. Atwell.

It was last semester at Sonoma State, for the entire year. Our dorms were like suites, with two bedrooms and two people in each room. My friend and I both cleaned; the other two didn't. And this one girl had a shower caddy with a lot of mold. I kept telling her to clean it. She was just really ditzy. Finally, it was clean. I went for a run that day and, when I got home, used my washcloth on my face. It had this gross mold all over it. I don't like confrontations, and it was her birthday. She threw the caddy out a week later, too. She also burned popcorn all the time, and when the alarm went off, she stood there confused.

One of my best friends now was horrible to live with. She was a nervous, neurotic mess. At 24, she was a virgin. If we met a few nice guys, she couldn't relax. She might go to the bathroom and climb out the window. She wore wigs all the time, and in my closet, she put all these heads with wigs. She was a total health nut. And, she wasn't bashful. She'd walk around completely naked. I didn't like it.

When I was going to the University of Oregon, I got kicked out of the Christian dorms for having a few female friends up there. So, they put me in a dorm that was disastrous. I walked in and there was a horrible smell and a few empty packs of beer under the sheets. This roommate, Leif, from Haight-Ashbury, would steal from everyone. He threw up in all the wastebaskets. One time I fell asleep with my childhood sweetheart right next to me. I woke up to someone rubbing my chest. I was surprised because her and I had a platonic friendship. I look over and it's him. He's moved his bed next to mine, and then his hand slid farther down. I jumped up and started screaming at him. I made such a scene that this girl never wanted to see me again.

I've had a few over the years that were too loud. But the worst was a lady in Rancho Bernardo that owned a big house and rented the rooms out. She insisted that you take your shoes off before coming inside. But you couldn't walk around the house barefoot because she didn't want the oils from your feet touching the carpet. Also, you couldn't just take your shoes off at the front door and walk in. You had to put on a new pair of socks. What made this so hard to figure out was that she had a little dog that would crap all over the floors and carpets. She had bowls of cat food in the laundry room that were always filthy and had ants. It would be a week before she cleaned. Sometimes, the dog would be wearing a diaper because it wasn't trained. There were other annoying things she did, but when she screamed at me once for being barefoot, I decided to move out. And the cursing she did then, I won't even get into.

I was lucky. I always had cool roommates. And, when it was female roommates, usually we hooked up at some point. One time these women got me stoned as I slept. They blew their smoke into my face. It was crazy. Oh, I did have this one roommate who had friends that didn't bathe. They were scummy dope heads, and they came over and were sitting on the couch. One of them was sitting on his feet. When I was on the couch later, it smelled horrible. I told him to tell his friends to bathe, and we had a fight about that. I think he felt like he had to defend his friends.

It was a friend I'd known for five years. When his roommate moved out, I moved in. I left after a month. I wanted to tear my hair out. He was an emotional wreck. He would spend hundreds of dollars on things. Once he bought a $900 jacket. Then he couldn't afford to pay for his therapy. My husband, when he and I were dating, heard him yelling at me once and was ready to hit him. We're no longer friends, and my husband has been my only roommate since.

much, we shortened it to "jen." Like, "I hate that girl — she's such a jen." And if a girl is mean or we don't like her we'll call her "Jen" like it's her name. Like, "Hey, Jen, get me a beer." It's perfect for my friends because we're honest. "Jen" is as blatant as it gets, but no one knows what we're talking about.

SurfMOBILE

Name: Chris

Home: North Park

Vehicle: 2006 Scion XB

Surfing: Windansea, La Jolla

Chris served as a Navy SEAL until last November.

"I hit the 20-year-mark," he says. "And I figured that was good, I'd retire. I'd spent more time here in San Diego than anywhere else, so I stayed."

He learned to surf nine years ago and did so as often as he could while in the service. Now that he's retired, he comes out at least once a week. "I go pretty much where it's breaking; mostly central San Diego, but occasionally to Swami's in Encinitas. That's the good thing about a small car like this; it doesn't eat as much gas if you're driving around looking for good surf conditions."

Chris bought his 2006 Scion based on family needs. "I had an old Mazda pickup, but traded it in when we had twin newborns. I can get the twins and their car seats and everything in this; couldn't fit all that in the old truck. Besides, the head-rests pop off real easy and the front seat folds down so you can slide a multitude of boards in there." Chris carries a soft-top longboard and an Al Merrick fish.

Jose del Cabo in Baja. "I was sitting out there and these double and triple overheads came rolling in. I was sitting on the fish thinking I'm way outgunned. I didn't even want to paddle in because I would get slammed the closer I got to the beach. I stayed out there for hours and caught these great, hollowed, waves — tubes almost every time. I was out there for four hours. By the time I came in I was dehydrated, exhausted, and hungry. That was the best day of surfing I've ever had."

It only looked like car trouble on SR 163, near the Laurel Street bridge, in July of 1958. A newspaper reporter was dispatched to the site to pretend her car conked out.

“Sixty cars passed in five minutes and all the reporter got was a case of sunburn.... Then a male member of the newspaper staff stood by the car. His motorist-quotient appeal was even less: 70 cars went past him without stopping.”

Two drivers did eventually stop — a foreign-car mechanic and a tow-truck driver. The experiment made the front page.

LEAD STORY

— Kyle Krichbaum, 12, of Adrian, Mich., has had an obsession with vacuum cleaners since infancy. For years, he says, he has cleaned the house up to five times a day with one of the 165 new and used vacuum cleaners in his collection. Said a former teacher, “It’s not that he didn’t like recess. He just preferred to stay inside vacuuming.” Older sister Michelle, interviewed for a July CBS News profile of Kyle, spoke for all of us: “He’s constantly vacuuming. I’m just, like ‘why, why, why, why, why, why?’ I don’t understand.”

Great Art!

— The Horror of War: A U.S. law professor representing Guantanamo prisoners compiled a book of poems by some of the detainees, to be published this month by University of Iowa Press and featuring a cover blurb by former U.S. poet laureate Robert Pinsky. Among the verses, for example, by Sami al Haj, quoted in a June Wall Street Journal story: “When I heard the pigeons cooing in the trees/ Hot tears covered my face” and “My soul is like a roiling sea, stirred by anguish/ Violent with passion.” The U.S. military had to approve the text, citing the ease with which imagery could be used as coded messages to colleagues outside.

Police Report

— (1) James Coldwell, 49, was arrested in Manchester, N.H., in July and charged as the man who robbed a Citizen Bank dressed as a tree. Branches were duct-taped to his body and head, obscuring much of his face, though he was identified from the security camera. (2) A prosecutor in Chelsea, Vt., refused in June to pursue police officers’ charges against Jayna Hutchinson, 33, that she had committed a crime because she made faces at a police dog and “star[ed]” at him.

Public Urination and Drug Law Enforcement

— (1) After a seven-month police drug-dealing investigation, authorities in Doylestown, Pa., arrested 34 people when a man on probation gave the police information about the ring in order to avoid going back to prison. He had been facing a charge of public urination. (2) Chicago police arrested three alleged dope sellers in June after spotting one of them inside a garage with the door open, bagging $670,000 worth of marijuana. The police came upon the garage while chasing a man who had been urinating in public.

Undignified Deaths

— (1) Police in Brandon, Fla., arrested Willie Tarpley Jr., 46, in May, alleging that he killed his ex-wife’s boyfriend because he was upset that she was dating a man who was a registered sex offender. Tarpley and his ex-wife are reportedly also registered sex offenders. (2) At a Toronto nursing home in May, a 69-year-old resident kicked a 79-year-old fellow resident, causing him to fall and fatally hit his head. The victim had taken up with a female resident, thinking she was his wife, but the jealous younger man thought the woman was his own wife. She was married to neither; all three had Alzheimer’s disease. No charges were filed.

Government in Action!

— In April, Britain’s Office of Work and Pensions acknowledged to the Daily Mail that the multiple wives of polygamous husbands who are legally in the country routinely draw dependents’ unemployment allowances from the government (even though polygamy is illegal in the U.K.). A single person receives the equivalent of about $120 a week, and a married couple about $180, with each additional wife about $60.)

— Miles Nurse and Jennifer Plomt, condominium owners in Vancouver, British Columbia, learned in July that they would have to cohabit with as many as 80 bats that had infested their unit for the following six weeks because the B.C. Wildlife Act prevents disturbing the critters during their mating season, which will end in late August. At press time for a July Vancouver Sun story, the couple had found one bat in bed with them, another hanging upside down from a bathroom-door frame and five in the ceiling over a kitchen pantry.

BACK WHEN

Thirty Years Ago

Roger Hedgecock, the youngest San Diego county supervisor ever elected, sometimes has an excited vision of Idi “Big Daddy” Amin circling in a C-130 Transport 15,000 feet above the ocean off the San Onofre nuclear power plant. “Big Daddy” holds the United States at bay with a cruise missile, a birthday present from Leonid Brezhnev. (“What are we going to do,” mutters Hedgecock, “nuke Uganda?”)

—“BOMBS, BABIES, AND BLIND SPOTS,”

Richard Louv and Paul Krueger, August 25, 1977

Twenty-Five Years Ago

Nils Molinas is a hunk. He stands over six feet tall, with eyes as blue as a Leadbelly ballad and a smile like a scythe.

“I love the way I look,” he said on a sparkling Mission Beach afternoon, while posing for a bikinied Polaroid One-Step enthusiast at water’s edge. “I know that physically, I’m what Dylan Thomas might call a corker, so why should I lie about it?”

—“LOOK AT ME,” Bill Owens, August 26, 1982

Twenty Years Ago

I hate to look around and think someone is saying to themselves about me that Mama’s mother is my grandmother. When most people think “grandmother,” they wouldn’t for the life of them think Mama’s mother. They picture maybe somebody prim. They hear in their minds a pigeon coo and words that pipe out like frosting words on birthday cake.

Not me. How could anybody this fat and loud-mannered have brought out of her big stomach my mama, who has, surely, a bad temper but also a beautiful face and a body no bigger, they say, than a minute, a waist the size of an hourglass? How?

—“HER LITTLE GIRL,” Judith Moore, August 27, 1987

“Yeah, sure.”

“No, really,” he says. “It’s about 90 percent sure right now, and they’ll confirm it this evening. So do you want to do it?”

Yes and no, truth be told — the old approach/avoidance conflict. On the one hand, it’s an opportunity to take the mound against the world’s heaviest hitter. On the other, it’s a chance to get shelled and sent to the showers — if not waived out of the league — by coming off as, say, an airhead, a smartass, or an overawed suck-up.

Ten Years Ago

I used to ride the Amtrak San Diegan a lot. For the three years I went to school in L.A., I rode the train south to visit my parents or see friends. When I moved back to San Diego, I rode the train north on weekends to visit my boyfriend Steve. I stopped riding the train after Steve killed himself in February of 1990. He’d asked me to marry him a few weeks before, and I’d accepted. Although Steve seemed happy when he was around me, he had undiagnosed clinical depression.

More of what Horton Plaza shoppers think about the effect of the Beatles on their lives.

Linda Brzycki, who’s in her 40s, can’t think of the words to her favorite song. She starts humming “da das” for a few seconds. I say a few lines, and she tells me I have it. We can’t think of the name, until we come to the chorus, “And I Love Her.”

“We danced to their music in the school cafeteria at lunchtime. We had a jukebox and always played the Beatles’ music. My girlfriends and I were hooked on Paul.” Linda says she doesn’t care much for today’s music and occasionally listens to country.

Attention: Honda/Acura Owners

For those of you not familiar with our automotive repair shop, we'd like to introduce ourselves. We are a family-owned and -operated general auto repair business. Our goal is simple: provide top-quality service and good, honest auto repair. We have no interest in selling you items/services you don't really need. We simply believe in telling you like it is and you tell us what you want done. Although our name suggests only Honda and Acura repairs, we are a general full-service repair shop specializing in Hondas and Acuras.

Jerry Sample, Jr. (General Manager) is an ASE Master Technician who is also Acura/Honda factory-trained. With well over a decade of experience, including several years working as a top mechanic at a well-known local Acura dealership, you can be assured of top-notch quality service. Jerry takes pride in what he does. His diagnostic skills are well-known throughout the industry. Often when customers are unable to achieve satisfaction elsewhere, they are directed to Jerry for an analysis. He thrives on a good challenge. Jerry will also take the time to explain to customers what he believes the problem is and how he would go about fixing it.

Greenlight Honda Acura Care prides itself on quality and service. We are proud to have more than 1,000 customers in San Diego and surrounding areas. The loyalty of our customers attests to Jerry and his crew's integrity.

Bryan Bettencourt (Service Technician) also has many years of experience in the automotive business including audio and communications. Bryan is the "go-to" guy for all your electrical needs. He complements Jerry in every way. Together, Jerry, Bryan and their team are a formidable group of technicians, ensuring that you walk away a satisfied customer. Some repair shops take shortcuts and often cover up problems with a temporary fix. We know...we fix their mistakes!

Bottom line: We do it right the FIRST time! Our standard is to use factory parts and perform quality work...just at a more reasonable cost.

We look forward to meeting you and having the opportunity to do business with you. Stop by and check us out, give us a call or an e-mail. Be sure and visit our website for valuable discount coupons.

POST TITLE: Wardrobe, Malfunction

So things are going as well as I can make them here. The house is a sight, and I have to make a vet appointment to put Dad's cat down this week. But what really got the sobfest going was when Dad sprung on me that he'd like me to clean out my mom's huge walk-in closet. Surrounded by her clothes and the smell of her perfume, my heart started hammering and I started punching numbers into my cell phone until I got someone to answer theirs so I could chat while sorting and not think about what I was doing. (M., thank you!) Suffice it to say that I slept in her old bathrobe Monday night.

POST TITLE: Food for Thought, Redux

I didn't get to have many friends as a kid, moving around as often as we did, so I'm not sure what the "average" American child had for dinner. But I'm sure that the standard meal for the Nielsen-type household wasn't tongue. I clearly remember seeing a slab of meat covered in taste buds, sitting on my plate, accompanied by a tomato sauce with pine nuts and dill in it. It took me years to touch pine nuts or dill after that, and for a long time I was convinced I never wanted to French-kiss a boy. Oh, when I brought the subject of this revolting repast up to my mother years later, she clucked her...tongue, actually...at me, and said, "That wasn't tongue! That was tripe!" Oh, MUCH better.

POST TITLE: I Should Have Pruned My Dates

The following are actual sentences spoken to me during my less-than-stellar dating career:

1. "Let's just go Dutch..."

How about I put five bucks in... Can you get it this time?" (Unemployed loser)

2. "She [old college flame] was the sportscar every guy wants to drive. You're the station wagon that they actually buy!" (Intended as a compliment, believe it or not!)

3. "I thought we could just lie here and admire each other." (ex-husband, then-boyfriend, on not doing ANYTHING for our first Valentine's Day together.)

4. "Let's keep dancing and maybe nobody will notice" (college BF, breaking up with me at the only formal dance I've ever been to, having mistakenly led me out onto the floor to the opening strains of "Bohemian Rhapsody.")

5. "Not tonight sweetie, I want to be here in the morning so I can make my mother coffee." (Do I

6. "Let's walk across the [George Washington] bridge [in the middle of January], it'll be romantic and save us four bucks."

Cow tongue

7. "You're becoming an obsession." (Ding ding ding! Hello, time to make like a banana and split!)

POST TITLE: From There to Here

Picture it: northern New Jersey, 1993. I'm a college student, working my way through a bachelor's in biology by also working full-time at a jeweler's at a local shopping mall. It's been a long day, and my car is parked farther away than normal, outside the food court. I exit through the first set of doors where there is a bank of pay-phones, and am about to go through the second set when I hear one of the phones start ringing. There's a guy about my age sitting on the floor underneath the phone, obviously waiting for his ride, and I ask if the call is for him. He rolls his eyes and tells me that it's some weirdo who crank calls the phone every ten minutes hoping that a woman will answer and have phone sex with him. I decide that I need to have a little fun, so I pick up the phone myself.

Me: "Wayne Morgue, you kill 'em, we chill 'em."

Weirdo: "Why'd you answer like that? [voice lowers seductively] Hi, I'm Frank. What are you wearing?"

Me: "I'm wearing a lab coat. I'm studying biology."

Weirdo: "Ooh, a college student..."

Me: "Yeah. I learned about plagues today. Did you know that the Black Death is still around? And that when you get it, you get these huge black lumps filled with pus under your arms and in your groin? But don't worry, you die pretty quickly after that. At least it's not like ebola. That makes your eyes bleed."

Amazingly, Frank listened to me for at least another minute before hanging up the phone. The guy sitting on the floor was busting a gut laughing. He asked me how I'd ever come up with that idea and told me that "Frank" would probably call back in another ten minutes. I waited 15, and sure enough, the phone rang again.

Me: "Hellooo?"

Frank: "Hi, I'm Frank. What are you wearing?"

Me: "Frank! You hung up on me! That's very rude. I was just about to tell you about elephantiasis. That's a lymph infection where your balls get to be the size of a laundry basket. Don't worry, though, it's pretty rare. But syphilis is pretty common. Did you know, you can get it and think it's gone away and it can come back into your brain years later and make you crazy? Are you crazy, Frank?"

Frank: [sputtering] "I...I...I'm losing my erection!"

Me: "!!!!"

Frank: "You're sick, did you know that? Really, really sick! I bet you don't have a boyfriend, do you?"

Me: "I do, actually. Want me to describe him?"

Frank: click

So much for a future career as a phone-sex operator. Or a hostage negotiator. Or a suicide-hotline volunteer. But I'm a real hit at parties.

TIKI PEOPLE ARE A DISGUSTING, WILD, TERRIFIED GROUP. This weekend at the tiki convention I witnessed the grossest of base, amoral misbehavior by adults.

It was in the tiki and sushi bar that I saw an off-duty hula girl bite a Shriner's nipple, right through his thick, polyester, blue Hawaiian shirt.

They were separated and the hula girl's friends attempted to console her.

One lens of the Shriner's thick black Buddy Holly glasses was cracked. Apparently, this hadn't been his first altercation; with a hula girl or someone else, I didn't know. His awful comb-over seemed more menacing.

I have never seen a fez used defensively before. While the aging gadabout recovered on his barstool, he stuffed napkins and ice into his burgundy conical cap.

"What's that for?" I asked. "Ice and napkins?"

"So there won't be any bruising," he said through chipped yellow teeth and a waxy greasy mustache. I thought he meant to use it as an ice pack for his sore nip.

The hula girl was red-faced furious and her grass skirt shook like a rattlesnake's warn-ing. But the Shriner sat up from his stool and crossed the bar, his fist stuffed into the nap-kin-and-ice-filled fez. When he reached the hula girl, he pulled his elbow way back and socked her hard in the temple. She crashed against a bank of televisions playing Blue Hawaii. Three monitors filled with Elvis's giant head were torn down from their shelves and shattered against the slippery tile floor and one TV rolled over the hula girl's torso, knocking the wind out of her.

Oh, it was pandemonium after that. Hula girls on one side, Shriners on the other. Brass knuckles. A switchblade. A tiki mug filled with banana daiquiri smashed into the face of a retiree. Blood splashed against unflattering floral pattern shirts.

From an overturning table, I rescued my coconut-husk cup of piña colada with tiny umbrella and sipped at the bendy straw through a storm of cocktail ice cubes and mixed-drink rain.

"What the hell is this all about?" I asked my girlfriend.

"You really are stupid, aren't you?" she said. "That Shriner grabbed that hula's rear end."

"Well, she isn't wearing underwear. She kind of asked for it."

My girlfriend shot me a glance that said, for my last comment, things were going to be worse at home than they were here. I searched around for an errant fez and napkins.

WHAT I WILL AND WON'T WATCH THIS WEEK

CLIFFORD THE BIG RED DOG
PBS 7:30 A.M.
Clifford the Big Red Dog ate a baby. He's part pitbull, but nobody knew that. They had to put him down. I know. It's sad and I don't want to talk about it either, kids, but there it is. He was a menace to cartoon children everywhere, and I'm not sorry. I'm not sorry Clifford the Big Red Dog is heaped in a trash barrel behind the cartoon dog pound.

SCRUBS
NBC 9:30 P.M.
Nobody cares about Scrubs anymore. Not even Zach Braff. I understand though. If every year you wrote yourself into a movie where you make out with the hottest actress of the sea-son, you'd be hard-pressed to get excited about your day job too.

FRIDAY AUGUST 24
MISS TEEN USA 2007
NBC 8:00 P.M.
Sponsored by Noxzema and anorexia.

SATURDAY AUGUST 25
CRYPTO THE SUPERDOG
CW 7:30 A.M.
I've devised a new cartoon super-hero. He harnesses the power of Japanese crustaceans. He is "Robster Craw! To the lescue!" Prease, Robster Craw! Save me, prease!

THE CAT IN THE HAT
ABC 8:00 P.M.
When it comes to kids' movies, there's a fine line between entertainingly cute and creepy. Mike Myers hopscotches over that line in too-tight short shorts. You can see the out-line of something you don't want to see. But he's in pigtails and it's weird. I weep for our children.

PUSSYCAT DOLLS PRESENT: THE SEARCH FOR THE NEXT DOLL
CW 9:00 P.M.
I have a Pussycat Dolls lunchbox. What can I say? I got caught up in the media frenzy. After I bought it I was so embarrassed that I cov-ered up the lettering with glitter and My Lit-tle Pony stickers. Somehow, that didn't bear the effect I had hoped. I am the laughing stock of the gym.

MONDAY AUGUST 27
FAT MARCH
ABC 9:00 P.M.
I wish fat was disgraceful again. Oh, Bewitched, take me back to a time when slender-hipped women in mint-green pencil skirts were the nightly offering for viewing pleasure instead of humps of stinking humanity, sweating through the seat of their "team color" track pants.

Pussycat Dolls Present: The Search for the Next Doll

TUESDAY AUGUST 28
LIVE FROM NEW YORK: THE FIRST FIVE YEARS OF SATURDAY NIGHT LIVE
NBC 8:00 P.M.
NBC is out of ideas. If they have to dredge up slapdash late-night programming from the Carter administration to sell ad space, they've gone as stale as a nine-week-old pizza crust behind the toilet. It's attracting bugs and the dog won't even eat it.

WEDNESDAY AUGUST 29
LAST COMIC STANDING
NBC 9:00 P.M.
I wish something about this show were funny. It's so far down on the "tragic" end of the "tragic-comic" spectrum that only a crotch attack by raccoon could bring it back. Or, an old lady getting cracked in the ear by a Wiffleball bat.

THURSDAY AUGUST 30
IN THE WILD: POLAR BEARS WITH EWAN MCGREGOR
PBS 9:00 P.M.
What? What the hell is going on? Why is young Obi Wan Kenobi doing PBS specials on polar bears? This documentary discards my child-hood Star Wars memories like a peed-on couch into the alley.

T.G.I.F.

He did not call and I waited like a ditched lover.

By John Brizzolara

I would have thought I could find at least one more joke, yet another gag along the Dean Martin, Foster Brookes line of humor, that oldest of joke butts since the prostitute and/or lawyers: the drunk. As many times as I have been in rehab, hospitalized, de-programmed, and 12-stepped, it would seem a natural to have at least one more riff when it comes to me and my history with booze; one more extended metaphor about Dracula Meets Keith Richards or something in that vein. In a desperate (no accidental choice of words) bid to mine that old standby of humor, that is, irony, I went to the Yellow Pages to try to find some ironically guffaw-propelled and newly named sorts of places like Serenity Stairway to Heaven or the like.

But humor escapes pretty thoroughly here at my age, and even if I had the desire to make jokes at the expense of those in the recovery game — and I do not — I am incapable. Though I did find one possibly wry lifting at the corners of my mouth — the phrase Home Detox.

Such a concept surely must be a joke in conventional circles, but I was not laughing as I dialed “Mike’s” number. In too bad a state to take in even the most rudimentary information, I gathered that (a) they are serious, and (b) it can work if one desires it badly enough. Mike would drive over that afternoon, take me in to the doc’s office, evaluate my Addiction Severity Index, take my vitals, leave me with a stock of Banquet frozen dinners, begin me on a five-day course of what seemed only the most desultory supervision, and leave me with instructions, medications, and hearty best wishes.

The entire proposition put me in mind of a recent Nick Nolte film in which Nolte plays a heroin addict who runs out of dope and money and states flatly to a French narcotics officer (as Nolte’s nose runs all over the fellow), “I feel a confinement comin’ on” and proceeds to handcuff himself to a brass bed. Nolte succeeds in this self-imposed withdrawal partly because it is theoretically possible but mostly because he is Nick Nolte.

The early stages of alcohol withdrawal involve shakes with a danger of seizure, a pitiful anxiety, nausea, vomiting, and a plotting that resembles the cunning of the insane to somehow, some way, re-introduce alcohol into the body’s depleting stores. Hallucinations or DTs are quite possible, and while they might appear harmless, they can be devastating if severe enough.

The dreams during detox or withdrawal can be something akin to Gogol or Hieronymus Bosch. I dreamt of men with deformed noses and women with phallic dugs, all the while listening to what I thought was the soundtrack to a long-forgotten Cream album that turned out to be literally 11 hours of a neighbor’s video-game soundtrack.

During this home program, theoretically an MD checks in on you periodically, but I saw only Mike the nurse with his pill charts, his envelopes of vitamins and Valium, and a muscle-relaxer. You must answer the phone when he calls at, say, 2:30 a.m. or it’s assumed you are out buying liquor. I was asleep (under enough trunks to bring down a rhino) when he called, and the next day he explained to me that twice before with clients this had happened and he had them cuffed off to jail for 60 days. Scared straight, I slept little the following night during which time he did not call and I waited like a ditched lover.

One can also run afoul of law enforcement by not sticking strictly to the med chart and schedule. One too few of these or one extra of those and one is in violation again and facing possible jail time. This sort of negligence on the part of his clientele jeopardizes Mike’s license and that of the whole enterprise. Its observance keeps Home Detox (619-683-2738) in business and out of trouble with the Physicians and Nurses Association at their various other

Integral ingredients to any detox would involve sensation. A writer for the television show House, about a physician addicted to Vicodin, put it well: “It’s like having a million little paper cuts all over your body at the same time.” To that might be added the ancient Oriental shame of a “thousand thousand generations of fathers returned upon them unto their sons.”

At the end of the five-day course, you are detoxed. Even they don’t say cured. “And how might you be feeling?” Mike would ask. Like shit! I could swear I detected a primal satisfaction on his face, though it was likely just gratification at another irresponsible clown gone off the deep end and then retrieved. But then another part of the whole deal is paranoia. Did I mention that?
