UNDER THE RADAR

A shirt off Bonnie's back When Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger kicked off his Terminate Violence campaign at an L.A. news conference in March, he was especially proud of the jazzy free shirts handed out to the crowd. "I said that I wanted to help here. I wanted to make it even bigger, and so this is why we came up with those T-shirts, the Terminator T-shirts," said the beaming governor, standing with L.A. sheriff Leroy Baca, flanked by children wearing the black-and-white shirts featuring an image of Schwarzenegger's signature alongside a portrait of his character in the famous movie. "And the Terminator T-shirts is all about saying terminate violence," he added. "And, of course, on the front of the T-shirt you see a great image of a very handsome cyborg, and I think that underneath it says, you know, 'Terminate Violence.' "

The news conference was promoting the L.A. sheriff's department's Gifts for Guns program, encouraging gun owners to turn in their weapons anonymously. In return, they get the T-shirt along with a $100 gift card for use at Best Buy,

Target, Home Depot, or Ralphs supermarkets, or a $200 card if they turn over an assault rifle. "I think that it will inspire some of the young kids to come in and give up their guns and get a T-shirt in return," Schwarzenegger said.

Money to buy the gift cards was put up by Baca's department. The $18,971 for the governor's personalized T-shirts, on the other hand, came from none other than San Diego district attorney Bonnie Dumanis, a fellow Republican, who dipped into her office's asset-forfeiture fund. Her spokesman Paul Levikow says the money represents cash seized in drug busts and similar sources and doesn't tap the county general fund. Dumanis is rumored to be interested in future statewide office. But Levikow says that the balance of the asset forfeiture funds, which amount to $388,293 a year, have gone to local anticrime causes, including funding a youth advisory board at Lincoln High, lights for the Bay Vista apartment complex, and "Four or Forty: The Choice is Yours," a video campaign counseling students that what they do in their four years of middle school will impact the next 40 years of their lives.

Small favors GOP congressman Brian Bilbray used his Twitter feed to tout his mention last week in a USA Today story about a successful bill he'd authored to qualify three-wheeled vehicles for federal research funding, the main beneficiary being Vista-based Aptera Motors, backed by heavy hitters including Google and Rockwell. Not mentioned was the role of Washington lobbying firm GovBiz Advantage, to which Aptera paid $60,000. On June 22, GovBiz's Duane R. Gibson gave Bilbray a $500 campaign contribution. . . . The Del Mar Thoroughbred Club, whose plans for a lease renewal at the fairgrounds racetrack was held up at least a year by the inter-contributions to a raft of other

as well as GOP assemblymen Martin Garrick, Paul Cook, and Joel Anderson and Democrat Steve Bradford. The senate campaign of Democratic assemblyman Joe Coto got $1000 on July 28.

Mixed bedfellows Foes of state attorney general Jerry Brown, leading the Democratic pack in the campaign for his old job as governor, have been unearthing radio shows the 71-year-old made during the '90s, featuring controversial remarks calling capital punishment "state murder" and dissing Mexican trucks on U.S. roads.

But it's his ties to San Diego that may become some of the most interesting to opposition researchers. Brown's wife, Anne B. Gust, is on the board of Jack in the Box, Inc., the San Diego-based hamburger chain founded by the late Bob Peterson, who ran it in the early years with Dick Silberman, Brown's onetime chief fund-raiser who later did prison time after falling for an FBI money-laundering sting. Also on the board is Mike Alpert, husband of ex-Democratic state senator Dede Alpert, Special Advisor for Public Policy and Strategic Planning for the Sacramento law and lobbying firm of Nielsen, Merksamer, who herself has a number of gigs around town. Last year, for instance, she was paid $5000 to sit on the board of the Girard Foundation, run by La Jolla philanthropist and investor Buzz Woolley. More Ballpark Lies

By Don Bauder

The Portland Beavers are a triple-A minorleague baseball team affiliated with the San Diego Padres. The Beavers want taxpayers to kick in bundles of money for a new ballpark — just as the Padres did. The studies purporting to show that Petco Park greatly boosted San Diego's economy — not a Beavers subsidy.

Both the Beavers and the Portland Timbers minor-league soccer team are owned by none other than former treasury secretary Hank Paulson (20 percent) and his son Merritt Paulson (80 percent). The teams now play in PGE Park in Portland. But if the Timbers are to ascend to Major League Soccer status, as desired, PGE has to be renovated as a

The Scariest Part of Halloween

By Sheila Pell

n a blustery afternoon, just down the road from a Mission Valley lot that's already advertising Christmas trees, costumed sign bearers point the way to a recently opened Halloween store. Every October "they just pop up," says one of the store's temporary hires, explaining the magical birth of the seasonal one-stop shops.

What pops up with them is a rash of health concerns. Last year it was toxic black henna tattoos and lead warnings on Halloween makeup sold in Target stores (printed only because California requires a warning for detectable amounts of lead, for which the Centers for Disease Control say no safe blood level has been identified).

But there's more to the story than annual news fodder. It isn't just one night, one goblin glob-fest before it's all washed down the drain icals leach into human bodies on a daily basis from ordinary shampoo, deodorant, mouthwash, creams, and cosmetics. With few exceptions, the chemicals in personal-care products are unregulated.

"Most people think there are some requirements for safety testing of products, but that is not the case," says Stacy Malkan, San Francisco-based cofounder of the Campaign for Safe Cosmetics, a national coalition of nonprofit health and environmental groups that work to overhaul the industry (as Europe has already done). Dr. Sharon Jacob, a San Diego dermatologist and UCSD clinical professor who has treated chemical reactions, shares the groups' concerns.

Halloween store in Mission Valley and into the waterways. Ghosts with names like carbon black and terephthalate haunt us all year long. Makeup from China, meant to be smeared on children, calls attention to the stuff that makes the green so gooey and the goo so green. But the same chem-

The Food and Drug Administration admits it is toothless. "Except for color additives, FDA does not have the authority to approve cosmetic products or ingredients," states the agency's website. Halloween makeup products, the website says, "are considered cosmetics and are therefore subject to the same regulations as other cosmetics, including the same restrictions on color additives."

Toxic color additives, however, abound. Like PPD (p-phenylenediamine) in black henna, also used in hair dye, lipstick, and colorant shampoo. "There is no way for a consumer to know at what concentration a chemical is in a product without sending it to a lab and spending a few hundred bucks," Malkan says.

Last year, Dr. Jacob was in the news calling for black henna, used by some tattoo artists to extend the life of tattoos, to be made illegal. Yet, according to the Food and Drug Administration's webpage on henna dyes, it already is. Even ordinary henna is illegal when applied to skin: "Henna, a coloring made from a plant, is approved only for use as a hair dye, not for direct application to the skin, as in the body-decorating process known as mehndi." Yet San Diego's henna parlors freely advertise their FDA-outlawed services, even broadcasting them to reporters last year when black henna panic erupted.

In the wake of many complaints and a lawsuit after consumers were injured by black henna tattoos, the administration issued an import alert and warned that the tattoos may cause serious allergic reactions. While the offending ingredient, PPD, is allowed only in low concentrations, Malkan points out that consumers are bombarded by chemicals. Small amounts from many sources add up. The FDA, however, doesn't consider cumulative exposure.

"There's no way to know what by-products are there or combined toxicities, and many chemicals have not been studied at all," Malkan says. Aside from ingredient lists and some boilerplate warnings on labels, it's buyer beware. She describes her recent foray into a Halloween store as "quite frightening." There were "lots of questionable products," she

Downtown San Diego—The Centre City Development Corporation board unanimously approved a site for an interim leash-free dog park in downtown San Diego
during its Wednesday,
October 21, meeting
— the west side of Park
Avenue, between G and Market Streets.

The park is expected to include separate areas for large and small dogs. It will also include benches, shade, and water fountains for both pets and people.

In an interview, senior planner Mark Caro said, "The interim leash-free dog park will also free up the Park at the Park, which currently serves as the de facto leash-free dog park in East Village. The interim development of the site will create an active use at that location and may initiate a use in the historic Remmen Building immediately north of the future park."

Cop Killers Caught?

Tijuana — The spate of police killings may have been quelled with the detention of three suspects by the Mexican army following a shootout with municipal police last Saturday.

The individuals are linked to 16 murders, including a copycat bridge hanging of a tortured individual on Saturday, October 17. (On October 9, morning drivers encountered the hanging body of Rogelio Sanchez Jimenez.)

Besides the October 17 hanging, other charges include: a double murder during which one cop was killed in September, a triple murder of police officers in Las Playas de Tijuana in September, a double murder in the heights of Colonia Altiplano in September, a double murder in

Murder suspects and police

July, a single murder of a policeman in July, a murder of a still-unidentified man in May in the Parque Industrial Pacifico, and a quadruple murder of police (including a policewoman) outside of an Oxxo store in April.

When captured, the trio was in possession of 5 assault rifles, a .38 caliber pistol, approximately 900 cartridges, 40 ammo clips, 6 armored helmets, and 6 bulletproof vests.

The mayor and some cronies in the suburb of Beaverton, a community of 86,000 just west of Portland, want to build that Beavers stadium, seating 8600. The Paulsons would plunk in only 41 percent, and the rest would fall to taxpayers. The memorandum of understanding indicates that the project would cost $59 million. Supporters claim that residents' property and utility taxes would go up only $50 a year.

CITY LIGHTS

Malarkey, say opponents. First, Beaverton would have to float a general revenue bond that, with interest, would cost $43.5 million over 25 years, says Councilmember Betty Bode, a retired college administrator with a Ph.D. That brings the cost above $100 million. Then, the cost of parking isn't included in the $59 million. She figures that 1500 spaces would cost around $37.5 million. In claiming the tax bite will be small, proponents are using "phony figures," says Bode.

Rob Drake, who was Beaverton mayor for four terms (1993–2008), says that even if the number of spaces is cut to 750, parking would still come to $20 million. So the whole package will come to between $120 million and $140 million, "plus half a million in [annual] oversight and maintenance that would come directly from the general fund." Drake has a home and a rental property and expects to pay an additional $200 a year in taxes if the proposal goes through. Beaverton "is being asked to build a facility billed as a regional facility but being financed by Beaverton taxpayers." Moreover, the Portland metro area, now 2.2 million strong, is expected to add 1 million in the next two decades or so. "Within a decade, you are likely to see the first ball thrown out for a major-league team. What happens to the Beavers?"

Citizens are already swallowing a major tax increase, says Russell Draper, a former San Diegan who moved to Beaverton five years ago. More than 10 percent of the Beaverton homes are effectively in foreclosure, and unemployment is above 10 percent, he says. "This is not a flush community like Rancho Santa Fe," says Draper. He is a member of an opponents' committee named LOVV, standing for Let Our Voters Vote on the corporate-welfare proposal. The Oregonian newspaper denounces the group as "obstructionists." Heard that before? Beaverton hired a new development director. He had the same post with the Beavers. Sound familiar?

Beaverton residents are being shoveled the same old nonsense: a subsidized ballpark will bring economic development. It just isn't so, says Roger Noll, emeritus economics professor at Stanford, who has written extensively on the pro sports subsidy racket. Stadiums aren't a growth engine. They only redistribute wealth in a community bringing in very little new money. The only big-league ballpark that helps its local neighborhood is the ancient

Fenway Park in Boston because it has few concession stands. Fans go to nearby saloons for a beer Proponents are claiming that San Diego's Petco Park is an example of a successful subsidized ballpark. They are not pointing out that the City faces a deficit of more than $200 million in its next fiscal year, department budgets may be cut 27 percent, the infrastructure will rot even more. services will be slashed, and bankruptcy may loom. From an economic-opportunity standpoint, the $300 millionplus subsidy could have been much better spent. "The San Diego ballpark is obviously one of [pro sports'] worst outcomes," says Stanford's Noll. "The problem is that these things get sold on the basis of economic return. It is completely bogus. If people think of it as consumption instead of investment," acknowledging that taxes will soar, and/or services plunge, for the benefit of a few citizens' pleasure, then they can make informed decisions on how their money will be spent.

The case for economic development arising from a subsidized major-league stadium is almost zero. For a

One of the propaganda pieces circulating in Beaverton is a 38-page case study done in early 2008 for the Stanford Graduate School of Business. It postulates that the Petco Park project was "a win for all involved — the City, San Diego taxpayers, and the Padres." It was published before Petco Park attendance plummeted to levels that are 4580 lower per game than the team had in its last three years at Qualcomm. (The team had said it could not survive economically at Qualcomm.) The study was published before the City's deficit burgeoned, but as early as 2004, the City warned that severe economic woes lay ahead. The troubles besetting condos and hotels in the ballpark district were evident before 2008, and the ballpark was already a drain on City budgets.

The Stanford case study, which former councilmember Bruce Henderson calls "an egregious failure to tell the truth," completely missed some key points and distorted others. For example, the study doesn't look skeptically at the City's claim that the project would pay for itself from transient-occupancy-tax revenues. But hotels that were promised weren't built, and those that were built are doing poorly, as are the condos. Retail and office buildings never got out of the ground. "The project went from purportedly revenue-neutral to a fiscal disaster for the City." The study claims that $4.5 billion of development in the ballpark district was positive for the City. "It may have been positive for developers and landowners," but the City had huge costs such as infrastructure, police, and fire protection that aren't accounted for. The study gave short shrift to the scandal about then-Padres owner John Moores heaping financial favors on then-councilmember Valerie Stallings and didn't report that in 2002, the mayor's Blue Ribbon Committee on City Finances softpedaled pension woes because the ballpark bonds were going to market.

The Stanford study neglects the key question in any sports-welfare project: "The $300 million subsidy is social capital. Could it have been spent elsewhere?" asks Henderson, suggesting underground zoo parking and infrastructure.

David Hoyt, who wrote the Stanford report, says he has no plans to update it. The change in San Diego's economic circumstances can be introduced in class discussions. It's up to Beaverton citizens to decide if it is relevant to the Beavers' situation.

Another piece of propaganda is a purported study by Los Angeles-based Economics Research Associates, which was paid for, of course, by the Paulsons. This firm, which was hired by the City of San Diego to tout the convention center expansion, tells Beaverton that the new ballpark will have an annual economic impact of more than $23 million. But Economics Research Associates reports only gross numbers, not net numbers, chuckles Noll. The firm doesn't take costs into account and doesn't report that any money spent at a ballpark is money that won't be spent elsewhere in the region. "These reports are very carefully written so no one can accuse them of lying," says Noll. "It's the advocates' misuse of those studies that is not kosher."

Actually, nothing is kosher in Beaverton. ■

says, "including hair sprays with warnings to not use around the eyes, ears, and mouth and to not inhale, as if that were possible." In Hot Hair Neon Pink, made by Fun Unlimited, "we found many dyes that have government bans or warnings," Malkan savs.

"Some of the stuff is marked nontoxic, but it is definitely not."

In May, Dr. Jacob signed a letter along with Malkan and other advocacy groups requesting Johnson & Johnson to remove hazardous chemicals from their products "and switch to safer alternatives." Lab tests, commissioned by the Campaign for Safe Cosmetics, had found the suspected human carcinogens formaldehyde and 1,4-dioxane in Johnson's Baby Shampoo and other products.

Among the letter's requests:

"Phase all phthalates out of your products."

Phthalates are known for their assault on hormones, which regulate cellular functions but are known by most people for their role in shaping the reproductive system. Under the influence of phthalates, amphibians have been shown to turn hermaphrodite; a warning, researchers say, for two-legged creatures.

It didn't take long to find phthalates and other ghoulish ingredients in a local bigbox store selling Halloween makeup. In Grossmont Center's Walmart, the aisles are getting their bones picked. Parents, tots, and tweens rummage through the wares, trying on hats, wielding plastic swords, and discussing costumes. Row upon row of nobrand makeup hangs from the hooks. Long ingredient lists suggest the components of rockets, not creams for lips, skin, and scalp. No-brand Neon Glitter Makeup from Taiwan has phthalates in its lipstick and roll-on face makeup, listed in the top 4 of 12 ingredients. Food and Drug Administration rules state that the amount of each chemical in a product is shown by "descending order of predominance." In humans, phthalates are linked to birth defects and infertility, according to the Centers for Disease Control.

"I haven't heard of [phthalates] in lip gloss," Malkan says. "Very interesting." Malkan's group has written extensively about phthalates in cosmetics. "Phthalates shouldn't be in products at any concentration," she says.

Also lurking in Walmart lipstick and roll-on makeup is D&C Red No. 7, a Food and Drug-restricted color not for use near the eyes. It tangles with several other dyes. Ingredients with worse profiles, according to the Cosmetic Safety Database, a consumer tool launched by the Environmental Working Group, are found in products in Mission Valley's Halloween store, as well as Walmart: parabens, BHT, and EDTA, for example. Even mineral oil, a liquid mixture of petroleum hydrocarbons, can be toxic due to contamination by known or suspected carcinogens. Mineral oil is an ingredient in lipstick and base makeup sold in Walmart.

Malkan says that lead, while restricted in colorants to certain concentrations, can run amok in other products. "Lead is allowed in any amount in finished cosmetic products, with no limits and no requirements to disclose it on the label."

Rarely are chemicals, even known carcinogens, banned. Products with Food and Drug Administration-restricted ingredients must display warning labels, such as an announcement that an ingredient has caused cancer in lab animals or a recommendation to test the product on a small area of skin for an allergic reaction.

The roll-on makeup with the restricted red dye, for example, warns that it should not be used around the eyes and that it's "not intended for use by children under 14." Other packages carry similar generic warnings, with a slew of varying age recommendations: not for those under age 7, 8, 14, 15.

Carbon black, a material produced by the incomplete combustion of petroleum products, graced the ingredient list of a hair dye sold in Walmart. According to the International Agency for Research on Cancer, carbon black is "possibly carcinogenic to humans." In 2004, in response to an industry petition, the FDA allowed carbon black into cosmetics. Now D&C Black No. 2 is found in many products besides hair dyes, from lipstick to eyeliner to foundation makeup.

"The whole safety system for cosmetics in the United States comes down to one concept," Malkan says. "We're supposed to trust the companies to do what's right. Unfortunately, companies are making safety decisions all over the board. Some are making products safe enough to eat, while others make products with carcinogens, phthalates, and many other toxic ingredients."

CITY LIGHTS

Christy Bartlett of San Diego Bath & Body Company—a signer of the Campaign for Safe Cosmetics' Compact for Safe Cosmetics—says her company "is finding that it's not difficult to adhere to the compact.

"It is up for debate as to whether or not some ingredients are unsafe to some companies," Bartlett says. "We believe that 'all-natural' means no artificial colors, fragrances, color, or preservatives. For example, grapefruit seed extract is controversial, and so are parabens. Some question use of soy too. We avoid them all."

Malkan says the Campaign for Safe Cosmetics expects Congress to tackle the issue of cosmetics regulation in the next few months. Such legislation would parallel current efforts to overhaul the limp 1976 Toxic Substances Control Act.

Her group has just put out a report on laboratory testing it commissioned on Halloween products. The lab tested ten face paints and found that all had lead. Six of the ten contained the allergens cobalt, chromium, and nickel, which Malkan says "can cause lifelong skin problems."

Hiram Machicote, the manager at the Mission Valley Halloween shop owned by Canoga Park—based Halloween Adventure, says he's not aware of any problems with makeup sold in the store. There was one recent customer, though, who told him about a Halloweenrelated incident, one that involved fake hair and surgery to remove it. The incident didn't involve his store, and the customer, he says, wanted to buy fake hair again but hoped to avoid what happened last time.

"She used superglue on her husband's head," he says. "This year she'll be using spirit gum."

ness for several years, and officials are looking for ways to revive the industry. Gays make the ideal tourist, Carrillo said, because they have more disposable income than straights, in general, and are willing to spend it on travel, dining, entertainment, and passports.

Carrillo said that at present there are no areas in the beachside city that cater exclusively to gay tourists, but there have been several gay weddings feted at some of the local hotels, and with good results.

LETTERS

We welcome letters pertaining to the contents of the Reader. Phone them in at 619-235-3000, ext. 460; address them to Letters to the Editor, Box 85803, San Diego CA 92186-5803; fax them to 619-231-0489; or use our web page at SanDiegoReader.com/letters. Include your name, address, and telephone number. Letters may be edited for length and clarity.

Fur Greed

It was good to read the letter by Vivian Dunbar entitled "Good Dog" (October 22). It certainly made me feel a little better after reading the Reader's October 8 story on the inhumane treatment of our furry friends south of the border in Mexico ("Dogs' Deathbed Gift,""City Lights"). God knows they're only here for such a short time. Why should we humans make it miserable for them or even make it shorter? Now if only those fur-greedy bastards in China could be stopped in their wholesale slaughter of dogs, puppies, and who knows whatever else they use the fur off the backs of. I learned of this through a letter describing this, along with photos of dogs and puppies packed together in barred crates awaiting their fate of being clubbed to death — or sometimes just unconscious — and then skinned, carcass thrown in a pile, some with their heart and lungs still working. Don't believe it? Get in touch with PETA and ask them to send you some of their literature, but you better have a strong stomach because it'll break an animal lover's heart.

Don't Talk About Them

Re the letter "Worse Than Baghdad" by J. Kitchin (Octo-

I must have slept through this part in law class. John Kitchin writes, "[Issues about other countries are not reported] and cannot be, as comments about Mexico and Canada are not covered under free speech nor free press laws."

WTF! Now, I understand that there are limitations (no screaming fire in a movie theater unless there really is a fire). But who made this new rule about not being able to comment on an issue, based on your own personal experiences, regardless of where said experiences take place? If I know (hypothetically) that Vancouver, BC, is a sweat gland on the anus of the world, based on personal experience, what is this bit that would prevent me from blogging about that?

This map shows the heart of the (alleged) sweat gland (aka Downtown Eastside, or DTES), http://vancouver.ca/ police/crimemaps/tfauto.pdf.

Here is the history of this (alleged) hellhole: http://en. wikipedia.org/wiki/Downtown_Eastside.

And to top it all off, the place is (allegedly) run by the Hells Angels. They (allegedly) control the drug traffic down on the piers and everywhere else, except where the Asian gangs (allegedly) run things, and much more (allegedly). http://www.canada. com/vancouver/vancouversun/ news/observer/story.html?id =f525bc8a-d80a-4ece- 9ffcf5a2a55a43b0

Does reporting on this topic subject me to arrest in some way? Is he talking about Mexican laws? If so, why would they care about Canada? Maybe John Kitchin, or one of the editors at the Reader, can explain. Just curious. And you can thank me for the education. I have walked those alleys and stepped on used syringes and used condoms. Not a pretty sight.

> Thomas Elliott via email

John Kitchin replies: I first became aware of the exemptions of Canada and Mexico when the characters in Second City TV, a comedy group, said that they were not permitted to use the name Canada, nor Kanadian Korner, nor any of that. They had to settle for calling their sketch "The Great White North." They said in interviews about the show that there are treaties, some of them part of a predecessor of NAFTA, which establish this exemption. I took note, as I write tourism books. As I understand it, from being arrested, it is the foreign country that can prosecute you. I was prosecuted in Mexico. Here's the interesting part: Does internet publishing qualify someone as a "published tourism author," and thus exempt from this treaty? I'm not a lawyer, but I have to know enough of the laws regarding what cannot be written because I do write and publish books. I got into a huge amount of trouble once for suggesting that Holy Communion consisted of more than just bread and wine.

Joke City

Evidently you were on vacation (in Mexico?), having a beer in Tucson, sailing in Cabo — but whatever you were doing, you were not tending the shop!

What an irresponsible!!!!! pathetic, boring, redundant, awful, sad article, "Rush Hour Spectacle" ("Stringers," October 15).

Get a grip. S journalism, crass writing. Yeah, right, you're reminding "us" (Joe Public) of all the horrible things going on in "local Mexico." Well, guess what again, we all know what's up in Baja. I traveled in Baja for the first time in 1964. I drove the Transpeninsular Highway before it was paved. My mother lived in La Paz for years in the early '60s, on Madero Street near the zócalo. My sister had two children born in La Paz, and she and my brother (Mary and Charlie) went to preparatoria as the first Anglo children in that city. My mother later bought a small ranchita in El Triunfo and lived her last years there, in rural Baja. I remember Cabo before—long before—there was anything there! Just two very small pueblitos near the cape. Long before million-dollar lots and Cabo Wabo. Cabo Wabo is a nightmare!

I went with friends to mainland Mexico in 1959 all the way to Mazatlán and then to San Blas, the first to surf Matachin Bay. In the '60s we all — San Diego lifeguards, surfers, and party animals — went to the bullfights and got drunk at the (original) Long Bar. It was safe, super fun, and drugs were never a problem. Well, those days are over - forever — because America needs to get high! I know Mexico. I've traveled there in the wild Sierra collecting folk art and writing about Mexico for decades. I was never afraid, but local Mexico has gone to hell! It is scary! I haven't been to Rosarito for over two years. I used to go every weekend.

No more articles like "Rush Hour Spectacle." It does not need to be told. We all know what a joke local Mexico is. It's not safe, it isn't fun, and printing stupid articles about death and a man hanging from a cable with his balls taped to his head is worthless crap.

Get a grip, get responsible, and go get a different attitude!

What good does it do, what, who, does it serve?

Oh, look, Martha, a man hanging from a bridge with his balls taped to his face. Yeah, right!

Inspirational

I must admit that the article on Robert Campos's celebration-of-life gathering confused me ("Crasher," October 15). It's quite possible that I was at a whole different gathering than the author.

When we got to the celebration, Robert came up and hugged my wife and daughter. When bending over to hug me in my wheelchair, he handed me a handwritten note. He said, "This is helping me. Maybe it will help you." The note was a recipe for a homeopathic cure for cancer.

Sundi and Scott, the hosts of the party, went out of their way to make things accessible to me.

Robert is an inspiration to many of us dealing with various health issues. When I heard him singing along with the mariachi band and saw him dancing his dance of life, it only validated what a special and unique man he is.

I only wish the author would have asked more of us about what Robert meant to each of us personally. If he had, maybe he would have been able to better describe Robert's celebration of life. Because of the generosity of Robert and Sundi and Scott, many of us were able to experience a joyous gathering of like beings who just happen to be fighting similar battles.

From my heart, I want to thank Robert, Sundi, and Scott for inviting my family and me to a very beautiful and spiritual occasion.

Save A Tree

C'mon, guys. One hundred and sixty pages, half of which nobody reads, and you decide not to list art galleries on its own page like you used to. I know lots of people that used that column to find art openings for the weekend. That and music are the only two things I check on. By the way, you need to learn what public art is. It has nothing to do with what you list under museums and "public art." If you want to save a tree, get rid of some of the long-winded articles or lump them under the title "Ad Nauseam."

STRAIGHT FROM THE HIP BY MATTHEW ALICE

Somebody gave my eight-year-old son an Xbox for his birthday. I am afraid he will become addicted to playing it and that it will harm him and make him just sit around the house playing games all the time. I need some backup to convince my son he needs to get outside and play. Does something like an Xbox harm kids? Before I tell my son he can only play for an hour a day, I really need some proof that I'm trying to help him, not punish him.

— Concerned Mom, San Diego

Well, we could send the elves to your house and have them show your son their severe cases of

"Guitar Hero wrist," as the doctors call it. Tendinitis from imitating Jimi Hendrix and Jimmy Page on the video game. Short of that, I'm not sure what you could say to an eight-year-old about his medical future that would impress him. Grabbing the device and hiding it might be your best bet.

It's not to say that you're wrong. Actually, for once, Mom is right. The Xbox and PlayStation and Wii have been around long enough for wounded players to start showing up in doctors' offices. Sore shoulders, wrists, fingers; "gamer's thumb"; "BlackBerry thumb" from over-texting; "cell phone elbow," a mashed ulnar nerve from holding the phone to your ear too long; strained backs from over-Wii-ing. Our electronic gadgets have turned on us with a vengeance, and adults are as vulnerable as kids. Things are particularly bad for Wii-ers who get up from their lounge chairs and think they're Tiger Woods. All those slack muscles will be screaming the next day. There are even accounts of broken fingers from gaming and a black eye when a Wii-er let go of the controller in some sports-induced frenzy and it whapped a bystander.

But no matter how old you are or what game you're playing, most injuries come from repetitive stress — using the same muscle groups for hours on end, until tendons, ligaments, and muscles become inflamed. Medical studies show that the damage is particularly bad for kids under ten or so. Docs' best guess is that the youthful tissues are not fully mature and so are more vulnerable. All medical sources recommend one hour a day, max, of gaming for all kids. Tests suggest that one hour a day doesn't harm anyone. Sometimes the pain is bad enough that it actually forces the kid himself to limit his gaming time. That's when a doctor should look at the situation, though a few days of rest usu-

Guitar Hero sidelined someone besides the elves. A hot-shot relief pitcher for the Detroit Tigers went to the trainer with severe pain in the wrist and forearm on his pitching side. Doc said to rest the arm completely for four weeks. Apparently the pitcher stopped playing Guitar Hero as part of his rehab within three days he was > back in the lineup. The doctor could only guess that it wasn't a pitching injury, it was a guitar injury.

What's the story with Miranda in our Miranda rights? Were they named after a real woman? If so, was she a very quiet woman? – JBP, via email

Miranda wasn't very silent, which is why everything hit the fan in the first place. Ernesto Miranda (a bloke, not a señorita) was arrested in 1963 for robbery. As long as he was at the police station anyway, I guess he figured it would be a good time to confess to a previous kidnapping and rape. Prosecutors had no trouble convicting him. Defense counsel filed an appeal, saying Miranda had not been advised that the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution gave him the right to refuse to incriminate himself by confessing. In 1966 the U.S. Supreme Court agreed. Miranda was retried in Arizona, omitting the confession, and he was convicted again. But his name has stuck to the disclaimer that's read to every perp in cuffs.

Hev. Matt:

Why do I have to turn down my car radio when I'm doing something like looking for an address or reading a map? But I can drive okay with the radio on. So, what's up?

— Confused, driving around Chula Vista

Waa! Waa! Sensory overload! Distraction! Distraction! Brain log-off! Memory destruct! Way too much input. And there's plenty of neurological research to explain what's going on. Noise (including organized noise like music) shares some brain pathways with visual information. You instinctively reach for the knob in order to concentrate on one thing at a time. Tunes, especially loud, bass-thumping numbers, increase stress hormones. If you're partying, that cortisol and adrenaline amp is called "fun." When you're late for a meeting, looking for an address, it's called "stress." And stress interferes with shortterm memory, making it even harder to find that danged house number. You turn down the volume in self-defense. Your brain thanks you.

Matters of Fact

Some of the footage is so out of focus as to be all but unwatchable.

DUNCAN SHEPHERD

re you having enough chances to see documentaries? I myself in the past couple of weeks missed my chances at Fuel and The Way We Get By, the latest environmental and Iraq War documentaries respectively. I expect I won't miss my chance this week at This Is It, more than just the latest pop music documentary, Michael Jackson "like you've never seen him before," presumably meaning skeletal. In between, I haven't been wanting.

Good Hair features bad camerawork, no worse than the documentary norm these days, rough, shaky, often out of position, but the film is nevertheless an engrossing and entertaining investigation of the "problem" of African-American hair, the size of which problem may hitherto have eluded you. Our on-screen investigator is a bemused, amused, nonjudgmental, and generally dialled-down Chris Rock, father himself of two young girls, one of whom posed the instigating question, "Daddy, how come I don't have good hair?" Two main solutions to the problem are gone into in depth or anyhow at length. The first is the relaxer, a/k/a a "nap antidote," a/k/a the "creamy crack," whose key ingredient, sodium hydroxide, is demonstrated in a laboratory to eat through a soda can in a matter of hours. This substance is put with full consent on people's heads: "Nappy is not bad, it's just nappy." The second solution is the weave, the latest innovation evidently in what used to be called a fall (the solution of the whole-hog wig gets ignored altogether), which produces the stunning statistic that twelve percent of the American population, the black percent, buys up eighty percent of the hair, most of it the harvest of tonsure ceremonies in temples in India.

In one insufficiently funny episode, Rock makes like Michael Moore and attempts tongue-in-cheek to peddle a bagful of African-American hair on the open market; and director Jeff Stilson

allots too much time to the Bronner Brothers semi-annual hair show in Atlanta, tying the climax of the film to the tawdry competitive climax of the hair show, a marching band, gyrating models, gymnastic and aquatic hair-cutting. With a little time saved from that, or a little extra time in addition to that, the film might have accommodated a couple of silently beckoning topics, a retrospective, for one, on the Black

Is Beautiful movement of the Sixties (whatever became of that?), and for another, just for contrast, a fashion show of au courant "natural" hairstyles. Among the talking heads on parade (Al Sharpton, Ice-T, Maya Angelou, Nia Long, Meagan Good, Raven-Symoné, many more) is noteworthily the author A'Lelia Bundles, who could well serve as poster girl for a natural solution. There must be others like her.

More Than a Game is less than a movie, a rah-rah sports story of ordinary but not extraordinary interest, just about adequate to fill up two hours of Sunday-afternoon television while waiting for the NBA season to tip off. Through home video, TV broadcasts, and reminiscing talking heads, it traces the amateur career of LeBron James and his membership since the fifth grade in a basketball brotherhood dubbed the Fab Four, expanded to the Fab Five in his senior year at St. Vincent-St. Mary High School in his native Akron, Ohio. The chronicle has its share of up-close-and-personal poignance to go along with its share of the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat, with matching music in each instance. (The hand-me-down terminology in that sentence is solely to suggest the handme-down template copied by the film.) Director Kristopher Belman's slick manipulation of the material can sometimes fall under suspicion. Was James's disappointing junior year, after his coronation as "The Chosen One" on the cover of Sports Illustrated, really the only time he could be caught posing, posturing, and playing to the crowd? Doubtful, since he can still be caught doing it today for the Cleveland Cavaliers. Some of the footage is so out of focus as to be all but unwatchable, and the switching back and forth between that sort of footage and crisper, more watchable footage can knock you woozy.

The Beaches of Agnes makes its appeal to a smaller audience, film aficionados with an affection for the onetime New Waver, Agnes Varda, now a gnomish octogenarian: "I'm playing the role of a little old lady, pleasantly plump and talkative." She travels the entire length of Memory Lane (a block or two of which she has travelled in her previous documentaries, the Rue Daguerre in Daguerreotypes, for instance), revisiting the locales of her childhood, digging up black-and-white photos of her little self in a swimsuit, in addition to the locales of her films, digging up abundant clips from them, including a rarity of the very young and skinny Gerard Depardieu as a bearded beatnik. Self-indulgent, selfaffectionate, informal, playful, sometimes silly, sometimes painful (the death by AIDS of her husband and fellow New Waver, Jacques Demy), the film constitutes a true test of your affection. Cleo from 5 to 7, for anyone who has seen it, ought to be enough to pull you through, even to leave you hungry for more. In the nature of things, no one who will be interested in this subject matter is liable to be traumatized by the gratuitous sight of an anonymous erect penis. No further warning required.

Pre-Halloween treat: the Reading Gaslamp and Town Square theaters are bringing back to the big screen for one showing only, Friday at eight, Hitchcock's The Birds. Cause to crow. ■

Amelia — Punishingly dull biopic on history's most fabled aviatrix, Amelia Earhart (portraved by Hilary Swank, with traces of Katharine Hepburn rather than of Kansas wheatfields in her speech), her final flight endlessly interrupted by how-she-got-there flashbacks. The Birds — Hitchcock's shocker about an avian air attack on the citizenry of Bodega Bay is constructed along the lines of a sci-fi invasion film. Divested of all logic, this assault on middle-class complacency exposes Hitchcock's sadistic tendencies as nakedly as they have ever been. There is a lightening of load thanks to the absence of human villainy and all the creaky contrivance normally found in Hitchcock's depiction of it. At the same time, the director's stylistic devices — the intricate scene construction, the brilliant Pop Art color, the throwaway drolleries, the mugger's or molester's skill at leading easy victims into entrapment — have never been seen in better working condition. With Tippi Hedren, Rod Taylor, Jessica Tandy. 1963.

★★★★ (GASLAMP 15, 10/30, 8 P.M.; TOWN SOUARE 14, 10/30, 8 P.M.)

Bright Star — As recounted by Jane Campion, unusually taking sole screenwriting credit in addition to directing, the illstarred love story of John Keats and Fanny Brawne is such as to make us ask ourselves when we last had on screen a love story we could believe in. (In the Mood for Love, maybe? 2001?) That, or more exactly the believability part of it, is truly saying something when the principal characters are so prone to recite poetry extemporaneously, not only the poet who wrote it — the perfect Platonic ideal of the Poet, or at any rate the Romantic incarnation of him — but also the smitten one who, having invested in a copy of Endymion "to see if he's an idiot or not," has committed his words to memory: incontrovertible evidence of love. This is a closely observed affair, followed with patience and fascination, from spark to flame, a bonding of hearts with no assistance from lower organs, what once went unashamedly and today goes blushingly by the name of True Love. Campion can often be candidly carnal, as in Sweetie, The Piano, Holy Smoke, and In the Cut, and she certainly here is highly sensual, making great play of birdsong, breezes, snow, rain, gauze curtains, flapping sheets on clotheslines, a roomful of butterflies, a human nest in a treetop, and while the inevitable Vermeery white light is nothing to get excited about, the color loses none of its vividness and precision for its paleness and delicacy. But the expressions of passion per se have been strictly limited to things like tender touches, first kiss, love letters, fetishistic fondling, and the physical pain of separation. The dirty deed is never approached, unless you can see a symbol in the needlework of the heroine, a cutting-edge fashionista of the early 19th Century, inspiration for some delightful period costumes. Abbie Cornish, Ben Whishaw, Paul Schneider, Kerry Fox, Edie Martin, Antonia Campbell-Hughes. 2009

ism is an evil, and you cannot regulate evil." In other words, Capitalism: A Horror Story, the moral of which might best be summed up as capitalism, no; democracy, yes - a tricky distinction for simpletons who think the only alternative to capitalism is totalitarian communism. Moore's shtick as the schlumpy crusader, the Lieutenant Columbo of the Radical Left, has gotten a little tired, or maybe it's just Moore himself who has gotten tired, but in any case he now seems less funny and less inclined to be so than in the past. And as the wit and the invention have thinned, the whine and the sneer in his voice have proportionately thickened. He has still dug up some treasures of found footage (an educational documentary on the fall of Ancient Rome, a Ronald Reagan cowboy film, a newsreel of the near-death FDR proposing his Second Bill of Rights), and he engineers some amusing juxtapositions in the editing room, yet the vast bulk of his movie divides into arbitrary anecdotes of human interest, on the one hand, and on the other a rehash of a subject already well and recently covered, the Meltdown and the Bailout. More simply, economics is by nature a dull subject on screen, and Moore has managed insufficiently to enliven it. 2009.

District 9 — Neo-apartheid in South Africa: a million ghettoized extraterrestrials from a stalled spacecraft over Johannesburg. The documentary affectations, discontinued at convenience, make it seem initially a joke rather than a reality. And not a funny joke, either. The aliens — pejorative as well as descriptive term, "prawns" — are well visualized, and the Fly-like metamorphosis of a human into a partial prawn achieves a high degree of disgustingness. The Informant! — Steven Soderbergh, working from fact, details an impenetrable case of corporate skullduggery blown open by an ambiguous black-hatted whistleblower: a kind of anti-Hitchcock suspense comedy, grudgingly putting any cards at all on the table, keeping the surprises coming only by keeping us in the dark, flouting the Master's tried-and-true method of fully briefing us. (It's also anti-Hitchcock in its rosy, fuzzy, vaporous image.) The hero's meandering stream-of-consciousness narration ("I like my hands. I think they're my favorite part of my body") gives us constant clues as to the variety of nut we are dealing with; and the exclamation point in the title, the anachronistic Groovy Sixties lettering, and the chipper Marvin Hamlisch background music, all to ensure that we know this is a comedy, seem outsized for the actual level of amusement: seldom laugh-outloud but often lip-twisting. Matt Damon puts up some surprisingly strong competition for future William Macy roles, in a stick-on mustache and a crimpy hairpiece which he waits an hour and a half to tug at, giving up all pretense of fooling anyone, and waits all the way to the epilogue to remove altogether. Scott Bakula effortlessly upstages him as the flat-haired, furrowed-browed straight man, a straight-arrow FBI guy. Luckily for Damon, Bakula is much off-screen. 2009.

Inglourious Basterds — Quentin

★★★ (GASLAMP 15)

Tarantino takes no more than the risible title from Enzo G. Castellari's Dirty Dozen knockoff of 1978, and respells, misspells, that. (Did he ponder Basturds as possibly funnier?) Much of the movie, a revisionist revisitation of the French theater of operations in the Second World War, is unapologetically, unsanctimoniously silly. Yet the revisions give you plenty to chew on. You need no extraordinary expertise to realize that Tarantino has played fast and loose with the facts of how and when the Third Reich fell, has indeed set sail into a parallel universe. The size of the falsification (a Big Lie about the foremost perpetrator of the Big Lie) is the difference between just another sneaky Hollywood falsification and a brazen joke on all such falsifications. It perhaps goes without saying that Tarantino's treatment of Nazis is not motivated by any sense of horror and outrage (never mind sanctimony) over the philosophy of Aryan supremacy, the death camps, and so on, much less by any desire to "understand," but solely by the need of a universally acceptable villain. He wants to do nothing more to Nazis, nothing worse, than to conventionalize them, fictionalize them. Know ingly nudging his depiction beyond the silly and into the campy, he lures you onto the battlefield of aesthetics, safely away from politics. Once there, he's got you where he wants you. Where his movie can better repel attack. In the end - at the close of two and a half hours — it stands as arguably his best-made to date, scene after scene meticulously shaped and timed, not to mention gleamingly photographed by Robert Richardson. While he is serious where it counts - the architectonic solidity, the painstaking precision, the creative flair, of the camera angles and compositions – is also funny wherever he chooses, picking his spots and racking up an impressive ratio of successes to attempts. Brad Pitt, Christoph Waltz, Mélanie Laurent, Daniel Brühl, Diane Kruger. 2009.

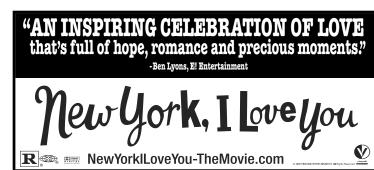

★★★ (RANCHO DEL REY 16)

The Invention of Lving — High-concept comedy with and from Ricky Gervais, cowriting and co-directing with Matthew Robinson. It's set in an alternative universe where everyone by nature tells the brutal truth (even advertisers: "Pepsi, When They Don't Have Coke"), until the brutalized short portly hero, unable to make his rent, makes an evolutionary leap to deceit, and goes on from there to invent religion. The concept is certainly cheeky, if uncertainly funny, but the de rigueur romance takes it into sappy platitudes on skin-deep beauty and inner worth. With Jennifer Garner, Rob Lowe, Tina Fey, Louis C.K., Jonah Hill, Jason Bateman, Jeffrey Tambor, and uncredited cameos for Philip Seymour Hoffman and Edward Norton. 2009.

Julie and Julia — As per its punchy subhead, this is "based on two true stories parallel stories of feminist self-determination, set half a century apart, then and now. One focuses on Julie Powell, self-made blogger, daily chronicler of a year-long project to cook her way through volume one of Mastering the Art of French Cooking, 365 days, 524 recipes. The other focuses on the American co-author of the aforesaid cookbook, Julia Child. Though each story in turn gets equal time, back and forth, the film suffers from a built-in imbalance. The women, no need to be overly polite about it, are not equal pioneers. The one — the earlier — the pathfinder — was, in her own humorously grandiose phrase, out to "change the world," while the other - the follower — the copier — the coattail rider — was only out to carve herself a niche in the blogosphere and eventually the publishing world. Nor are the players equal. Amy Adams is an agreeable light-comedy actress (not so agreeable a heavier actress), whose Julie has been drastically watered down from the real McCoy, the real Powell, evidently out of primary concern that everyone should like her and every woman identify with her. Meryl Streep, meanwhile, is nothing less than the prima donna of contemporary American cinema; and her Julia, far from a bland Everywoman, is a one-of-a-kind: a stylized self-parodist parodied to perfection, but softened and molded into a rounded, humanized, full-service screen character. We want at all times, not just half the time, to be with Julia; and we should probably be grateful to writer-director Nora Ephron, whose title comes from Powell's blown-up blog but whose source material expanded to encompass Child's autobiography, that we have Julia-slash-Meryl even half the time. It could have been less. Stanley Tucci, Chris Messina, Jane Lynch. 2009.

A Serious Man — At bottom, the Coen brothers' most "personal" work. To be sure, they've never been reduced to hired hands. They've always had the good fortune to be able to make the films they wanted to make films that reflected their personal tastes and personal attitudes and personal interests and personal viewpoints. Still, in the strict autobiographical sense, this one must be acknowledged as extra personal, set as it is in the Minneapolis suburb of their adolescence (Jefferson Airplane on the soundtrack to fix the date, 1967), in a Jewish household headed by a university professor with a son on the brink of his bar mitzvah. The filmmakers bring to their subject the unkind eye of the caricaturist. They demonstrate an acute and excruciating body awareness, the girth, the ear hair, the sebaceous cyst on the neck, the protagonist's half squat at the classroom blackboard, his outthrust butt, his pant cuffs riding up to his calves. And their subtly bulging face shots and torso shots, fronted and centered, approach the freak-show aura of the photographs of Diane Arbus. The parade of surnames has a Dickensian grotesquerie all its own: Gopnik, Finkle, Marshak, Nachtner, Schlutz, seldom a simple Shapiro. And the three rabbis of three different generations are hilariously ineffectual in three different ways. But to complain that the character portraits are not rounded, are slanted, would be to complain that a caricaturist is not a classicist, that Daumier is not Ingres. This is, it bears stressing at this point, a personal film. It is also - unexpectedly enough, as unexpected as the superstitious Old Country folk tale of the prologue and its old-fashioned 4:3 aspect ratio — a religious film, a film concerned not just with the specific religion of Judaism and its whole exotic lexicon, but with broader religious questions, universal inquiries into life's mysteries: what have I done to deserve this? what have I done with my life? what ought I to do? what am I here for? Ioel and Ethan Coen have long and lately devoted themselves to the vast panoply of human stupidity. Stretching out now, stretching back to Barton Fink, they have chosen to reassure us, although "reassure" doesn't sound quite right. that an intelligent, educated, well-meaning, and would-be serious man is no less at a loss. Michael Stuhlbarg, Sari Lennick, Richard Kind, Aaron Wolff, Fred Melamed.

Surrogates — Vicarious living, virtual living, through flawless androids, so that this indeterminate future often bears an eerie likeness to a Ross Hunter production at Universal Studios circa 1959: "Life... only better." The basic situation is confusing enough without the murder mystery and the experimental zap gun that fries not just the brains of the robots but those of the distant humans hooked up to them. What's clear is the science-fiction fundamental of dehumanization and rehumanization. With Bruce Willis, Radha Mitchell, Rosamund Pike, Ving Rhames, and James Cromwell; directed by Jonathan Mostow. 2009. ★ (OCEANSIDE 16: PALM PROMENADE 24: PARK WAY PLAZA 18; RANCHO DEL REY 16)

Tim Burton's The Nightmare before Christmas — More accurately Henry Selick's Tim Burton's The Nightmare before Christmas, Burton having had the idea for it and then having turned it over to Selick, a specialist in three-dimensional stop-motion animation. As so often in that medium, the aesthetic plane, quite distinct from the financial plane, is not sufficiently higher than that of Mr. Potatohead. The hero, Jack Skellington, a/k/a The Pumpkin King, looks unfortunately like Whitley Strieber's extraterrestrial in a pinstripe suit and on stilts. And his many, varied, and grotesque cohorts are first and foremost a manifestation of Hollywood's besetting vices of overabundance and overindulgence: too many, too varied, too grotesque. Another, more basic, manifestation of these is the mere fact that the film is a feature and not a short. Because it is a Disney film, of course, and an animated film, there seems to be some immutable law that it must have songs, songs, and more songs - written (and some of them sung) by Danny Elfman, but sounding more like Andrew Lloyd Webber in search of a melody ("I don't believe what's happening to me,/ My hopes, my dreams, my fantasy!"). These musical interludes are no doubt the greatest offenders in the torturerack stretch to feature-length, but the gaudy

them a close second. In its bare bones, the premise seems viable enough. Completely separate towns, according to Burton's fantasyland geography, are responsible for planning and carrying-off the separate holidays on the calendar, until one year the Halloween mastermind gets it into his head to abduct Santa Claus and usurp Christmas. There is some dark-toned fun (not darker than TV's The Simpsons or than Charles Addams's New Yorker cartoons, and not more fun, either) when the revised Christmas plans begin to go awry. And by and by there's a traditional and respectable fairytale message to do with accepting yourself as you are. The delivery of that message, however, and for that matter the setting-up

displays of wealth and expenditure run

Toy Story 2 — A sure bet to be enjoyed by all who enjoyed the first one. And endured by most others. The central theme of the built-in obsolescence of children's toys -Woody, the pull-string cowboy, has suffered a torn shoulder and is retired to the shelf while his owner goes off to summer camp without him — gives rise to some difficult, even painful, questions on aging, mortality, the instability of relationships, the impermanence of love, and the like. ("Do you really think Andy is going to take you to college? Or on his honeymoon?") The easy answers will doubtless be more soothing the younger you are. Parents, in consequence, are to be cautioned not for their kids' sake, but for their own sake. On another front, the advances in computer animation since the original Toy Story are plain to see, particularly in the depth of field (including at times an artificially blurry foreground), the openness and airiness of the space, and the lifelikeness of some of the human figures (all the way to nose hairs and a bad combover). Sometimes it is hard to know, or to remember, what you are looking at. This development, if you are old enough to be unsoothed by the aforementioned easy answers, is apt to be too fraught with misgivings and forebodings (where will it lead? where will it end?) to be entirely enjoyable. Halloween Edition alloween is the ideal holiday because, at least in this country, it isn't about anything in particular. You have no obligation to be with family or church. No set rituals that have to be observed, although there are rituals available if you want that. If you like ghosts and goblins and witches — most people do...most people like a good scare — you can find an apparition on every block. All Hallows' Eve is set aside to celebrate whatever you want to celebrate; no one has clear title to the day.

It's a short walk from ghosts and goblins to costume parties. We like them, they can be fun...or at least weird. According to the National Retail Federation, "65 percent of U.S. adults between 18 and 34 attend Halloween costume parties or other celebrations." Even allowing for the extremely malleable "other celebrations" loophole that's a huge number of costume-wearing adults.

No doubt that stat would include 65 percent of all the athletes and executives on any NFL, MLB, NBA, or NHL team. The next question is, what should they wear?

Jed Hoyer is new in town, named Padres general manager on Monday. He's 35, joined the Boston Red Sox in 2002 as a bottom-feeding intern, worked his way up to co-general manager for 44 days, then settled in as assistant general manager.

Manchild Hoyer is a graduate of Holderness School, a private high school/boarding school with 275 students and a $40,700-per-year tuition. It's located near Plymouth, New Hampshire. By the way, I see the Holderness football team will be playing those brutes from Hebron Academy on Halloween. The lads are 3-2 on the season and need this victory. Go, Blue Bulls!

Therefore, Hoyer must wear school colors to his Halloween costume party. The proud blue and silver should color the stripes that adorn the back of his cape. Of course, the Holderness red crest will be stitched in the center of said cape. What else? Perhaps a football helmet would work. I'd go with the official Holderness white helmet and the big blue H painted on one side. Perhaps, paint a dollar sign on the other side. Pants can be comeas-you-are, as long as they don't clash, and finish off with mid-calf mukluks to celebrate how insanely cold and brutally dark it gets in Plymouth, New Hampshire.

One man finds a job, another gets fired from the same job...in this instance, the newly ex-Padres general manager Kevin Towers. That stud lasted 14 years on a 3-year job. This factoid is made more incredible since he usually had no money to spend on players (2009 Yankees payroll $201 million vs. $43 million for San Diego). As any GM will tell you, the true purpose of a baseball player is to make the general manager look smart, which is hard to do if you shop at dirtcheapballplayers.com.

Towers has worked a lot of baseball in his 47 years. He pitched for BYU in college, made All-WAC. He was the Padres' 1982 first-round draft pick, spent seven years pitching on San Diego's farm teams, then moved over to coach pitching for the Spokane Indians, then a Padres affiliate and a short-season single-A ball club. This is starting at the bottom of the bottom.

He came to the Padres as a scout, left, came back as scouting director, and then a passing deity reached down and made him general manager. The year was 1995, 14 years back. That's the lifetime of one American toad, or three gerbil lifetimes, or from birth into the teenage years of one Congo eel.

We don't need to think about this — Towers will go to his party dressed as the Padres Friar, wearing a brown frock, open sandals, carrying a baseball bat, and maintaining the goofy facial expression of someone who has just won two tickets to see Ben Hur.

San Diego-born and longtime Chargers linebacker Junior Seau has retired from the NFL three times, which puts him one up on Brett Favre. He will go as a Super Bowl ring.

San Diego-born, current Rancho Santa Fe resident, and renowned PGA golfer Phil Mickelson will go to his party dressed as Number Two

Former San Diego State defensive assistant football coach John Madden will go as a Greybound bus

Ladainian Tomlinson, Chargers running back, will dress as a roustabout, dock-laborer subdivision, and carry a placard that reads, "I coulda been a contender."

San Diego-born and bred Bill Walton, named one of the top 20 business athlete representatives by TSE Sports and Entertainment Group, pitchman for Tostitos, Reebok, Anacin, and Best Western Hotels, will go to his costume party dressed as an endorsement contract.

Never be the first to arrive at a party or the last to go home, and never, ever be both.

— David Brown

led David through a labyrinth of suspended fabric and into an unpopulated room dimly lighted with red bulbs. We made our way between a bed on our left and a coffee table and sofa to our right, finally reaching a table at the end of the far wall, on which sat a green-shaded lamp muted to near darkness. Behind the table stood the gatekeeper. She wore a flapper dress, long strands of pearls around her neck, and a cloche hat over a blond wig fashioned into a straight bob, its flaxen color glowing against her mocha-toned skin. She was Shug in Alice Walker's The Color Purple, primed to belt it out at Harpo's juke joint.

"What's the password?" Even her voice was as I imagined Shug's would be: sticky and sweet like molasses. We'd already passed the first two tests — finding the place and dressing appropriately. David wore a black suit with a black silk tie over a black button-down shirt. The feather in his gray fedora flashed a hint of red that matched my blackand-red feather headband. "Zimbabwe," I said. Shug (who now introduced herself as Tranita) welcomed us in with an impish smile.

We stepped around the final curtain and into a capacious warehouse with ceilings that disappeared into the blackness above; the walls were made infinite by mirrors and projection screens that were alive with swirling scenes of a 1920s dancehall rendered in shades of red. The only thing missing were the people. "How early are we,

Barb?" David asked, his tone a hair shy of exasperation.

Bee's Knees in the Barrio

"We're not early at all," I snapped. "I even called to make sure that this would be a good time to come. The party started at 9:00 — it's 9:30." David sighed, and I answered the question I knew was forming on his lips. "The invitation said from 9 to 3 a.m."

"And you thought 9:30 was a good time to arrive," David said, as if he wasn't already aware of my greatest social handicap - premature party appearance. I have a hard time with parties that begin late, especially on weeknights. Not because I have to get up early or anything, but because on weeknights there usually isn't much else going on, and I end up sitting around and waiting at home until it's time to leave. The later it gets, the more my desire to ditch the comfort of my living room diminishes. I like to get the party started pronto, which means as soon as I'm ready. And I was ready we'd already spent most of the evening listening to podcasts of Radio Lab and sharing a bottle of Block no. 45 petite syrah, and if I didn't get out of the house when we did, it would have been nigh impossible to fight the urge to grab a book and curl up with it on the couch. But whereas I was just happy to be out and about (i.e., getting the party started), David needed some entertaining.

"Where do you think the term 'speakeasy' comes from?" I asked. David shrugged. "I mean, it's what they called places like this during Prohibition, right? So, do you think people were not only not able to drink, but also not able to speak freely back then and they would go to these underground joints and 'speak easy?' You know what? Wait a second, I'll look it up," I said, and retrieved my iPhone from my purse.

While I searched for answers, David watched over my shoulder as the bartenders prepped the emerald-lit bar. Behind them, drink choices had been written on a large mirror in glowing green paint - green signifying the presence of absinthe, bringer of la fée verte (the famed green fairy who is not only a euphemism for the liqueur but is also said to be summoned by drinking the intoxicating green beverage).

"Okay, got it," I said. "Apparently, the term came from an Irish woman who sold liquor without a license and told her clients to 'speak easy' when they wanted to buy some. But that still doesn't tell us anything about the etymology. Wait, here it is. Looks like 'spake-aisy' was used for a hundred years before that to define the hideouts of smugglers...doesn't say what kind. Well, so much for Google having all the answers." I adjusted my feathers and tilted my head back. "You smell that? What's that smell?"

"Smoke," David said. "Cigar, and," he paused for a moment to analyze the aroma. "Weed." It was wafting above the dividers from the makeshift "cigar lounge" near the front entrance that had been an advertised feature of the event. Having come of age after the statewide ban of smoking at bars, the cigar seemed stranger to me than the burning herb, especially as the latter's scent went well with the green theme of the bar.

An hour passed before the party began gaining altitude, an hour during which I suffered the penance of David's deadpan stare. My redemption arrived in the form of esteemed trumpet player Gilbert Castellanos and his bandmates. As members of the tight quartet took turns soloing, fedoras and pearls gathered round. A pair of professional dancers seized the floor, while at the bar, absinthe was poured over flaming cubes of sugar. A woman in an Asian-style silk dress circled the room, offering nibbles from the Walking outside the nondescript Barrio Logan warehouse, one would never have suspected that on the other side of the wall a party had fallen through a wormhole in space to a time nearly a century earlier. "Isn't this the bee's knees?" I said to David, raising my voice to be heard over the trumpet player's solo.

'What?" David asked. He leaned closer to me but kept his eyes on the quartet. I imagined his appreciation for the music went beyond mine, as David played the trumpet in high school.

"You know, the cat's meow," I said. "As in, say, ain't this joint swell?" At this, David turned his head toward me and smiled. We'd been watching the Thin Man movies, featuring our favorite married characters, Nick and Nora. The first film of the series was made in the early '30s, and the dialogue is heavy on the slang.

"That's right, doll," David said. "Now, if you'll excuse me, I think I'll fetch us each a glass of giggle water."

'Say, that would be nifty," I said.

'Say, you don't happen to have any clams on ya?" David said. At this, we both laughed and then turned our attention back to the band, the dancers, and the eclectic crowd of misfits like us, enjoying a night of speaking easy. ■

Santa Fe Christian running back Cody Reynolds runs through the Christian defense

Santa Fe Christian Wanted It Bad in Win Over Christian

Posted October 25, 2009

At their weekly pasta dinner, heavyweight boxing champion Chris Byrd challenged Santa Fe Christian's football team. Byrd shared his life motto, "How bad do you want it?" with the Eagles, which Santa Fe Christian head coach Nick Ruscetta used as motivation before their game against Christian on Saturday afternoon.

"I asked the boys, 'How bad do you want it?"" Ruscetta said. "We're Christian's sister school; we've lost to them two years in a row."

Under the sun in Solana Beach, the Eagles' desire was not a question. Santa Fe Christian shut out Christian for the first three quarters and went on to win 33-13 to remain undefeated.

"They're a great team," Ruscetta said, "but as far as heart goes, I'd take our kids over anybody."

Santa Fe Christian (7-0, 1-0 Coastal) was ahead 13-0 at halftime and extended their lead to 20 late in the third quarter when running back Travis Berglund scored a two-vard touchdown. Forty-two seconds into the fourth quarter, the Eagles made it 26-0 on a 25-yard pass from quarterback Keaton Giannotti to running back Sam

Christian (5-3, 1-1) was able to get on the board in the fourth courtesy of a Tyrone Sauls 95-yard kickoff return and a Malcom Murphy rushing touchdown. But the Patriots could not get closer.

Game of the Week: Hoover at Mission Bay

Posted October 24, 2009 After ruining homecomings the past two weeks,

Mission Bay did not want to have theirs ruined by Hoover on Friday afternoon. The eighthranked Buccaneers overcame a slow start to beat the Cardinals 48-14.

"We've been looking forward to this," said Mission Bay quarterback Dillon Baxter. "This is our homecoming — for our seniors this is our last one. Everybody has been hyped up the whole week."

Baxter ran for a whopping 314 yards and five touchdowns on 19 carries. The homecoming king threw for two more touchdowns for Mission Bay (7-0, 2-0 Western).

Each team scored on their first two possessions of the game in a very even first half. Hoover quarterback Cheng Moua found receiver Byrese Taylor for a 25-yard touchdown to put the Cardinals ahead 14-13 midway through the second quarter, and a Baxter touchdown gave Mission Bay a 20-14 lead at the half.

"We're a second- and third-quarter team," said Mission Bay head coach Willie Matson. "We come out slow every dang game."

GYPSIES, SNACKS, AND "STEVE"

by Josh Board

collect vintage radios, phonographs, and jukeboxes, so I go to O.B.'s antique stores a few times a year. A few weeks ago, in the early afternoon, I went down to Newport Avenue for an anniversary event at Vignettes. I had been in the antique shop only a few times because they specialize in French

The place was packed with people walking around, looking at the deco pieces, brooches and charms, and everything French. I overheard one guy say to his wife, "The French liked their birdcages big, huh?"

I later heard him attempt some humor with lines about his wife buying French lingerie and something about French perfume bottles being so fancy, yet the French smell like bad B.O.

A friend I brought with me liked the framed maps. I liked the first-edition books.

I was embarrassed when I almost ran into a boy in a wheelchair. What happened was...they had cupcakes, brownies, and other pastries set out. And once I saw the sweets, I didn't see anything else in my path.

I apologized to the boy before snatching up some goodies and moving over to the guy serving French champagne.

Things got a little more crowded an hour later, when a "Baroque Gypsy Couture Trunk Show" took place. Models walked around with various pieces: jewelry boxes, musical instruments, parasols... If you want a parasol -

seriously — this is the shop for

I talked to owner Lori Chandler, who, between dealing with lots of customers, quickly said, "I've always had a passion for fashion, and this seemed the perfect time to combine the over-the-top vintage glamour and props."

A sign on the wall near the cash register read, "For French lessons and sending me to Paris merci beaucoup to Mary L. Chandler — my inspiration and extraordinary mother." I thought that was sweet. If I had a shop, I'm quessing I wouldn't have anything about my mom in there. I'd probably tell customers how my mom always complains about my shop when she comes in.

"Uh...she wouldn't happen to be here, would she?"

I overheard two women complaining about something and went over to eavesdrop. One was mad she didn't bring more money. The other was complaining about her friend's purchases. She said, "You have enough antiques in your house. You buy these French things every time you see 'em. Then it seems you're having a garage sale once a month. How about you stop buying stuff and then you can stop selling your stuff? It's a never-ending cycle with you."

The cycle for me seems to be leaving one event to quickly head off to another. And I did that, to hit an event that started early in the evening in Solana Beach.

The event was a second-annual art show held at city hall, the only party I've ever been to at a city hall building. I talked to Diane Welch, one of the people involved. She came up with the theme -"Spark." She told me the artwork would be on display here until late in November.

She showed me some art she did that included photographs of her sisters combined with flowers and other things surrounding it. She also talked about a book she's writing on local architect Lillian Rice, who designed some interesting buildings in San Diego and Rancho Santa Fe back in the '20s.

An artist named Carol Reth Rodriguez showed me some abstract paintings she did that were inspired by a trip she'd made to Japan. One was called Nightfall in Kaito. It was interesting to listen to her tell me how it was inspired by geishas going into a restaurant and how mysterious it was. I looked at the painting and couldn't make out a single geisha. But it was fascinating, nonetheless.

She told me her son is fluent in Japanese and was there in school when she went to visit.

When I asked the artists if nudes weren't allowed on the walls because it was city hall, Yanina Adler pointed out her Mother Earth painting. The Earth had breasts, although I'm guessing most children wouldn't even notice. The painting reminded me of a Yes album cover with a splash of Salvador Dalí.

I asked her if her house is filled with her art, and she said, "I have some of my pieces up. I also like to collect local artists. Sometimes I do a piece and my kids fall in love with it and don't want me to sell it."

An artist named Christie Beniston showed me a door she created that's hanging in the airport. It has lots of colors, and she explained it was a world time-zone clock. She had to have electricians put lights inside of it. I felt like an artist myself when I suggested a window that uses the different positions of the sun shining through. She seemed to like the idea, but who knows... Maybe she just acted as if she did, hoping I'd commission her to do one in the Reader offices.

Amber Irwin had my favorite pieces. They were mosaics that hung in the window by the main door. As she talked about making them, it seemed to me the hardest part would be properly hanging them from the ceilings.

When I walked to the end of a hallway, I saw paintings by Gregory Balogh. He told me he had a gallery on Cedros Avenue in Solana Beach, but because of the bad economy he had to close it.

He has a koi fish series and talked about how he started painting those. He said, "I love painting koi, but I don't want to be known as 'The Koi Guy.' "

I told him he could be known as "The Wild and Crazy Guy" because he looked just like Steve Martin. He laughed and said one guy who came into his gallery always said that and called him Steve every time he saw him.

I noticed he had a painting called The Necklace, which is a nude. I said, "Uh...she wouldn't happen to be here, would she?"

As he laughed, another woman looked at me as if I was an immature guy who doesn't appreciate fine art.

She might be right. As great as all these paintings were, I was more excited by the three different kinds of cookies and wines I saw on one table.

MISSION HILLS

"Hello, Zack. What's up?" "Uh, hi, uh, Fred?

It's me, Zack." "Yup." "My cat's got a gopher cornered over here. Can you come quick?

And bring your shovel!" "I'll be right there."

""Thanks, Buddy!"

Finally, a chance to avenge the damage. Fred's own backyard is a moonscape. Every other yard in the area is as cratered and pockmarked as Reynard Way.

"Ah, cher ami, together we have dispatched many a blackguard to the Ultimate Judge of Creation. Come, we must again do our sorrowful duty."

The shovel smashes down. It misses. The second blow is true, blasting greasy, grimy entrails out of the gopher's posterior. One moment, a living creature; the next, a tiny swatch of bloody hair.

"What a versatile instrument you are, mon ami! At once the means of execution and interment." Fred digs the hole, scrapes the little carcass into it. They disperse, one to Lynyrd Skynyrd and a few Coronitas, the other to Spongebob and shrieking grandchildren.

New Year's Day at the Laundromat

By Christina Lohn, January 23 New Year's Day was a rainy day. Most businesses were closed or had limited hours of operation. The laundromat in Mission Hills was no exception. They were open, but without an attendant on the premises. Two of our local homeless took their clothes off, threw detergent and trash all over the place, and urinated in the doorway to keep people out.

Homeless Man Struck Down

By Chris Raney, January 1 At approximately 8:30 pm on Tuesday, December 30, 2008, a pedestrian was struck by a red pickup truck near the intersection of Washington Place and Randolph Street. Witnesses to the accident said that the pedestrian was a homeless man who was lying down in the middle of Washington Place between Pioneer Park and the Mission Hills tennis courts. At the time of the accident, there was particularly low visibility due to heavy fog that had set in a few hours prior.

MISSION VALLEY Fire Code Scrambled?

By Randy Berkman, April 9 The City of San Diego requires a 100-footwide zone of flammable brush clearance between new buildings and existing brush.

So it was surprising to read a city-planning document (March 29, 2009, Cycle Review) that disclosed that the proposed Hampton Inn, at the base of Mission Valley's south slopes, is planning a brush-clearance zone of 61.6 feet wide.

In the mid-1980s drought, the valley's south hillsides ignited and burned over 15 homes in Normal Heights. The Hampton Inn proposes building up five stories to add 87 hotel rooms, south of existing Vagabond Hotel buildings and west of Highway 163.

Y Us?

By Randy Berkman, May 22 At least six residents of the Presidio Place condos in west Mission Valley have had enough with the noise from the adjacent YMCA just south of Friars Road. So they have sued the YMCA.

Ms. Whitley sums up their complaints:

"Parking lot noise 24/7 with no security, car alarms going off, and people yelling at each other, car horns honking in impatience to get a spot, loud, window-shaking music in cars pulling into and out of the east lot. It can be 3 a.m. when some people get back to their cars after a night of partying and their loud departures wake us. Police are called but [they arrive] too late to get to the offenders.

"People have urinated on the side of the Y offices so they don't have to go inside to do it during soccer games. They change clothes in the parking lot like it is a locker room. Soccerfield noise is at unreasonable levels for a normal person's sensitivity. Shouts, whistles, screeching, hollering, cheering, and disturbing noises — especially Sunday mornings starting about 7 a.m."

Playoff Fever

By Chris Raney, January 3 On the afternoon of January 2, it was apparent that NFL playoff fever had taken hold. Chargers fans gathered inside and outside of Seau's at the Westfield Shopping Centre. Fans waited to get their hands on free Chargers swag. The lengthiest line was for the XTRA Sports 1360AM booth because that's where the Chargers cheerleaders were signing their latest swimsuit calendar.

Round Trip

By skipcarufel, July 19 I wake up in my Mission Valley apartment and something seems wrong. The marine layer is inches above my head. The coffee is bitter and the newspaper is stupid. The refrigerator goes on-off, on-off. And the bathroom faucet drips.

I got to get away. I don't want to leave permanently. I just need a roundtrip.

I grab a bottle of water, my ID, some cash and a magazine, and walk ten minutes to the Fashion Valley Transit Center. A local wizard in a blue robe and a black witch hat steps repeatedly on and off the curb, talking to himself. He stops and watches me

"Spare a little change?"

"Don't bother me," I snap back.

Pain from Endometriosis?

A 16-week clinical research study is underway to evaluate a non-hormonal, injectable, investigational medication versus placebo for the relief of pelvic pain caused by Endometriosis. Have you tried a variety of hormonal medications without success over the years of dealing with Endometriosis cramps and pain? This study is for women who have a surgically confirmed diagnosis in the last 8 years.

To possibly qualify for the study, must be:

- 18-49 year old females, regularly having
- Surgical confirmation of Endometriosis in the last 8 years (operative report must be available)
- Moderate to severe period cramps and pelvic pain

Qualified participants may receive:

- Exam and consultation with a board-certified gynecologist
- All study–related labs, EKG, and study medication
- Compensation for your time and travel

Do you want to quit smoking?

Quitting smoking is one of the most important things you will ever do because:

- · You are likely to live longer
- · Quitting smoking will lower your chance of having a heart attack, stroke, or cancer
- · The people you live with, especially your children, will be healthier
- · You will have extra money to spend on things other than cigarettes

Affiliated Research Institute is conducting a clinical trial on an investigational vaccine that may help participants quit smoking and maintain smoking cessation. To qualify for this research study, you must be between the ages of 18 and 65 years and smoke an average of 10 cigarettes per day. If you qualify for participation, all research medication and study-related care will be provided at no cost to you. You will receive smoking cessation counseling to help you succeed in your effort to stop smoking.

Is your current Schizophrenia medicine treating all your symptoms?

If you are still having trouble with expressing emotions, social interactions, finding motivation to complete tasks, or have a reduced interest in family and friends, consider this research study of an investigational medication that is taken with your current antipsychotic.

In recent years, schizophrenia treatments have improved significantly, however, to date, they've shown success in reducing some symptoms more than others. A study is being conducted to evaluate the effectiveness of an investigational medication for its ability to help reduce negative symptoms of schizophrenia, such as a loss or decrease in ability to express emotion or enjoy pleasures in everyday life.

To prequalify for this study, you must: • Be 18 to 55 years of age • Have been diagnosed with schizophrenia for at least two years • Have negative symptoms of schizophrenia • Have been on a stable dose of antipsychotic medication for at least 12 weeks • Not have notable positive symptoms (delusions, unusual thoughts or perceptions) of schizophrenia, AND • Have no history of psychiatric crises, visits to the emergency room, hospitalization, or increased level of care for at least 12 weeks.

Qualified participants will receive study-related medical evaluations and study medication at no cost. In addition, reimbursement for time and travel may also be provided

MOUNT HOPE Trolley Makes Emergency Stop in Cemetery

By Leonard Fry, February 8 A San Diego Trolley was forced to make an emer-

Since the distance between these stations is longer than average, trolleys often increase speed along this area to keep on schedule.

A city maintenance vehicle had failed to stop at a trolley crossing within the cemetery, breaking off the wooden arm on the warning device at the crossing. The trolley operator was forced to make a sudden emergency stop to avoid hitting the broken arm. After exiting the trolley to move the arm from the tracks, he received applause from passengers.

A Mountain Lion Alert

By doweofsteve, March 13 The other day I saw a mountain lion. Though it was far away, I was able to catch its eye. There was a moment of terror, and then it walked out of sight. It didn't run. I wanted to run but felt paralyzed. When I started to hear myself breathe again, I jogged back to civilization where I felt in my place. I felt pathetic.

This cougar sighting didn't happen yesterday. It was two years ago. And it wasn't that close to me, though I was able to see its eyes. I'm

Cat Killer on the Loose

By Edmundo Dela, July 16

About a month ago, I was driving my school-bus route when I saw what I thought was a dead kitten on Cosmo Street. As I got closer, I realized it was an adult cat...chopped in half, just below the shoulder blades.

On July 8, I came across another severed cat portion, this time on 30th Street near Kalmia. Same portion, same condition.

Comments

1. Whoever does this when I'm in the area of these killings, let this be a warning: if you do anything to any of my pets, may the state intervene before I get my revenge!!! By crossingtracksgallery, Jul 16

2. This reminds me of when I was in middle school back in 2001, 7th grade. There was a spot in the field where we used to run our Friday's mile. Every day, a new dead cat was scatted around. Some of the guts were tied up into a bow and a pair of legs were sticking out of the ground. I remember one time there was one of those devil stars drawn on the dirt with of course cat's parts around it. By XxUrDaddyxX, Jul 16

3. That was my neighborhood just before I moved away. Cats were disappearing all over the place. People kept saying it was a coyote, but I knew someone was taking these cats and hurting them. Damn you to hell.

North Park Skaters

By pmrocks99, April 30 NPS — North Park Skaters...or switch out the S for anything you choose...stoners, scrubs, slackers...etc. I grew up in North Park and now I am about to go back to North Park as I am in escrow on a condo in my beloved San Diego community. When I moved from Mission Hills to North Park in 1985 at the age of 7, all I heard was comments under the breath and nay-sayers from our neighbors and my parents' friends.

I found the NPS kids when I was about 12 years old. My friend's boyfriend was a North Park Skater and that was all it took to meet all of them. The girls would all go watch the guys skate in the parking lot at the Bank of America on 31st and University. Another favorite skating spot was on the steps of the Baptist church located at Bancroft and North Park Way.

Conscientious Dumpster Diver

By tcjohnston, February 14

I lived in west North Park in an apartment right on University Avenue for eight years, starting in 1989. We always put our recyclables out next to the dumpster, and they were always gone by the next morning.

Now I live in east North Park. Every two weeks we put out the blue bin for recyclables for the city to pick up. Homeless people often roam the street clearing out the bins. I'd go out at about 6:00–7:00 a.m. and holler, "Don't make a mess!"

Last couple months, there's only one guy working our street. He wears an orange apron and manages to push a shopping cart with, like, 12 lawn bags of recyclables about. Looks like a massive black Jiffy Pop — like 8' wide and 7' high. I asked him where he goes to recycle. It's east two to three miles away. This week he said he was not going up the substantial hill on Swift Street because the load is too heavy, so he had to go around northwest (Landis) then east down University.

I asked his name:

It's Ninwood. He said that's what his mom called him.

No More Eyesore in O.B.

By Steve Perez, June 22 On a recent overcast Saturday morning, an ad hoc group of volunteers scrambled over the slippery rocks, hauling in power generators, air compressors, and painting supplies, and hauling out bags of trash. Organized online via OBRag.org and socialnetworking sites, the volunteers from O.B. and surrounding communities joined to take a first pass at sprucing

Cliff Hanger

By Casey Bollier, April 30 At approximately 12:30 p.m. on April 21, a middle-aged woman fell down a cliff above the beach at the end of Santa Cruz Avenue. An ambulance was called, and within minutes police cars, fire engines, and lifeguard vehicles were on the scene. From the fenced end of the street, the woman tumbled 30 feet, onto a concrete path above the beach. While her injuries appeared to be non-fatal, she was uncooperative with emergency personnel.

OTAY MESA That Dog Will Manhunt

By Frank Marrazza, March 19

On March 17 at 4:05 p.m., an SDPD helicopter circled the neighborhood at I-5 and Tocayo Avenue. Police announced over their P.A. system that they were in pursuit of a suspect described as a black male, 5'10" tall, 140 lbs., wearing black shorts and a white shirt.

At 5:09 p.m., the Border Patrol, San Diego cruiser units, and officers following on foot converged at International Road and Dalisay Street. At 5:11 p.m., at the intersection of Deep Haven Lane and Pikake Street, a resident yelled, "There he goes — he's jumping the fences."

At 5:25 p.m. the suspect was apprehended on the 2600 block of Wardlow.

My grandfather came running to see why we were crying, and he slapped my hand, because he thought I had hurt [my brother] because he was crying. "What happened?!" cried my grandfather as I looked up. I lightly touched the spot on my head that hurt, then looked at my blood-covered hand. He turned around and started spanking [my brother]. PACIFIC BEACH P.B. Underground

By jcamp.b.ell, April 24 Everyone, even my friend from Ohio, knows that P.B. is full of douchebags. So when I said I was going to move to the beach, I didn't have a lot of support from my homies.

There wasn't a lot of overt protest though either, come to think of it. Maybe that's because I was living in Mira Mesa at the time and starting to dissolve into that neighborhood's monochromatic sprawl. The bulk of my friends, the too-cool-O.B. kids, the way-too-cool-North Park kids, mostly just said, "Oh, P.B. huh?"

For the first few

By Mark Jay, May 25 On Friday, May 22, according to county sheriffs' radio traffic at about 11:50 a.m., the sheriff's department received a call on a bank robbery in progress at the Citibank located at 13408 Poway Road.

The bank teller was given a demand note by a male who wore all black and a golf hat. The teller then handed $2000 to the thief, who then fled the bank to a waiting, new, black Jaguar sedan occupied by a female passenger.

At about 12:15 p.m., sheriff's deputies located the suspect vehicle traveling southbound on SR-67 from Poway Road. The deputies were unsuccessful at pulling the vehicle over and pursued southbound on the 67 toward Lakeside.

Abundance of Caution

By Peijean Tsai, May 7 A bomb scare caused the shutdown of the Poway Skate Park and library on Saturday, May 2.

The county sheriff's office forced dozens to evacuate the library and cordoned off the area just after 4 p.m. The sheriff's bomb-arson unit was called in to investigate a bag filled with what was described as sticks of dynamite by a man who found it in a dumpster at a nearby apartment complex. The supposed threat turned out to be fireworks.

Oleanders are Dying in San Diego

By Ron Hamilton, Thursday, February 5 A bacterium commonly identified with grape vines (Xylella fastidiosa) is the suspected cause of "oleander leaf scorch," which is resulting in the slow deaths of thousands of oleanders in San Diego County.

Big Fly in the Sky By Cindy Winslow, April 30

A low-flying helicopter hovered over Sabre Springs on the morning of April 29. Its mission was to kill mosquito larvae in three areas of standing water near the intersection of Poway Road and Sabre Springs Parkway.

The helicopter, commissioned by San Diego County Vector Control, dropped larvicide on the mosquito-breeding sites at about 9:00 a.m. The County hopes the aerial application will help keep the mosquito population in check and reduce the possibility of the spread of West Nile virus during warmer months.

RAMONA

Message in the Sky

By quillpena, May 18
When I was 16 we lived in Ramona on Hanson Lane a few miles away from our community's small downtown. In the countryside surrounding our town, the houses are spaced remotely from one another, usually by fields that hold cattle or horses.

One evening my friend Mike had come over to visit. My mother and my younger brother, Jason, were home. Mike and I were sitting at the diningroom table talking, while my mother was in the kitchen a few feet away preparing dinner.

The sun had set, but there was a faint, distant orange light illuminating from behind Mount Woodson and Iron Mountain to the west. Jason was pouring a glass of milk at the counter and Mike and I had our backs to the window as my mother placed the ketchupglazed meatloaf in the oven and then turned to face us. She crouched down as she approached the table. "Oh, my God," she croaked. "It's a UFO."

RANCHO BERNARDO Unhappy Mother's Day By thestoryteller, May 9

May 10 must be the year's hardest day for Maryanne. In 1997, her son, Andrew Cunanan, went on a killing spree that ended with the death of fashion designer Gianni Versace, outside his mansion in Florida. In a final act of hatred, Andrew snuck aboard a houseboat and turned the gun on himself. A police photo of Maryanne's dead son is posted online. I hope she never sees it.

This is how it was around the Cunanan house, even before his dad abandoned them. Once his parents discovered that Andrew had an IQ of 147, all of the privileges were reserved for him. Andrew was the only child [in the family] sent to the prestigious Bishop's school in La Jolla. He occupied the master bedroom of the house; everyone else, including his parents, crammed into the other bedrooms.

I met Andrew two years before he plunged downhill. His black hair was neatly trimmed. His tanned face was symmetrical and had dark, laughing eyes. He was a manager at Thrifty Jr. across the street from the apartment he shared with his mother. My mom and I went to the store to get Band-Aids for my heel that was rubbing on my shoe.

"Hey, Andrew!" my mom said. "This is my other daughter." He stood up from his task of stocking a bottom shelf and turned a bright smile on me. "Hi!" Just then, an attractive man Andrew's age caught his eye. "He's pretty!" he said, making no secret of the fact he was gay.

The last time I saw Maryanne, she was covered up in an old coat and sunglasses, with a scarf tied under her chin. It was a hearty spring day, no need for a coat, and she dipped a hankie and washed her hands in a fountain at the Mercado.

According to Wikipedia, Andrew Cunanan was the 449th

RANCHO PENASOUITOS Mad World By John Mann, May 19

Four thousand people made their way into the Mt. Carmel High School stadium to hear American Idol contestant Adam Lambert sing on Friday, May 8. A return to one's high school is a requirement of each contestant who has knocked out all but two competitors.

All students at Mt. Carmel High and Black Mountain Middle School were invited. The schools granted students time away from their classes to attend; this meant an hour to an hour and a half of education lost by the Mt. Carmel students and two and a half to three hours lost by the Black Mountain students. Teachers at both schools were required to go, to act as monitors. Mt. Carmel's advanced placement students, scheduled to take exams, had to be bused off-campus, to Westview High School.

Lambert rode into the stadium in a red convertible, mounted the stage, and sang two songs. The first, Michael Jackson's "Black or White," mucked its way through a poor sound system. The second, Tears for Fears' "Mad World," came through clearly and gave a hint of Lambert's talent.

On January 21, at 10:00 a.m., upon hearing loud knocking at her front door, a Torrey Highlands resident looked through the peephole and saw a man. She assumed the person might be a solicitor and decided not to answer the door. Moments later, the woman spotted the would-be burglar on the side of her home, attempting to break in. She confronted the man, snapping photos of him with her camera. He ran past her, dropping a chisel in the process, and quickly fled to a waiting vehicle with another man in it. Undaunted, the resident stood by the side of the street and continued to take photographs of the suspect. At this point, of the car and confronted the resident, grabbing her camera and knocking her to the ground.

Comments

1. About three years ago, I was at home (Miramar Ranch North) at about 9:30 in the morning when there was a knock at my door. From upstairs, I watched a young Asian man walk across my driveway and over to the side of my house and I knew what he was about to do. An unfamiliar SUV was parked out front. I ran downstairs; out my back door; around the side of the house and repeated "excuse me" as I walked toward him. He stood there frozen with a crowbar in his hand. I asked him "What are you doing?" twice. He never responded and wouldn't look up. Because I grew up in a "Barrio" in Los Angeles, I was not afraid to confront him (I am 58, 4'11", 160 lbs., and female), but I knew not to antagonize him, disrespect him, or threaten him. He jumped the gate and ran over to the car waiting out front. By reddragonfly, Feb 12

bors out of their houses. A young man in a late-model Jeep Wrangler had swerved off Highway 94 west and — taking a steel light pole with him — went down the embankment and onto Buena Vista Drive.

The accident occurred just west of the Sweetwater Springs on-ramp, where it merges with the 94. The driver had collided with at least one other car while attempting to merge with westbound traffic. The front of the car was smashed, but it had not overturned.

Fury Lane Incident

By Steve Terry, April 23 At 5:24 p.m. on Tuesday, April 21, the plaintive cries of a man could be heard in the parking lot of the shopping center at the corner of Jamacha Road and Fury Lane in Rancho San Diego.

"I didn't do anything! I didn't do anything! That hurts my back! My back is hurting!" Two sheriff's deputies had subdued a shirtless man, possibly in his 20s, and had him handcuffed face-down on the asphalt. One deputy was crouched down with both knees pressing gently on the man, who was agitated and uncooperative.

Within a minute or two they helped the now-handcuffed prisoner to his feet and put him in the back of one of the two patrol cars parked nearby. A deputy then motioned toward the front of the nearby Ralphs grocery store and beckoned a woman,

Swallows Roost in Rancho

By Steve Terry, March 26 They say the swallows return to San Juan Capistrano on the 19th of March. Rancho San Diego boasts its own colony of the same bird, the cliff swallow. After a long flight from as far south as Argentina, they recently arrived.

According to Mark, a resident of the Tristán condominium complex at the corner of Fury Lane and Via Rancho San Diego, the first swallows appeared on Friday, March 20.

Because of the mess that nesting birds tend to make below their mud nests, Tristán residents are encouraged to interfere with nest construction by hosing off any mud deposited by the birds. This is legal, but once the nests are completed, state and federal laws protect them until the season is over, usually by September.

Secret Stash Revealed

By Sylvia Knust, March 20 East County's Damon Lane Park is 26 acres of scenic and varied landscape. The secretly stashed park recently received an overhaul, according to County of San Diego Parks and

Last year, a bottle rocket ignited a twoand-a-half-acre brush fire in the center of the park. In the surrounding park area, vegetation has been thick. Of particular concern are the ladder fuels — those dead branches that can carry fire from the ground up into the canopy, upon which fire growth potential explodes.

"We've been removing the dead wood, the dead fuel, and cleaning it up. We've been removing some of the nonnative species as well, like arundo and tamarisk."

Nest in Peace

By Steve Terry, March 11 Workers have been cutting down trees and clearing brush from a narrow zone between the Sweetwater River and Jamacha Road in Rancho San Diego. They began near the intersection of Jamacha and Cuyamaca College Drive East a couple of weeks ago. By Friday, March 6, they had reached the corner of Jamacha Road and Willow Glen Drive, behind North Island Credit Union and the new Savannah Grill restaurant.

According to a worker on the scene, only nonnative trees (giant reed, tamarisk, and palm) are being removed. The vegetation removal is part of a project by the National Wildlife Refuge to improve and expand habitat for the least Bell's vireo, a bird listed as endangered.

The purpose of the meeting was to publicize the financial plight of Casey's Place, a privately owned, not-forprofit community center located near the corner of Navajo Road and Jackson Drive. The meeting was attended by over 100 people, including San Diego city councilmember Marti Emerald.

The center, a community fixture since 2000, is four months behind on rent, which costs $10,000 per month. The difference has been made up by donations, often from Kinslow and his wife

Rudolf Makes an Appearance Along Mission Gorge Road

By gjensen, July 23 "What's up with the red noses?" That's a question I often ask myself while driving the section of Mission Gorge Road between Jackson Drive and West Hills Parkway, the part that runs adjacent to Mission Trials Regional Park. I count four deer crossing signs, two on the north side and two on the south side of Mission Gorge Road. Each sign depicts a leaping deer with a large red dot, à la Rudolf, painted on the tip of their noses. I talk to Cal Trans PR man Ed Cartagena, who reports that the crimson snouts are not the work of Cal Trans. Then, Ed volunteers this: "Cal Trans workers in Northern California report seeing wild boar crossing signs with red dots painted on the snouts."

Memorial Day in Santee

By wannabe, May 26 It's Memorial Day and there's been a heavy vibe everywhere I went today, and I know it's these wars. I have been worried about this guy I know who is a Vietnam vet. People around town usually ignore the guy because he smokes rolled cigarettes and swings his arms with hubris when telling a story. He's told me about being curled up like a baby under a cot in Vietnam, scared of the sound of distant mortar fire when a Marine told him to "get out from under there; that fire's miles away."

SCRIPPS RANCH "Rapist! Murderer! Child Molester!"

By lgoldfarb, March 18 These were the words screamed at my husband as he helped out a neighbor, Lynette, by hand-watering her front yard. This happened almost every time he spent a few minutes with our neighbor's garden hose. The screamer was Maria, a pleasant, educated, friendly woman when she moved with her husband and young son into a nice house at the end of our Scripps Ranch street. Something happened to Maria's brain, and our neighborhood has never been the same.

One time, while walking with my young grandson around the block, Maria came outside as we passed her house. She shouted at me, "You prostitute. You Jewish whore. Hitler should have left you dead!" Stunned, with a frightened grandchild, I tried to explain to him about mental illness and its effects. Later I asked Lynette's husband, "How could Maria know I'm Jewish?" He replied, "She doesn't. It's one of her insults. She calls everyone a Jew."

Who Cares? By dojomo444, June 30

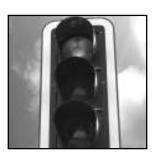

A couple of weeks back, my wife and I go to one of the local concerts here in Hoyt Park. People set up their blankets and chairs (sometimes even the night before) to stake their spots. I sat, cuddling with my wife, and enjoyed the last couple songs of the night. At one point I exclaimed, "These guys are f@#$#@ good!" The woman in front of me turned and glared over her shoulder like I had scooped up a litter of kittens and tossed them into a spinning blender! I leaned forward and apologized to her.

SERRA MESA New Stoplight Going Up

By johninsd, February 19 What I believe to be the only freeway interchange in San Diego without stoplights is about to lose that distinction. Crews have been busy for the last several weeks pouring new concrete and installing new poles for the signals at I-805 and Phyllis Place in Serra Mesa. This is apparently part of the so-called "traffic mitigation" scheme the city required from developers of new condo projects in Mission Valley. I guess the idea is to use Serra Mesa as a relief valve for the absurd levels of traffic the new developments will bring to MV.

SOLANA BEACH Train Travel Shake-Up By Steve Horvath, June 24

An earthquake occurred at 6 p.m. Friday evening, June 19, off the coast of Southern California. The USGS website reported the quake as 4.1 magnitude. Train officials were concerned about possible bluff failures along the train tracks in Del Mar. A train dispatcher of the Metrolink San Diego subdivision directed Coaster train number 661 and Amtrak train number 582 to proceed at restricted speed through the bluff area. Amtrak train 582 incurred a delay of 27 minutes into San Diego.

Dug in Deep

By Mark Jay, June 4 According to police radio traffic on Saturday, May 30, at about 2:00 p.m., a man was seen smashing a car window with a shovel in the parking lot of the Vons shopping center on Lomas Santa Fe Drive.

According to witnesses, the perpetrator reached into the car and removed what looked like a rifle, then fled the scene in a red SUV.

Amtrak Management Train Wreck

By William Harper,

The day before Easter,
Saturday, April 11, the Solana Beach train station was crowded with people awaiting the northbound Amtrak
Pacific Surfliner No. 769.
Baseball fans, most of them wearing BoSox Tshirts, were headed for Anaheim to see the Angels vs. Red Sox game. Other train-ticket holders were seemingly there to entrain for Orange and Los Angeles County holiday gatherings.

The train appeared down the line at 10:02, two minutes ahead of schedule. When it stopped and the doors opened, the conductor appeared on the platform and announced that only those with connections to flights from LAX and passengers headed for parts north of Los Angeles would be

SOUTH PARK

SPRING VALLEY Mystery Tower

By Steve Terry, April 6 Last week in a Spring Valley business park, a tower nearly 100 feet tall sprang up seemingly overnight. It was not there on Monday, March 30, but the thin skeletal structure was noticed on Tuesday morning. It dominated the sky in the center of the block bordered by Sweetwater Springs Boulevard, Austin Drive, Calavo Drive, and Jamacha Boulevard, near the main Spring Valley post office.

At about 2:35 p.m. on Tuesday, I approached three men, dressed as though they might be engineers, who were standing in the parking lot outside NSM Surveillance on Via Orange Way. When I asked them what the tower was for, one of them responded with the joke, "We can't tell you. We'd have to kill you."

Slasher Apprehended

By Mark Jay, March 19 According to a policeradio scanner, at 3:00 p.m. on Wednesday, March 18, a 15-year-old male was stabbed on Central Avenue and Troy Street. Sheriff's deputies arrived and found the victim sitting on the sidewalk. Deputies set up a perimeter and ordered nearby schools into lockdown mode.

The victim stated he was walking down the street when he was approached by two individuals and was stabbed by one of them. According to deputies, both suspects were Hispanic males with shaved heads in their late 20s.

Witnesses directed

police to the suspects, who were at nearby Lamar County Park. When police approached, the suspects ran through the park and jumped over backyard fences to try and get away.

Youth Can Be Exciting

By cori_zaragoza, May 31 It was last Friday, my best friend Paulina, my cousin Cassi, and I were cruising around town in her little gold car that makes a funny noise when you turn it off. After getting some grub at our local T.G.I. Friday's, we sat in the parking lot of Target for a while, wondering what to do.... We drove around for a while longer, with Paulina leading us down more dirt roads and telling us scary stories. We went online to find more scary places in San Diego to explore. Other than the Whaley House, we couldn't really find any places other than a rumor that there is an

somewhere in Spring

By Siobhan, May 19 We moved to Tierrasanta from the heart of El Cajon.

My kids think Tier-

rasanta is peaceful. They don't mean peaceful in a good way. "It's so quiet here!" they grumble.

People are always running or riding bicycles. They walk their tiny suburban dogs on designer leashes and actually pick up the poop. In El Cajon our townhome drama was over whose kid started the lice epidemic. In Tierrasanta the moms gossip over which parents allow their children to have high-fructose corn syrup.

People around here take their homeowners' association very seriously. Members walk around town with shiny clipboards and issue citations if your paint is chipping or if you have noticeable clutter around your home.

Tierrasanta, Tierrasanta

By Islandman, May 22 Boy, it's quiet here in Tierrasanta! I first moved here back in '97. You have Mission Trails as your backyard and the rattlesnakes as your pets. It doesn't get better than that. I'm always trail-running here in my backyard, and running in them I almost got bit the other day; the snake was curled up and ready to strike.

UCSD Dinky Break By Nathaniel Uy, July 19

UC San Diego chancellor Marye Anne Fox announced on July 15 a temporary reduction in parking fees for faculty, staff, and students. Starting August 1, 2009, annual parking fees will be reduced by 5 percent. The reduction will be effective through June 30, 2010. Meter, monthly, and visitor parking fees are expected to remain the same.

we're disappearing into the deserted, dark streets where the cars rush by without stopping...

Here at the Starbucks or the Peets or the Coffee Bean — all of which are within a mile of our faux-Italianate beige cube, with its burbling fountains and stands of bamboo whispering and creaking in the Southern California breeze — there are too many blonde girls with too much tanned skin under tank tops and tight denim tucked into last year's Ugg boots.

Getting Wet

By skipcarufe, March 30 When I closed my front door, crows hopped from the treetops and flapped eastward, most likely going to peck garbage at the Miramar Landfill.

My walk skirted the Marine Corps Air Station, passed the water treatment plant (I held my nose), and came to an overpass where the cars below looked like migrating salmon. Farther, among the smog shops and truck rentals, tile outlets and tire shops, were weeds and shallow puddles left over from yesterday's rain. A sign on the chain-link fence read "Habitat Restoration. Vernal Pools."

I walked to the green Pontiac station wagon. The quickest route was through Rose Canyon, following the train tracks to Regents Road. I straddled a guardrail and descended through bushes and weeds to the floor of the canyon. The air was cooler than at street level and smelled like wet wood. I passed the decomposing carcass of a coyote, its pelt dried and torn, white ribs exposed, obviously there for weeks, no doubt the victim of a train.

expense, small art schools cum galleries, a Buddhist temple and reading room, independent designerclothing stores, a few bars, banks, and kitschy boutiques. Yuppies, artists, misfits, iconoclasts, homosexuals, hipsters, students, the odd "bro," and individuals of all stripes, colors, creeds, and beliefs live in this small urban area. Odd ideas, odd art, odd clothing styles, and odd people are the norm, and people in the neighborhood have grown accustomed to an outlandish comment, amateurish song, pungent odor, sudden exclamation, or tirade issuing forth from the café's fenestrae as they pass by.

Uh...Porch Studies

By janetgoes, February 28
A recent conversation
evolved into pondering
the words uh, uh-uh,
and uh-huh. We consulted the dictionary.
Uh, the sound the voice
makes while the brain is busy transforming ideas into words, is also an acronym for University Heights.

UH holds many simple urban pleasures. It's pedestrian and bicycle friendly. There's all types of gardens; some thriving and content, carefully tended by humans. Others, having survived neglect, drought, and apathetic tenants, serve as a reference for abusetolerant plants. There's the multitude of textures in xeriscaping and an array of decorative tikis, trolls, and insects. There's esoteric dead-end canyon streets with intimate neighborhood auras. Endearing architecture of original homes, my favorites being quaint Spanish interior court-yards and Craftsmanstyle bungalows with big front porches.

The Grass is Always Greener (MUCH greener in this case)

By jeffblankman, June 30 Don't get me wrong, there are some wonderful cafés here in San Diego. Mystic Mocha in University Heights comes readily to mind. They make fresh-baked muffins, mesa-esque pancakes, and chilaquiles heralded by Gabriel himself. The coffee is not bad: in fact, it's as good as or better than anywhere else I've found in San Diego: it's just not what I now know as "Seattle coffee."

We do have some great neighborhoods, and some that are very similar to the feel of Seattle. I think if Balboa Park were removed and the Gaslamp District, Petco area, Little Italy, Morena, Hillcrest, Mission Hills, North Park, University Heights, Normal Heights, Kensington, South Park, and Golden Hill, and some wet, green forest were all sucked in toward the center and piled on top of one another, it would rival the density and feel of Seattle.

The Adams Avenue Simulator

By TheUrbanWitch, January 22 Yesterday, about 5:30 two cyclists enjoying a side-by-side conversation, a dog break free of its owner, and someone back their body into traffic to balance a cup of coffee on the roof of their car while digging for keys with a cell phone scrunched between their head and neck.

Yuppies, artists, misfits, iconoclasts, homosexuals, hipsters, students...

p.m. I was driving up Adams Avenue. It was getting dark.

In the stretch of two short blocks, no less than three people walked in front of my moving vehicle. By the time I got to my destination, I had watched

VALLEY CENTER SDG&E Serves Up a Shut Off

By oakgirl, July 18 Today's menu special was served up by SDG&E. A taste of SHUT OFF. Originally this was called "deenergization," but everyone stumbled over the pronunciation. So now anyone can simply holler "Shut Off" in the back county and we will all know what's coming down the road — fire prevention by shut-off. Today's special was an eight-hour shut-down of the electric power.

Yikes! Almost the hottest day of the year, and it certainly is dry — dry eyes, dry vegetation, and hot. The only criteria missing is the wind. It will come. There's already been spot fires at Guejito, Palomar Mountain's east grade, and Ramona. But none caused by SDG&E's downed power lines. I can hardly wait, a taste of the future! We packed the car with some bottled water and left about 10:30 a.m., after the power had been off for a couple of hours. There were five SDG&E trucks across the road, and the repair in question appears to be replacing a wooden utility pole with, wait, could it be? Yes, another wooden utility pole.

VISTA At Home At Vista Ranch

By LaPlacaRifa48619, June 19

The part of Vista I call home is a former motel called Vista Ranch. Located on Escondido Avenue, this 1950s-era motor lodge offers a nice place for a single fellow to come home to. A small laundry, a basketball court surrounded by grass, plenty of parking, and decent rent make Vista Ranch worth having to "hang-a-ueee" on Escondido Avenue to get to.

Escondido Avenue runs from Highway 78 to the south, to Eucalyptus Avenue to the north. Across the street from my place is a Vons Grocery, a Yum-Yum Doughnut Shop, a fabric store, a Trendy Indoor Bazaar, and various other shops. The NCTD Breeze's 334/335 route services it on weekdays, while the 302 can be caught on South Santa Fe Avenue. The Sprinter can be accessed at the Escondido Avenue station, which is a 12minute walk uphill for

During the day, the neighborhood is busy. Transients make South Santa Fe Avenue a rest stop, and the Vons lot is a gathering place for undocumented workers.

There have been two murders (in the Vons lot across the way) since I moved in on February 28, 2008.

Just One of the Gang

By paula, April 28 Me, my son Aaron, and daughter Morgan live in a busy yet cozy old neighborhood in Vista. Our house, the big yellow one on the corner, with a big yard and trees, has become a routine stop for neighborhood dog-walkers and their dogs. The other evening, as we sat outside, a group of five neighbors and their dogs came up the road. There was a new dog in the group, one that was hard to tell what breed it was. As the dogs got closer, this unusual dog with a long curly tail came running up to our yard. At first we thought this unusuallooking dog may have been just an overweight wiener dog. This dog wasn't a dog, it was a pet pig!

Going Native

By SuT, February 28 The other day I saw a horned toad under one of the sage bushes in our yard. It was about four inches long. It looked like a fat lizard with a stubby tail, its body covered with short spiky horns.

When our family first moved to San Diego County in 1958 the land was much different than it is now. California scrub oak spotted the hillsides, their smallish curled leaves adapted to the semi-arid climate. Rust-colored buckwheat matched the parched earth, its tiny white flowers adorning the very tip ends of its prickly stalks. Graygreen sage was referred to as "brush."

Gather No Moss

Agra, India By Derek Ray

The Taj Mahal is often regarded as the most beautiful building in the world. So, of course I watched in horror as my digital camera slipped from my grasp and fell to the hard pavement while I was waiting in line to get in. I picked it up quickly, inspecting it for signs of damage. It appeared okay, thank goodness.

A 12-year-old boy who had approached me earlier while I was walking to my hotel advised me to take advantage of the complimentary shoe covers — the marble is slippery, and shoes are not allowed without covers in or near the mosque.

It was early in the morning and the Taj was bathed in mist, adding to its allure. As the mist burned off, I took pictures of the beautiful marble structure from various angles. It looked completely fresh and different to me in a variety of shades of light. When the sunlight emerged, the magnificence of the Taj was clearest. There was a sense of unreality about being there that I had never experienced before — not when I saw the Grand Canyon or the White House or other iconic places I'd also long

I hired a boatman to take me across the Yamuna River while I took shots of the Taj with its reflection on the river. On the other side of the river, I experienced my first camel ride. How many visitors view the Taj from the back of a camel?

Forestiere Underground Gardens, Fresno

By Jan Austin

If I'd been living in Fresno in the early 1900s, I'd have visited Baldasare Forestiere often, especially in August. To beat the scorching heat, this 20 degrees cooler.

On a guided tour, you can follow the pathways that meander through his subterranean home. His network of rooms, patios, courtyards, and niches have skylights made by cutting circular holes for light, ventilation, and rainwater for his plants. A bath alcove is chiseled out of bedrock. A kitchen and two bedrooms are nearby.

Forestiere arrived in the United States in 1901 at the age of 22. During the following 38 years, working alone with a pick, shovel, and wheelbarrow, the 5'4" man who never learned to read or write created this 10,000-square-foot underground abode.

The dwelling lies 20 feet below the surface of the earth at 5021 West Shaw Avenue. Tour prices: adults $12, teens $8, children $7. Days and times can change, so call 559-271-0734 to confirm, or visit their website: undergroundgardens.com.

Tokyo, Japan

By Dominic DeGrazier

Tokyo is one of the three world finance "command centers" alongside New York and London. But, unlike the others, Tokyo has a serene feeling of safety along with pristine cleanliness.

With the world's most extensive urban railway network in an area about six times the size of Manhattan, there are an intimidating amount of things to do and see in Tokyo.Stroll around Ginza at night to take in the mayhem of lights. Jolt yourself at 4 a.m. with bells and yelling at the world's largest wholesale fish market, Tsukiji. Saunter through the old entertainment district of Asakusa with its temples, but don't miss the modern playland of the Shinjuku area. Club and dance with other foreigners and locals at Roppongi's discos, pubs, and bars (if you're so inclined).

Other things to do: Go karaoke'ing in the Japanese private-room style. Hit up an onsen (bath house) to soak in an ancient ritual.

Prices: Tokyo is expensive. Taxi fares start at $8, and each additional 200 meters is about a dollar. Tall coffee at Starbucks: $3.75.

Where to stay: Shop around. With the convenient JR Line, location is not so important.

Daylight Saving Time Ends this Sunday morning, November 1, at 2am. With the resumption of standard time, midday (the time when the sun reaches its maximum altitude in the south part of the sky) will again be close to 12 noon on our clocks, rather than 1pm, as before.

San Diego's Latest Sunrise this vear occurs on Saturday, October 31, at 7:05am, owing to both the steady shortening of the daylight hours, but more importantly due to fact that Daylight Saving Time is in effect until the first Sunday in November. If standard time were observed year-round, then the latest possible sunrise in San Diego (6:52am PST) would take place near January 8.

Halloween Evening (Saturday, October 31) will be well illuminated by the light of the moon, just two days short of its full phase. By the time night falls, the moon will gleam brightly from a position high above the east horizon.

November's Full Moon, on Monday, the 2nd, rises dramatically in the east at around 4:50pm, only a few minutes before the time of sunset. Barring the incursion of overnight low clouds across the coastal region, San Diegans can witness the same full moon setting over the Pacific Ocean at sunrise the following morning.

The Taurid Meteor Shower,

featuring about 10-15 visible events per hour — as seen under clear, dark skies — peaks this year around Wednesday, November 4. Best times for viewing are approximately 10pm to 3am. Individual meteors belonging to this shower are relatively slow-moving (they're caused by particles burning up when colliding with the Earth's atmosphere at a mere 18 miles per second). All Taurids seem to radiate from a fixed point in the direc-

Conversely, the peak itself is a prominent and familiar landmark having a sombrero profile —that is widely visible from the desert floor below. Climbing Sombrero Peak is a feat attempted by relatively few people, but not because of its height (4229 feet above sea level), which is quite modest. Rather, the peak is remote from paved roads, and its boulder-guarded flanks discourage those who are not willing to put up with either a long march to its base (from the west) or a shorter but sweaty eastern approach up from the desert floor. Sketched here is the shorter eastern ascent only one-and-a-half miles one way, but with 1900 feet of elevation gain. The three round-trip miles might require three hours at athletic-event speed, or it might take up to six hours at a dilly-dally pace. Don't skimp on drinking water. Desert temperatures are cooling in late October, but they can still top 85 degrees.

(As a side trip, if you're game, you could traverse over to Sombrero Peak Palm Grove, a dense cluster of palm trees perched on a rocky slope high above the big canyon to the south — Bow Willow Canyon.) Continue west, then southwest up the ridgeline to Sombrero's boulder-studded summit, scrambling over modest-sized rocks at first, then over car-sized or larger boulders near the top.

On the summit, the best view is east, where Bow Willow Canyon and its tributaries yawn open in the blazing sun.

On your way up, carefully note your route so you can follow that same route back down. Don't descend the peak on a route too far to the south, lest you run into a nearly impenetrable maze of house-sized boulders and scratchy thickets of scrub oak

the inside track

UCSD is seeking bids for an "exclusive promoter services" agreement on RIMAC. The school has had no takers. Several insiders say the university is not likely to get one.

"There are too many buildings and not enough acts," says one promoter, who labor to put on a show there," says one promoter. "That lowers your level of professionalism. Plus, I would say it costs about 40 percent less to do a show at [SDSU's Viejas] Arena than it does at RIMAC. Because of that, it is simply not viable to use it as a venue. Besides, it's basically a gym. The acoustics are horrible. There is too much metal in the room."

Insiders say that USD at one time was reaching out to promoters to use its Jenny Craig Pavilion and that the City of San Diego has over the years made overtures for concert companies to use the Starlight Bowl in Balboa Park.

"This has been a real slow year for concerts," says the promoter. "And what you have is that most of the major tours are handled by either AEG or Live Nation, and they would rather put shows on in their own rooms. AEG has the Sports Arena, and Live Nation has [Viejas] Arena and Open Air Theatre. They aren't going to put anything in RIMAC when they have commitments to their own venues."

Meanwhile, a constricting economy has forced one major casino to cash in its concert chips.

Valley View Casino will not present any concert headliners in 2010. This year the casino presented some 15 major-name headliners at its 3000-capacity outdoor concert facility, including Julio Iglesias, the Beach Boys, Pat Benatar, and Seal. While Valley View's James Taylor show was a sellout, many others — including Frankie Avalon, Three Dog

Night, and Kansas — did not do well at the box office. AEG booked the shows for Valley View.

Valley View general manager Bruce Howard confirmed that the casino will not be announcing a summertime concert lineup for 2010 and will instead focus on booking artists for its main stage lounge, mentioning acts such as Hot Rod Lincoln, Lady Dottie and the Diamonds, and the Heroes.

Episode I: The Combs

Wars Said ya can't dis the homie for free/ If anyone's gonna talk shit, it's gonna be me

"Somebody suggested that the song might not be such a good idea because I might were drunk that night/ the Jack Daniel's had made ya bitter/ So ya hopped on your mobile device and ya started talking shit on Twitter

"It was the night of the [2009] San Diego Music Awards, and [Combs] said on Twitter that 'Josh Damigo sucks balls.' I thought, Wow, that's kind of mean. Josh is a brother.... I've been collaborating with [Damigo] for around three and a half years now." Damigo won Best Local Recording at the SDMAs for his album Raw.

burn a bridge," says comedic rapper Rob Deez of his track "Seth Combs," concerning a CityBeat contributing editor. But you, Seth Combs, you issue included this Combs comment: "I'm now convinced that the San Diego Music Academy voters are smoking the same shit as Slightly Stoopid. How else can you explain Josh Damigo's win...?"

If you wanna dis my boy Josh Damigo by usin' a CityBeat/ then I'm a dis you and piss on your ego by usin' a shitty beat Deez hadn't met Combs before recording the track ("He definitely goes to different shows. I think he's more like a Casbah kind of guy"), so in verse he wondered, "What's up with that weird beard? Where did that come from?" and speculates, "I bet you wear tight pants...you probably smell like a hippie."

Deez's MySpace profile quotes a 2007 CityBeat article that states, "This is either the shit, or just shit." Deez says, "I kind of like that quote. I take it as a compliment.... I might use it in my press kit."

On October 20, Deez and Damigo performed at U-31, where Combs was bartending. "So, naturally I played 'Seth Combs," reports Deez. "It was cool 'cause it was my first time playing it live, and he was there. Seemed appropriate."

Count on hearing Deez sing "Seth Combs" when he plays Java Joe's at Cafe Libertalia on Saturday, October 31, or download the track from sandiego

The Bob Vila of Boxes

Local musician and mediarelations manager David Moye calls himself an "insensitive singer-songwriter." Moye, 44, has worked as a reporter and an editor at the WirelessFlash, a San Diego news agency. Moye says that recent coverage of Colorado's balloon boy, six-year-old called me up about a video he had made called Box Time, which was a video about how to make playhouses out of boxes. It was a kid's video. But I thought, let's make this wackier. I asked Heene if it was possible to make homes out of cardboard boxes for homeless people. And he was, like, smelling an opportunity. 'Oh, yeah, yeah,' he said. 'These things can withstand 20-mile-an-hour winds."

nown to many as Mojo Nixon's musical sideman from the '80s, Skid Roper — at 55 — is hoping for his own turn in the spotlight. "I don't like to think that my time has completely passed. I spent a lot of years playing in many bands, supporting

For Rock and Roll Part 3, his first solo record in 18 years, he does most all the playing and vocals. "I could only afford three hours of studio time per week," says Roper (real name Richard Banke). "Many times, not even that. Months would go by without any recording progress."

Several of his former cohorts guest on the album, including Jose Sinatra (vocals), Jonny Viau (sax and flute), and Joel Kmak (drums). Lest you think an acrimonious breakup was what ended Roper's famous musical partnership, he points out, "Mojo Nixon added bongos on one track, 'Hope.' He's actually a pretty good bongo player."

WHAT'S IN YOUR CD PLAYER?

- 1. Buddy Holly, The Apartment Tapes. "It's just Buddy and his acoustic guitar, in his apartment in New York, without the later band overdubs. Splendid."
- 2. NRBQ, NRBQ at Yankee Stadium. "One of my favorite bands of all time, with good songwriting, singing, and playing. Though they're not really playing at Yankee Stadium. The cover shows them sitting in the stands of an otherwise empty ballpark."
- 3. William Shatner, The Transformed Man. "Of course, I don't listen to the Shakespeare. I only like 'Mr. Tambourine Man' and 'Lucy in the Sky with Diamonds."

WHAT TUNE IS STUCK IN YOUR HEAD TODAY?

"I'm infatuated with a song from the mockumen-tary movie soundtrack to A Mighty Wind. It's called 'When You're Next to Me,' by [film characters] Mitch and Mickey. It's only in the closing credits, but I love it."

WHY HAVEN'T WE HEARD YOU SING MUCH BEFORE?

"You weren't paying attention."

YOUR MOST OFFBEAT INSTRUMENT?

"Last year, I made a Dobro-type ampliphonic acoustic steel guitar using a heart-shaped pie pan with holes drilled into it and glued to the top of an old Silvertone guitar. Actually, the first one I ever made back in the 1970s is still hanging on the wall over at Moze Guitars in La Mesa."

MAGAZINE SUBSCRIPTIONS?

"I can't afford any magazine subscriptions, but my mom gave me a subscription to Smithsonian magazine. It ran out recently, and I never renewed it."

FAVORITE CARTOON?

"Lately, I'm enjoying the old episodes of South Park on Channel 6. I just saw the one poking holes in Scientology, the episode that made Isaac Hayes quit doing the voice of Chef because he was a Scientologist."

SCARIEST MOVIE?

"When I was a kid, the Rodan movie was truly scary to me. It's laughably corny now, but when you're a child, you don't see crappy scenery and a man in a suit."

BEST ADVICE YOU'VE GOTTEN?

"The artist Rick Griffin once signed one of his Fillmore posters for me with the words 'Fortune favors the brave."

READ ANY GOOD BOOKS I ATFIY?

"I just finished a great biography of Alexander Hamilton. He's on the ten-dollar bill but was not president. Everyone knows about Jefferson and Washington, but Hamilton is one of the most fascinating founding fathers. He never thought that Aaron Burr would actually shoot him in their famous duel. Ouch."

EVER MIX POLITICS AND MUSIC?

"On the new album, 'Monday Afternoon' has a chorus that repeats, 'Waddie Deddeh' over and over. He was a local politico I remember as a kid. I always liked his kooky name and thought it should be in a song. So now it is."

WHAT'S "MONDAY AFTERNOON" ABOUT?

"Everything in the lyrics is true. I was going out with a girl who wanted to go to San Francisco. On a Monday afternoon, she announced to me that we had to break up. Her best friend secretly told me it was because she wanted to visit her exboyfriend in Frisco with a clear conscience. I was not sad when, later, I heard that she crashed her car on the way up the coast. Karma."

FAVORITE PERFORMANCE TUNE?

"I love to play 'Skid Drive' live 'cause it has a couple of fake endings and people on the dance floor don't know what to do. Then, when it finally does end for real, they keep dancing. It never fails."

YOUR SONG "HOPE" IS SPOKEN WORD — WOULD YOU EVER DO HIP-HOP?

"No, I really don't care for hip-hop. I love a melody too much."

SOMETHING ABOUT YOU FEW WOULD KNOW OR GUESS?

"I love old barbershop harmony." ■

BY WILLIAM CRAIN

I saw Shonen Knife sometime around '94, and I remember this odd feeling that I was playing out a role that had been written for me by hipsters who didn't really know what they were doing. Shonen Knife's faux-naïve music -Ramones guitars, sing-along melodies in Japanese and Japanese-accented English, lyrics about candy and cute animals - was fun but didn't really merit the kind of reaction it got in concert. Before that show, I had read that people threw candy at Shonen Knife onstage, and so I brought a box of candy hearts with me. The club was so crowded that I couldn't get a good shot, and so I threw the whole box and hit guitarist Naoko Yamano in the head. Why am I doing this? I wondered. Why is everyone else in the club doing this? Why do their smiles seem so forced? Do they even like this band?

After Sonic Youth, Fugazi and, especially, Nirvana brought Shonen Knife to the attention of the American public, Shonen Knife had a brief fling with the mainstream. They even briefly had a major-label record deal. But American alt-rock audiences appreciated Shonen Knife ironically, and that was an ugly thing to do.

In fact, subsequent events have shown that Shonen Knife were trailblazers. They were one of few all-female acts in rock when they started in the early '80s. When they first started touring the States, they were one of few acts in indie rock to hail from the non-English-speaking world. Today, indie is filled

But when I ask Corey Parks (the 6'3" ex-Nashville Pussy bassist who founded the Chelsea Girls in Los Angeles earlier this vear) whether or not she thinks playing rock and roll is a guy thing, she says, "What isn't? What isn't on this planet? What profession isn't a man thing?" She says that she and the Girls talk about the subject all the time.

"We grew up idolizing men when we started playing.

For me it was Dee Dee Ramone and Cliff Williams of AC/DC." Did Parks feel any feminine bonding to the first wave of hard-core chick rockers? "When I saw Joan Jett, what she embodied for me was that she was a totally smokin' hot female, but she played like a guy.

CD Review by Colin McNamara

Out of Ashes is the debut album from Chester Bennington, vocalist of Linkin Park. Fans expecting the music to sound like Linkin Park, however, will be disappointed. There's no rapping, no angst-ridden lyrics screamed by Bennington, and the heavy, rumbling guitar chords have been dismantled.

What Bennington's band does have to offer is the vocalist's softer side. Songs such as "Give Me Your Name" and "In the Darkness" are slow, sung, and backed by melodic beats. There are faster songs with Bennington's trademark wail, such as "Inside of Me" and "Condemned," which should satisfy those expecting the metal vibe. It seems with Dead by Sunrise, Bennington is trying to appeal to audiences of hard and soft rock, and he does the job, providing the best of both worlds.

ARTIST: Dead by Sunrise

LABEL: Warner Bros.

SONGS: "Fire," "Crawl Back In," "Too Late," "Inside of Me," "Let Down," "Give Me Your Name," "My Suffering," "Condemned," "Into You," "End of the World," "Walking in Circles," "In the Darkness"

All Shostakovich

Concert Review by Michell Thitathan

Dmitri Shostakovich paid a visit to Copley Hall in the haunted form of his first cello concerto and tenth symphony. Composed after the oppressive tumults of Stalin's reign in Soviet Russia, the turbulent-yet-witty numbers give a glimpse of the stifling life and survival of the artist under an unmusical dictatorship.

Cellist Julie Albers looked resplendent in her flowing blue gown upon entering the stage for the Eb cello concerto, but she was transformed into something ethereal with the first stroke of her bow. Albers didn't play as much as she sang through her cello. The soft legato passages were so compelling that you could hear a pin drop in the auditorium.

Maestro Eri Klas's Estonian touch lent his reading of Shostakovich's gorgeous music the authenticity only found in someone who had experienced life under communism.

Albers, Klas, and the SDSO were warmly received by the audience, who would have kept on clapping all night if allowed.

Fiesta for Friends

It's weird that right on the border here, we're so slow to catch up with the rest of the country on real Mexican cuisine. We've got lots of "Mexican" food but hardly any Mexican cuisine, compared to the ambitious, creative regional and nueva comida mexicana restaurants of New York, Chicago, Atlanta, et al. Our local region is Baja California (a cuisine that includes vibrant wood-grilled carne asada tacos, local-raised quails and venison, dryaged Sonora steaks, fresh and smoked seafoods, etc.), but this side of the line, just try to get anything beyond fish tacos.

The nueva comida mexicana movement started in upscale resorts and particularly the deluxe Mexico City neighborhood of Polanco, where talented (and often well-schooled) chefs are turning traditional Mexican ingredients into sophisticated creations. El Vitral is a new East Village showplace, helmed by chef Norma Martínez, and it's all about that sort of urbane creativity. For my first dinner there, during Restaurant Week, I invited Sam, a Chicagoan whose palate has been happily spoiled by Rick Bayless's Topolobampo Frontera Grill (a favorite of the Obama family). El Vitral's Restaurant Week menu seemed an ideal starting place — the entrées were those I'd have chosen to order anyway.

The vast dining room has an open kitchen at the far end and parquet floors along the bar. The decor is modern, clean, suburban-shiny, and very red (walls, chairs, napkins, and the occasional patron's face, right after the first sip of one of the spicy margarita variations). A vitral is a stained-glass window, and they have a few of those, too, over the bar. The wall to the patio is soundproofed glass that can be rolled up in good weather for inside-outside eating. From inside, with the glass down, you can't hear the noise from Petco or even the mariachis playing for private parties on the patio a few inches away.

However, there's some sort of bad music playing on the sound system inside. From my table at a second meal, just inside the patio glass of the dining room, we couldn't hear any melody, just the thuds of the bass beat, like a mild headache. Who needs that in a room where, all around us, people were sharing platters, laughing, joking, and clearly enjoying each other's conversation? Suggestion: maybe some Flaco Jiménez, Los Alegres de Terán, Lydia Mendoza, some classic corridos and norteño bands instead? A loop of the album Chulas Fronteras from Arhoolie Records would be a good start. (Yeah, that's all Tejano, not Baja, but as far as I can tell, Tijuana norteño is mainly narcocorridos lately. Yet, even those would be preferable to thunk thunk.)

Sam, Jennifer, and I avoided the thunks by choosing a patio table to enjoy the last of summer, our toes almost touching Petco's Park on the Park. The restaurant features an enormous selection of tequilas, and much of the cocktail list is given to margarita variations. The "Classic" was just okay. Sam chose the house specialty, a spicy variation called "The Smoking Tippler" (Cabo

Wabo reposado, mango, chipotle syrup) — da bomb! Jennifer tried the "Fresa," a pleasant tequila martini sweetened with puréed fresh strawberries. (A second dinner included additional spicy experiments, but "Smoking Tippler" still scored the highest.)

Our charming waiter sweet-talked us into trying the $13 off-menu Guacamole Trio. The three versions of the spread: one base-hit, one ball, one strike. The "tomatillo" version was the best — tart and complex, topped with a scattering of Cotija cheese and pepitas (small toasted pumpkin seeds). The "El Vitral" was amended with sweet fruits (mango and jicama) and soy sauce and was interesting. But the tradicional classic was a

PRICES: Appetizers, soups, salads, $7–$11; sides, $4; tacos, $9–$13; entrées, $18–$35 (most low $20s).

CUISINE AND BEVERAGES: Ambitious menu of creative re-creations of multiregional Mexican dishes. Huge list of tequilas and cocktails. Well-edited multinational wine list, many affordable choices.

PICK HITS: "Smoking Tippler" margarita. Appetizers: Sopa de Elotes (corn soup), quesadillas, Callos de Hacho (scallops). Entrées: fish taco; Enchiladas de Pato (duck mini-enchiladas), Cochinita Pibíl (Mayan-style "pulled pork"), fettuccine with duck in mole sauce. Dessert: churros with coconut sauce.

NEED TO KNOW: Heated patio with view of Petco scoreboard and Park at the Park. Parking lot on Eighth Avenue just north of J ($3 on nongame nights). Informal but subtly festive; T's fine (maybe not wife-beater tanks indoors). Sufficient choices for lacto-vegetarians. Easy to create a budget grazing meal, especially if sharing.

huge yawn, in dire need of a heaping spoonful of table salsa to liven it up.

But as we looked over our table, we remembered from an earlier review we'd read that El Vitral is a bit too hoity-toity to automatically serve salsa and chips like "lesser" Mexican restaurants, much less put a bottle of hot sauce on the table. No problem with no chips, but withholding the salsas not only seems chintzy but is a tactical error: At a subsequent meal, small portions of three different hot sauces came with one of the entrées, and all three were scintillating — a fiery coral habanero purée, a sneaky-hot green salsa verde, and, best of all, a sparkling "salsita," aka salsa fresca, the classic home-style table sauce of minced raw tomatoes, onions, and chilis. That terrific trio — or even just the "salsita" alone — would be the best possible advertisement that El Vitral could make for itself, inspiring instant trust.

Restaurant Week appetizers: one triple, one strikeout, one comedy act. The surprise hit was a quesadilla, a world apart from the desperation dinners of starving students and vampire-shift scribblers. The coating of the empanada-sized packet wasn't a folded-over tortilla but a light batter of cornmeal $\it masa$. The filling was a mixture of luxurious melted Oaxaca cheese with zucchini blossoms and a bit of huitlacoche (corn "truffles"). On the other hand, flautas de pollo were tough cylinders of rolled corn tortillas filled with a leaden mixture of dry chicken shreds and black-bean purée. They were nicely garnished with Mexican sour cream, Cotija cheese, and a pleasant chipotle aioli — but who cares for this fancy-shmancy stuff when, really, all the best flautas are just topped with a heap of good guacamole along with the crema fresca. Sometimes the old ways are best.

We were just talking about taking home raw ovsters from Blue Water on India Street and giving them the N'Awlins treatment when the mahi mahi ceviche arrived, making me break out in giggles when I realized that the sauce was a sweetened, spiced-up variation of the Creole cocktail sauce served at New Orleans oyster bars — here, with puréed tomatoes subbing for NOLA's Heinz cocktail-sauce base. Don't eat that, eat this: the ceviche de camarón (from my second meal), tender shrimps in a roasted tomatillo, poblano chili, and citrus salsa, a charmer that came with thin, almost translucent house-made chips, not typical fried leftover tortilla triangles but made-from-scratch masa poufs. When you think of it, the variety and quality of house-made masa products (plus pastas and baked goods) coming out of this kitchen are impressive.

A home-run at first swing: our entrée of Enchiladas de Pato (duck-filled enchiladas). The fresh-tasting house-made tortillas were small, light, and faintly sweet. The filling mingled pulled duck and a hint of chopped apricots, and the coral-colored chili and Cotijacheese sauce was sweet, suave, a bit spicy. The enchiladas were miniature, but the portion was generous — six of them, made to share.

Our other two entrées were good ideas, imperfectly executed. Mole Poblano had a rich, complex, dark sauce, sweet and moderately spicy, but wasted on desiccated chicken breast. "What's the deal with chicken breast in mole this side of the border?" asked Jennifer. "What's the Mexican cultural norm for chicken, for that matter?" asked Sam, comparing this dry version to the moist Italian-style paillards he'd just eaten at Piatti. "Mole was designed for turkey," I said, "back in the day when that was a wild bird and mostly dark meat, before the guajalote chicks started looking at cosmetic-surgery ads in the papers and getting their chimichangas enlarged...I can't imagine why restaurants use chicken breasts, when thighs are more like turkey plus cheaper, easier to cook," "And moister," added Jennifer.

On my second visit, I tried the sauce again in Fettucini con Pato en Mole, pulled duck with apricots and crunchy cashews, served with tender house-made fresh pasta. Dark, enticing duck meat worked much better, and since the whole concept of the dish is a little nutsy, those cashews fit right in. The sauce seemed spicier, too. The combination made for a giddy, sensual mix of flavors and textures.

Back at Restaurant Week: Ravioles en nogada is a cute idea. The original chiles en nogada is a dish celebrating Mexican independence day with the colors of the flag: dark-green poblano stuffed with a fruited, minced-(or ground-) beef stuffing, topped with white walnut cream sauce scattered with scarlet pomegranate seeds. Here, instead of chilis, are housemade pale-green pasta pockets (incorporating chile poblano purée) stuffed with beef and fruit, topped with the classic white walnut sauce drizzled with pomegranate reduction. It's near-great, except that the pasta wrappers were too thick, undercooked, chewy — a long fly to the outfield resulting in a double, not a homer.

An out-of-the-ballpark hit came with a simple dessert of cinnamon-fragrant mini-churros — crisp outside, fluffy-soft inside — with a ramekin of coconut sauce for dipping, gooey and sybaritic but not cloving. The other two Restaurant Week desserts were bad and worse: a coarse empanada de ate con queso (a small, thick doughshell filled with Mexican cream cheese and jelly) and a horrendous brownie, glutinous enough to pull out your tooth fillings and sweet enough to leave new cavities. The espresso was above average, served hot and fresh with dessert, as requested.

"Would you eat here again?" I asked my friends. "No," said Jennifer. "For this type of upscale Mexican food, you can do much better at Candelas. Maybe even at El Agave — although I have to admit I haven't been there in years." "Not yet," said Sam. "Their chef has great ideas, but the kitchen has problems with execution. The food is interesting but not consistent."

Obviously, our Restaurant Week meals wouldn't make a fair assessment — the place still felt too new. So I came back nearly a month later with Samurai Jim and Fred. We ate different dishes (no more chicken breast...in anything!), and they were all better than the first try. Either the Restaurant Week menu wasn't well chosen or the kitchen has matured rapidly.

Along with the shrimp ceviche (described earlier) we started with callos de hacha, a trio of big, beautiful local (Baja) scallops cooked tender-done. Each was set on a pedestal of a small quesadilla (again made with fresh masa) filled with barbacoa (pulled braised beef with citrus juice) and topped with a juicy square of fresh, seared nopalito cactus, the whole mixture dressed lightly in cilantro vinaigrette. It's a bold, unconventional combination, not entirely harmonious but arresting — and delicious. All three of us agreed we'd love to eat these again.

This dinner's great glory was crema de elote con poblanos creamy corn chowder topped with streaks of poblano chili aioli. Its sensuous, primal comfort had all three of us batting our eyelids and smiling like happy infants after each spoonful. By the way, budgetwatchers, it's very filling: for $8, you've got most of a dinner.

For another ten bucks, and for the hell of it, I ordered a fish taco as an extra appetizer: a small, thin, house-made corn tortilla wrapped around a generous portion of tender beer-battered mahi mahi chunks, fully dressed with salsa verde, crema fresca, Mexican cole slaw, and chipotle aioli. Hurray for that: I hate DIY fish tacos, 'cause it's not my native cuisine, so how the hell is an exiled nuevavorauera-frisaueña gabacha supposed to know how to dress these exotic Baja things? We were all surprised by its excellence, the fish treated respectfully and garnished well and proportionately.

Half the reason I came back was to taste the Cochinita Pibíl, a Yucatecan dish that inspires me with profound ambivalence and forlorn hope. It's a great culinary idea that usually turns out dry and horrible, even (or especially) in the dreary restaurants on the central plaza of Mérida, Yucatan's "county seat." The original: a suckling pig marinated in spices and sour orange juice, wrapped in banana leaves, and slow-baked in a fire-pit. Well, not lately. There's an even more common restaurant version in Mérida, pollo pibíl, featuring dried-out chicken. When my then-husband, his cousin, and I went to Chichen Itza and discovered at lunchtime that there were no food vendors in the park, we decided we should open a pollo pibíl stand among the ruins and call it "Itza Chicken!" (Cousin Peggy later topped this with an even better pun: In the woods behind the ruins, we discovered an abandoned single-gauge railroad track. "Pardon me, boy, is this the Chichen Itza Choo-Choo?" she sang.)

At El Vitral, the moist, tasty, orange-flavored pulled porkshoulder shreds (seeming more a mixiote than a pibíl) were served atop a banana leaf for form's sake and garnished properly, traditionally, with pickled red onions. So, it's not wholly authentic — it's better.

The spendy entrée recommended by our excellent waiter (able to answer all questions about ingredients and prep methods) was Cordero al Guaiillo, rack of lamb in a suave sauce of Guajillo chilis and ground peanuts. Without our specifying doneness, it arrived a perfect rosy medium-rare cut into three meaty rib chops in a sauce that flattered the lamb. Alongside were Peruvian purple potatoes and hunks of fried plantain. (This dish, the most expensive on the menu, probably brought us the three great salsas, too, along with a basketful of the fine housemade "chips." Either that, or you get them automatically with entrées when it's not Restaurant Week.) The lamb was excellent but overpriced for the amount of thrill it affords, given that most entrées here cost at least $10 less.

Overall, this second meal was a fiesta for the mouth, offering guidelines for how to eat economically at this rather upscale destination. "This would be a great date place if you don't eat too much," said Jim. "Start with a pair of 'Smoking Tipplers,' the scallop appetizer, and shrimp ceviche. Then a bowl of that corn soup, and if you're still hungry, a taco." "Or the duck enchiladas instead of the taco," I said. "And you want to finish off with the airy little churros. That sensual coconut sauce is your perfect happy ending." ■

RESTAURANT LISTINGS

A complete searchable list of over 600 restaurants is available online at SanDiegoReader.com. Price estimates are based on the latest information available for a midrange entrée. Inexpensive: below $10; moderate: $10 to $19; expensive: $20 to $29; very expensive: more than $30

Alpine

Alpine Inn 2225 Alpine Bl., Alpine, 619-445-5172. Beef-lovers heaven, with a juicy special ground-in-house (so rare-cooked is feasible) Texas burger. Crowded weekends. Moderate to expensive.

Baja

From the United States use the prefix 011-52 when calling Mexico.

Chiki Jai Avenida Revolución #1388, Tijuana, 664-685-4955. The food's Spanish, so paella is big (with soup, salad, French bread, and bleu cheese), but try baby eel appetizers, chorizo (pork sausages), bacalao (cod fish) à la vizcaina, trout with olive oil and garlic.

La Escondida Santa Monica #1, Tijuana, 664-681-4458. House specialties at this hidden mansion are more interesting than the regular fare. Try the seafood casserole (cacerola de mariscos); the tambor (a dish of layered beef, cheese, and pork); or the roasted baby Monterrey goat (cabrito tatemado).

La Fonda Baja Highway 1, km. 59, Rosarito, 646-155-0307. The bilingual menu, written on chalkboards, changes nightly, featuring American and Mexican seafood entrées and deluxe meats aged in-house, Baja wines. Great breakfasts, lavish Sunday brunch buffet, blissful patio seating. Inexpensive to moderate

Original Ortega's Calle Principal (next to Casa de la Langosta), Puerto Nuevo. The spiny lobsters (once local but now from who-knows-where) are fried in lard, finished off on the grill, and served with melted margarine blend, frijoles, rice, tortillas, and salsa. Many other starters, entrées, desserts available. Moderate to high, low-moderate specials.

Los Pelicanos Calle Cedros #115, Rosarito, 661-612-0445. This hotel dining room is El Nido's little sister, with a shorter menu. It serves good steaks and surf 'n' turf in a handsome room and, at lunch, on a pretty ocean-view terrace. Moderate.

Tacos Varios y Aguas Frescas Corner of Constitución and Third, Tijuana. The cart is only here from 6pm to 6am, but from tongue to chicken mole to milanesa, steak ranchero, carne asada, chile relleno, and pescado (fish), they create meals right there. Inexpensive.

Balboa Park

Japanese Tea Pavilion 2215 Pan American Way, Balboa Park, 619-231-0048. The teriyaki bowl with salmon, the sweetish udon soba noodle soup with tofu kitsune, and even the California sandwich piled high with "krab" meat are good and feel Japanese. Inexpensive.

The Prado 1549 El Prado, Balboa Park, 619-557-9441. Exquisite setting in the park offers generous portions on a something-for-everyone menu. Top choices: meaty crab cakes, slow-roasted pork loin, banana tres leches cake. Moderate to expensive.

Banker's Hill

Alex's Brown Bag 2550 Fifth Ave., Banker's Hill, 619-231-2912. The reborn Alex's (now in the Mr. A's building) is a deli rightly famous for its Original Philadelphia Cheese Steak Sandwich, Inexpensive.

Avenue 5 2760 Fifth Ave., Banker's Hill, 619-542-0394. Chef-owner Colin MacLaggan offers a short, tasty menu of creative, seasonal, French-influenced California cuisine (and house-made desserts) in a chic, classy-casual neighborhood bistro. Happy-hour bargains at bar; otherwise high-moderate.

Azuki Sushi Lounge 2321 Fifth Ave., Banker's Hill, 619-238-4760. Skillful, creative sushi and sashimi in a convivial atmosphere. Don't miss the spicy Pon Hama (yellowtail sashimi with yuzu juice and chili powder) or the fusion-y RU Kidding Me roll, the owner's favorite. Moderate to expensive.

Cucina Urbana 505 Laurel St., Banker's Hill, 619-239-2222. Uptown food at neighborhood prices. The creative, playful Italian menu emphasizes light, shareable dishes — mini-bites on through appetizers, pizzas, polentas, and interesting pastas and entreés, with adventurous wines priced only $7 over retail. Lively, comfortable, noisy. Bar grazing until midnight. Moderate.

Joe's New York-Style Deli 3401 First Ave., Banker's Hill, 619-295-7666. Go for wraps, jumbo hot dogs with sauerkraut, or East Coast-generous sandwiches like corned beef, dry Genoa salami, cotto salami, bologna, or liverwurst. That Boar's Head liverwurst is da bomb. Inexpensive.

Borrego Springs

La Casa del Zorro 3845 Yaqui Pass Rd., Borrego Springs, 760-767-5323. The menu offers elaborate seafood appetizers and entrées with subtle sauces, fresh veggies from nearer the coast, and rather mild-flavored, tender meats, evidently chosen to be gentle to the dentures of the duffers. Very expensive.

Carlsbad

Joey's Smokin' B-B-Q 6955 El Camino Real, Carlsbad, 760-929-1396. Also 4645 Carmel Mountain Rd., Carmel Valley, 858-350-1317. It's not Southern so much as SoCal "Q," but the meats are genuinely smoked. Pulled pork offers reasonably credible Memphis-style flavor; ribs come in three versions. Inexpensive to moderate.

Pizza Port 571 Carlsbad Village Dr., Carlsbad, 760-720-7007. Also 135 N. Coast Hwy. 101, Solana Beach, 858-481-7332. Pizza Port brews their own beer (try Sharkbite Red) and flings their own pizzas, New York style. Filling combos can be great, like the Pizza Carlsbad or the Pizza Solana. Inexpensive.

Carmel Mountain

Athens Market Café 11640 Carmel Mountain Rd., Carmel Mountain, 858-675-2225. Vickie Pappas (sis of Mary) serves up the Greek classics at this offshoot of Athens Market, with particularly flavorful lamb souvlaki and lamb chops. Inexpensive to moderate.

Carmel Valley

Arterra 11966 El Camino Real, Carmel Valley, 858-369-6032. Local, sustainably raised ingredients in treatments growing bolder over the years, offering treats for both palate and mind. A blithe patio, sushi bar, and happy hour at the booze bar offer more casual (still serious) eats. Expensive-plus.

Chollas View

Thai Garden 110 47th St., Chollas View, 619-527-8890. They do Thai here, but cognoscenti come for the Lao cooking. This place is the town's unofficial Lao Embassy, and the larb and fresh-pestled green papaya salad are the real thing. (A great place for buying Lao silks, too.) Inexpensive.

Chula Vista

La Bella Pizza Garden 373 Third Ave., Chula Vista, 619-426-8820. Rustic-looking family-run restaurant offers Italian-American standards, big portions, low prices, late hours. The hit with kids is "Papa's Favorite" eight-inch pizza. Inexpensive.

El Dorado Seafood & Grill 311 Palomar St., Chula Vista, 619-426-4545. Zesty Peruvian dishes include papa relleno (creamy potato with a lively beef and raisin filling), seco de cabrito (young goat in a complex, herbal stew). Mexican-style seafood served here, too. Inexpensive to moderate.

City Heights

El Borrego Restaurant 4280 El Cajon Bl., City Heights, 619-281-1355. Specializes in fascinating Mexican lamb dishes, including spicy, smoky mixiote (lamb cooked inside thin maguey skin) and pancita, similar to haggis. Inexpensive.

Red Sea Restaurant 4717 University Ave., City Heights, 619-285-9722. You'll find richly seasoned Ethiopian cuisine served on a porous pancake, injera. The kitfo (spicy beef tartare) is good, the gored gored (meat in spicy butter) is excellent. Vibrant veggies, too. Inexpensive.

Super Cocina 3627 University Ave., City Heights, 619-584-6244. Mexican housewives prepare specialties for the restaurant. They're complex meat or poultry stews made without border compromises. The dozen entrées change daily from a rotating repertory of about 100. Inexpensive.

Tom's Chinese BBQ 4414 University Ave., City Heights, 619-563-8225. The roast ribs, roast pork, and BBQ spare ribs are excellent. So is pork fried rice and the dim sum. But you should also try the pig's rectum, duck's feet, stomach lining, ears, and wiggly small intestines. Inexpensive.

Van Hoa Vietnamese Restaurant 4016 54th St., City Heights, 619-582-2642. They have 20 versions of pho — dac biet ("special combo") is a good place to start — plus rice and rice vermicelli plates and Vietnamese crepes and spring rolls. Inexpensive.

Clairemont

Boomerangs Gourmet Burger Joint 4577 Clairemont Dr., Clairemont & 588-483-9500. Create-your-burger options include horseradish, artichoke hearts, carrots, cranberries, cheeses, and mushrooms. Chop and tuck these into raw burger meat, like a joey into mama roo's pocket. Inexpensive.

Lightnin' Jack's BBQ 4705-H Clairemont Dr., Clairemont, 858-270-8227. Mall atmosphere, but hickoryfueled Texas-style pit barbecue turns out tender, moist pork ribs and reasonably smoky brisket. Nice fried catfish, too. Hush puppies and sweet potato fries are the tastiest sides. Inexpensive to moderate.

www.SalaThaiSD.com

Sala Thai 6161 El Cajon Bl., College Area, 619-229-9050. Classy atmosphere, tame spicing. You'll have to ask for "hot." Chicken mussaman is delicious with taste-boosters like kaffir lime leaves. Health treat: som tum, green papaya salad. Inexpensive.

4.0 Deli 5844 Montezuma Rd., College Area, 619-281-4040. Try the Montezuma, a toasted sub with grilled chicken cutlets, chorizo, Monterey Jack, and a kick-butt Southwestern dressing.

San Diego Desserts 5987 El Cajon Bl., College Area, 619-287-8186. What was just a wonderful bakery has expanded to include full sit-down lunch, dinner, and Sunday brunches. Comfort dishes like meatloaf and chicken pie sandwiches, salads. Good wines, wicked desserts, great patio. Inexpensive to Woodstock's Pizza 6145 El Cajon Bl., College Area, 619-265-0999. Crusts white or sweetly robust whole wheat are pressed, tossed, and folded over at the edge, producing a spongy, crunch-crusted rim. The mozzarella is rich, gooey whole milk; the marinara sauce is dark and spicy. Inexpensive.

Coronado

Bistro d'Asia 1301 Orange Ave., Coronado, 619-437-6677. The relaxing restaurant attached to the hardy Lizard Lounge serves gentled-down dishes from East Asia. Good sushi bar in the Lounge. Moderate.

Crown Room Hotel Del, 1500 Orange Ave., Coronado, 619-435-6611. In this vaulted dining room, presidents, princes and Marilyn Monroe have chowed down. Open only for elaborate Sunday brunch, with cooking not quite up to the visual grandeur. Expensive.

Island Pasta 1202 Orange Ave., Coronado, 619-435-4545. Sidewalk tables, daily made-on-the-premises semolina pasta — and dog-friendly, too, plus a nice wine list. A good vegetarian special: verdure pasta, with artichoke hearts, spinach, capers, mushrooms, onions, and olives. Inexpensive.

Mexican Village 126 Orange Ave., Coronado, 619-435-3111. Old restaurant revives with new (Mexican) owner. Old Coronadans say the signature burritos (filled with tripe, pork and potato, chorizo and eggs, etc.) match even their gilded Korea- and Vietnam-era memories. Inexpensive to moderate.

Rhinoceros 1166 Orange Ave., Coronado, 619-435-2121. Meat and fish choices are prepared simply with generic veggie accompaniments. Why, then, is Rhino so popular? Pasta is the answer — that's where the kitchen shines. Moderate (pastas) to expensive.

Del Mar

Osteria del Pescatore 1201 Camino del Mar, Del Mar, 858-509 9293. Italian seafood, garden setting. Best are the daily specials, including spaghetti a cartoccio (baked in parchOver 900 more restaurant listings at SanDiegoReader.com ment) and lobster risotto. Save room for dessert, especially if offerings include torta alla nonna. High-moderate to expensive.

Poseidon 1670 Coast Bl., Del Mar. 858-755-9345. It's all about the glorious seaside view. Lunches run to sandwiches, burgers, and fried seafood. Dinner dishes mingle Pacific Rim-Mediterranean-Mexican flavors, with some emphasis on seafood. Moderate Red Tracton's 550 Via de la Valle, Del Mar, 858-755-6600. Manly retro atmosphere, huge portions. The selection is generous: steaks, prime rib, seafood, chicken, and pork - all expertly prepared and served in record time. Expensive.

Sbicca American Bistro 215 15th St., Del Mar, 858-481-1001. Pristine California cuisine highlights local produce in deluxe, seasonal dishes that engage the mind along with the palate, e.g., a lemon-pistachio cake that changes as you cut it, crumbling into a berry coulis. High-moderate to expensive.

Downtown

Acqua Al 2 322 Fifth Ave., Downtown, 619-230-0382. Mainly plain Tuscan cuisine, highlighted by pleasing vegetarian pastas and risottos featuring earthy porcini mushrooms. Moderate (pasta) to expensive.

Bandar Fine Persian Cuisine 825 and 837 Fourth Ave., Downtown, 619-238-0101. Skillful, healthful cooking from an ancient high cuisine. Refined entrées featuring rice with poultry are elaborately garnished; rose-flavored Persian ice cream is a romantic ending.

Beach City Market 3 Horton Plaza, Downtown, 619-232-2491. Enjoy soupand-sandwich deals like minestrone and the Londonport roast beef sandwich flavored with port, white herbs and spices; or the Deluxe roast beef with horseradish. Inexpensive.

Café Sevilla 555 Fourth Ave., Down town, 619-233-5979. A loud, convivial tapas bar adjoins a quieter, romantic Spanish restaurant, but you can get apas in the restaurant and entrées at the bar. At both, the choices are varied, interesting, and cosmopolitan. Great sangria. Moderate.

Café de L'Opera 1354 Fifth Ave. Downtown, 619-234-0425. Pastry chef Thierry Cahez offers a genuine French feeling and food, in a pâtisserie with exquisite dessert pastries, breakfast crois-sants, and Gallic lunches like mini-pizzas and croque monsieurs (toasted cheese sandwich with ham). Inexpensive.

Candelas 416 Third Ave., Downtown, 619-702-4455. Don't look for tacos here — chef Eduardo Baeza specializes in sophisticated, delectable Mexican haute cuisine made with French techniques. Interesting but expensive wine list; food expensive

China Too 916 Fifth Ave., Downtown 619-239-4283. The menu claims "New York-Style Fine Chinese Cuisine." How about decent Bronx-style eat-in/takeout? Cheap but good fare, including huge lunch specials, made with no MSG, minimal cornstarch. Free delivery to a wide area. Inexpensive.

Downtown Johnny Brown's 1220 Third Ave., Downtown, 619-232-8414. At this Euro-style sidewalk café, try the spicy grilled breast of chicken burger with soup of the day or fries. Soup's bobbing with fresh-cut vegetables. Also salads: taco or Southwest chicken. Inexpensive.

The Field Irish Pub and Restaurant 544 Fifth Ave., Downtown, 619-232-9840. This spirited, colorful saloon, transported whole hog from the Ould Sod, offers Irish music live most nights. Try the herb-rich Irish stew, or the boxty — potato crepes with a variety of fillings (salmon, beef, etc.). Low-moderate.

Greystone 658 Fifth Ave., Downtown, 619-232-0225. The Italian steak house fare here centers on Prime beef, game meats, lobster, and pastas. Loud, conventioneer-y ambience. Extremely

Hub Market & Deli 748 Sixth Ave., Downtown, 619-544-1917. Take-out only, with a hot pastrami sandwich that draws long lines. Breakfast? Try the giant three-egg burrito stuffed Lou and Mickey's 224 Fifth Ave., Downtown, 619-237-4900, Fifties-style surf'n' turfer owned by King's Seafood, with fine fish quality, simple fare. Best dishes include New Orleans BBQ shrimp — a buttery, spicy Creole extravaganza (available as starter or entrée) — and the huge, juicy rib-eye Cowboy Steak. Fish moderate, meats expensive.

Morton's of Chicago 285 J St. Downtown, 619-696-3369. Swanky, manly Chicago steakhouse offers juicy, marbled grain-fed beef in numerous cuts and sizes, wet-aged and grilled to your specification, or good fish. Pricey à la carte sides. Very expensive.

Oceanaire Seafood Room 400 J St., Downtown, 619-858-2277. The best dishes tend to be the least ambitious, from the "Simply Grilled and Broiled" section. Or you can gamble on more elaborately composed entrées. Great crab cakes. Happy hour at oyster bar moderate, dinner very expensive.

Osetra Watergrill 904 Fifth Ave. Downtown, 619-239-1800. Las Vegas glitzy decor here. Appetizers tilt Asian, but most entrées are Italianate seafood. The restaurant has switched from the endangered Caspian caviar it's named for to a California-farmed sturgeon product (at the same steep tab). Very

The Palm 615 J St., Downtown, 619-702-6500. The fare features tender dryaged and wet-aged USDA Prime beef from the chain's own wholesale butcher and, for high-rollers, monster-sized Nova Scotia lobsters. Also consider shrimp Bruno (with a Dijon sauce), baked crab cakes. Very expensive.

Panda Inn 506 Horton Plaza, Downtown, 619-233-7800. Family-friendly menu offers greaseless dishes to suit all tastes. Tofu with eggplant and the Mongolian Hotpot, a meatball casserole with Chinese cabbage, are among the more authentic choices. Lunches inexpensive, dinners moderate.

RA Sushi 474 Broadway, Downtown, 619-321-0021. Big and splashy, this Arizona-based chain restaurant creates a high-energy atmosphere with loud music and louder decor. The grazing menu features sushi, sashimi, and hosts of Asian-oid appetizers, plus substantial noodle dishes and entrées. Moderate.

Super Jr. Market & Deli 1036 Seventh Ave., Downtown, 619-232-6367. Sandwiches include Boar's Head meat, cheeses, and fixings galore. Hot dishes sold by the pound: pork loin, chicken faiitas, honey ham, turkey, catfish, tilapia - all with two side dishes like rice, veggies, baked potato. Inexpensive.

Taka 555 Fifth Ave., Downtown, 619-338-0555. Top-quality seafood enlivens exquisite sushi, with rice freshly made all evening and savory appetizers like miso-baked cod and mushroomtopped agedashi (lightly fried) tofu. Reserve and go early for quiet. Most dishes inexpensive, but they add up.

East Village

Café Noir 447 Ninth Ave., East Village, 619-235-0075. Hip E-Ville scene in antique black house, where food highlights include interesting soup du jour and a panino stuffed with grilled chicken, artichoke, cranberries, and Parmesan and cream cheeses. Inexpensive.

Gen Lai Sen Hakka Seafood Restaurant 1065 12th Ave., East Village, 619-239-5478. Stick to their Hakka specialties, like the sizzle plate stuffed tofu — deep-fried crisp rectangles with a pork meatball inserted in the tender centers, resembling meatflavored roasted marshmallows. Mainly inexpensive.

duce. Highlights include a rich macaroni-and-ham casserole. Moderate.

Tomiko 87 Encinitas Bl., Encinitas 760-633-3587. Great sushi, including fabulous uni, world-beating silky toro Appetizers like salmon tower tartare and drunken black cod are rewarding as are the simple, excellent fusiontinged seafood entrées. Moderate.

I Trulli Trattoria 830 S. Coast Hwy. 101, Encinitas, 760-943-6800. The signifiers of seriousness are the pink pep percorns, goat cheese, sun-dried tomatoes, and light cream sauces that coexist with the more traditional mozzarellatomato sauce arrays. Moderate.

Tuscan Sun Italian Deli 1070 N. El Camino Real, Encinitas, 760-633-4546. Domestic and imported meats and cheeses, fresh-baked breads and focac cia, marinated veggies, and gourmet products from Italy. The specialty is the Caprese sandwich on focaccia bread. Inexpensive.

Escondido

Bistro 221 E. Grand Ave., Escondido, 760-737-7398. Simple dishes shine at this genteel bistro, like sophisticated lunch quesadillas and dinner appetizers like Florida gumbo and Maryland crab cake. Moderate.

El Galeón 503 W. Mission Ave., Escondido, 760-746-5951. Mexican seafood stars here. Shrimp and langostino ("squat lobster" in fishermen's terms) are house specialties. Consider a marlin taco (squeeze some lime onto this rich, strong fish) or savory albondigas soup. Inexpensive to moderate.

Hacienda de Vega 2608 S. Escondido Bl., Escondido, 760-738-9805. In gorgeous surroundings (mansion and garden), Señora Vega offers sophisticated Mexico City cuisine. You'll find interesting appetizers along with enhuge bargain-priced Sunday brunch

Fallbrook

El Parque 2659 Reche Rd., Fallbrook, 760-731-2775. Good combination plates include the tostada with beef taco and the burrito with enchilada. Better yet, on Sunday morning, agricultural workers pour in here for menudo, cooked in a three-foot-high pot. Inexpensive.

Wayside Café 507 South Main Ave., Fallbrook, 760-723-9633. The place used to be a gas station. You can even sit in the old lube bay to eat. Count on generous servings, especially the mountain piles of red-skinned home fries as a side at breakfast. Inexpensive.

Hillcrest

Baby Back Jack's Barbecue 1290 University Ave., Hillcrest, 619-574-1644. Jack's Sampler (four-bone baby back ribs, one half chicken, one portion of BBQ beef, fries, and slaw) is a good intro. Or pork-rib tips or just a Cajun sausage sandwich or one of Jack's chili cheeseburgers with bacon. Inexpensive.

Bread and Cie 350 University Ave., Hillcrest, 619-683-9322. Crusty European peasant breads include anise-fig and black-olive loaves. Focaccia pizza and savory sandwiches (many with thick bread and thin fillings) are available to take out or eat on the spot. Inexpensive.

City Delicatessen 555 University Ave., Hillcrest, 619-295-2747. Some folk come for the Jewish-American food (chicken-in-the-pot, brisket of beef, chopped liver), others to soak in the artdeco colors until midnight (3am weekends). Inexpensive to moderate at lunch, with weekday specials like Bento combos (sushi rolls, crab, salmon, rice) and filling soups overflowing with veggies and thick udon noodles. Inexpensive.

Lucky Buck's Patio Bar and Grill 1459 University Ave., Hillcrest, 619-297-0660. The only question: which burger? The Buck 'n' Bleu Ribbon Burger (with bleu cheese, bacon, onion strings, and chipotle sauce)? Buck's on Fire (pepper Jack, bacon, and jalapeño peppers)? Buck's Lucky Mushroom? Inexpensive.

Picasso Spanish Restaurant 3923 Fourth Ave., Hillcrest, 619-294-3061. Some top Basque tapas here include chicken-stuffed empanadillas, baby eels in garlic sauce, stuffed green lip mussels, and an outstanding paella (available as both a tapa and entrée). Moderate.

Pizza Fusion 3827 Fifth Ave., Hill-crest, 619-278-0057. Everything's green and organic at this eco-conscious chain. The pizzas are odd-shaped but tasty, with multigrain oval crusts, plenty of veggies, cheese, and sweet Italian sausage or organic steak. Inexpensive to moderate.

St. Tropez 3805 Fifth Ave., Hillcrest, 619-497-0297. Additional locations in Encinitas, Rancho Bernardo, downtown. These bright cafés with indoor outdoor seating offer scores of yummy house-baked breakfast pastries, desserts, and good coffee, plus Parisian-style croque monsieur and madame, crepes, quiche, onion soup, sophisticated sandwiches, and panini. Simple French dimers at some branches. Inexpensive.

Imperial Beach

Olive Oil Organic Café 600 Palm Ave., Imperial Beach, 619-429-1779. Great vegan sandwiches on ciabatta or focaccia — the eggplant Baby Greens and the Vegan Fusion (imitation smoked turkey and salami, cheese). But the carnivorous sandwiches are also way better than they have to be. Also pizzas, salads, house-made soups. In-

The Tin Fish 910 Seacoast Dr., Imperial Beach, 619-628-8414. Also 170 Sixth Ave., Downtown, 619-238-8100 (lunch only). The bill of fare features fish — fried, grilled, chowdered, or wrapped into burritos, tacos, or sandwiches. Great crab cakes. Inexpensive to low-moderate.

Imperial Valley

Owl Café 674 Main St., Imperial Valley, 760-336-0298. This café, over 50 years old, serves rib-sticking food. Try breakfast special #1: pancakes, two eggs, and two bacon strips. For lunch, the French dip sandwich. Full-plate dinners include roast beef and chickenfried steak. Inexpensive.

Kearny Mesa

B & B Deli & Catering 8690 Aero Dr., Kearny Mesa, 858-292-1636. Airmen's Comfort Food Central, offering plate-bursting lunch specials with all the fixin's: roast pork loin, meat loaf, curried chicken, Polish sausage, pepper steak, cabbage rolls. Generous breakfasts, too. Inexpensive.

Dumpling Inn 4619 Convoy St., Kearny Mesa, 858-268-9638. Tiny, plain setting offering authentic northern Chinese and Szechuan dishes. Ten fish and green-chive dumplings, spicy three-ingredient lo mein (with jumbo shrimp, calamari, and chicken) and superb jellyfish salad are challenging and exciting. Inexpensive.

The Philadelphia Sandwich Company 3904 Convoy St., Kearny Mesa, 858-571-0888. The menu centers on Philly's two cult sandwiches: the hoagie and the cheese steak. The mixed-meat hoagie is more flavorful than a mere hero. For cheese steak, try the luscious "everything" with provolone, unless you're a Philly-born purist. Inexpensive.

San Tong Palace 4690 Convoy St., Kearny Mesa, 858-571-6837. Hybrid Korean-Chinese menu draws from these regions' tastiest styles. Try the delicious Rainbow Salad and outstanding dumplings, especially the seafood ones. The jellyfish salad is a treat for the adventurous. Inexpensive.

La Jolla

Barbarella 2171 Avenida de la Playa, La Jolla, 858-454-7373. Nestled in an English garden, you can dine indoors or out enjoying house-baked sourdough and a daily changing eclectic menu, cooked with imagination. Outstanding fresh fruit crepes in season. Moderate.

Clay's La Jolla 7955 La Jolla Shores Dr., La Jolla, 858-551-3620. With a penthouse view of La Jolla, chef-owner Clay Bordan cooks up a seasonal California-fusion menu with international flavors, featuring organic vegetables, wild fish, naturally raised meats and fowl. Expensive.

Come On In 1030B Torrey Pines Rd., La Jolla, 858-551-1063. Suave Euro bistro with tree-shaded patio, serving sophisticated breakfasts and healthy lunches like fruit plates and veggie-mozzarella sandwiches. Inexpensive to moderate; dinners a little more expensive.

George's at the Cove — Ocean Terrace 1250 Prospect St., La Jolla, 858-454-4244. This informal rooftop eatery has the best view of anywhere of the La Jolla Cove, but the food isn't the fine cuisine of the Dining Room downstairs — it's essentially spiffy grazing. Excellent mussels are the sole memorable dish. Skip the owner's "famous" bean soup, a vanity item. High-moderate.

Nine-Ten 910 Prospect St., La Jolla, 858-964-5400. Chef Jason Knibb's culinary sophistication is big-city smart, offering adventurous seasonal cuisine emphasizing fresh sustainable or organic ingredients and fresh ideas, with flawless flavor matches. Expensive.

Sante Ristorante 7811 Herschel Ave., La Jolla, 858-454-1315. Fresh seafood specials are available every night. Excellent pasta with mushrooms, ravioli with quail, and lamb chops. Moderate (pastas) to expensive.

Trattoria Acqua 1298 Prospect St., La Jolla, 858-454-0709. The seasonally changing menu could be called avantgarde Italian, a style that more than pushes the Italian envelope with international influences. Desserts are superb. Moderate (pastas) to very expensive.

La Mesa

Mario's de La Mesa 8425 La Mesa Bl., La Mesa, 619-461-9390. Tasty gringo-Mex food. Tamales are rich, pillowy clouds of cornmeal surrounding richer shredded pork scattered with raisins. Pork also gets loving treatment in the carnitas rojas, browned to the barest crisp. Inexpensive.

Lakeside

The Neighbor's Pub and Grub 12169 Woodside Ave., Lakeside, 619-561-8890. A neighborhood place beloved by locals serves until midnight (2am weekends). Big portions of simple, filling food, with standard pub grub and daily specials like meat loaf, roast beef, fish 'n' chips, pork tenderloin. Inexpensive.

Linda Vista

Andrés Restaurant 1235 Morena Bl., Linda Vista, 619-275-4114. Nice introduction to Cuban cuisine, including lush "Cuban sandwiches" of pork, ham and cheese, and ropa vieja ("old clothes") — shredded beef sautéed with mushrooms, peppers, tomatoes. Inexpensive to moderate.

Tamale Cart 1852 National Ave., Logan Heights, 619-338-9140. The choice of goodies stuffed in the middle can include pork, beef, chicken, cheese, pineapple, strawberries, or coconut. Try the champurrado drink: milk mixed with masa, chocolate, and cinnamon Inexpensive.

Midway District

Brazil by the Bay Restaurant and way District, 619-692-1410. Dishes of Bahia, Rio, and São Paulo. You can make a meal of appetizers like coxinhas, pasteles, croquetas, and kube (the Brazilian version of Lebanon's kibbe). Moderate.

Mira Mesa

Bamboo Hut 9172 Mira Mesa Bl., Mira Mesa, 858-348-0414. A strip-mall taste of Hawaiian plate lunch and sushi, with outdoor wood-roofed patio. Uneven, but ahi poke, chicken katsu, and Rainbow Roll are good. Inexpensive.

Popeye's Chicken & Biscuits 9045 Mira Mesa Bl., Mira Mesa, 858-530-1664. Several San Diego locations. Wherever you go, if you find a Popeye's, you'll be eating Louisiana flavors. The étouffée (whether of chicken or crawfish, when available) is surprisingly decent. Inexpensive.

Mission Beach

Café Joié 3231 Mission Bl. Mission Beach, 858-488-5900. A modest café and grocery offers Puerto Rican and Latin American food and groceries. Inexpensive.

Mission Hills

Blue Water Seafood Market and Grill 3667 India St., Mission Hills, 619 497-0914. Delicious simple fish cookery in no-frills eatery, plus a fish counter offering restaurant-quality fresh raw seafood including big, buttery oysters. Inexpensive to low-moderate.

Saffron Noodles and Saté 3737 India St., Mission Hills, 619-574-7737. It's the smell of the spicy Thai chicken grilling that gets you. Choice of five sauces, from peanut to sweet pepper. Also try delicious, spicy noodle soups like Tom Yum with shrimp. Inexpensive.

Mission Valley

Bali Thai Café 407 Camino del Rio South, Mission Valley, 619-297-0800. This cute spot mingles chefs and dishes from Indonesia and Thailand, Standard Thai fare, but unique Balinese corn fritters, spicy shrimp, comforting chicken noodle soup. No reservations on weekends. Low-moderate.

Seau's 1640 Camino del Rio North, Mission Valley, 619-291-7328, Vast sports bar offers 70 TV screens and varied pub grub: pizza, hefty burgers, wings with three sauces, sushi, and Junior Seau's family recipe of Samoan teriyaki "plate lunch." İnexpensive to

What the Chef Eats by Pamela Hunt-Cloyd

BUTTERCUP SQUASH NECTAR WITH SPICED RUM, AÇAI BERRIES, FROMAGE BLANC

BY CHEF BERNARD GUILLAS

Executive Chef, The Marine Room

My grandmother was the root of this madness I would say, this passion for food. I lived with her in Brittany until I was six and she was always in the garden. We had a beautiful orchard, hens, and rabbits. Fresh eggs every morning — it was really fantastic. We had three apiaries and an herb garden: you could almost touch the flavor of the lemon thyme and sage.

Every Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, the family would gather at my grandmother's farmhouse. I have a very crazy family. They have such a passion for food and a joie de vivre. We rarely bought anything at all from the market. Most everything came from the land or the sea. At low tide on the coast of Brittany, we would harvest mussels, crabs, cockles, and shrimp. When those big tides came in they would all go on the streets where they set up a big pot to cook the fish and a table for the bottles of wine — the bottles of wine! Only in France can you do something like this. So you see, I started to cook at a very early age and what I learned was flavor.

When I was 19 years old, I went to French Guiana to work at a restaurant located near the French Guiana Space Centre. It was my first time out of Europe and I was in the middle of the Amazon. I discovered a very different lifestyle and I loved the blend of Creole, Brazilian, and European. That experience really started to shape my approach to food and ingredients and even the style of cooking. I had the great fortune to live in the Amazon for three weeks with the Samaraka tribe. Talk about being humbled... It was amazing. It gave me a different perspective on life. It was Grass Roots 101. Our running water was the Amazon River and mosquitoes were the size of hummingbirds, but that's the way it was. What was interesting to me is the relationship the natives have for the plants and animals. And the respect. Those three weeks opened my eyes to what life was all about.

When I went back to Brittany I knew I had the [travel] bug. I thought, I cannot stay in France. I've got to see the world. Then I received a letter from Chef Pierre Chambrin at Maison Blanche [in Washington, D.C.] who said I had a job with him if I wanted it. I worked with Pierre for four years. When he went to the White House, I visited him many, many times while he was the executive chef for Bush senior [George H.W. Bush].

Once, Bush senior came to San Diego and he was staying at the U.S. Grant Hotel, where I was working. One morning he came in for breakfast and the Secret Service guys told me not to talk to the president. But I was, like, "I know the guy." So I said, "Bonjour, Mr. President," and Bush said, "I know you," because Chef Pierre and Bush were really good

The thing I love to do when I am not working is gather with my friends and have a nice barbeque and open a bottle of wine. Very important: always cook with a good bottle of wine. One other thing I really like to do — it's therapy is to grow tomatoes and herbs. At the end of the day you look at your tomatoes. You look at your herbs. You open a bottle of wine and it's just fantastic.

Filipino dishes are available, from the familiar (chicken grilled on a bamboo spit) to more mysterious choices like kare-kare (peanut butter sauce with beef and tripe) and dinuguan (pork meat and blood stew). Inexpensive.

This recipe for squash soup is from my new cookbook Flying Pan, which I wrote with Ron Oliver. It will come out in October. The recipe uses açai berries. For centuries, indigenous Indian tribes in the Amazon River basin have used the açai berry, a rainforest fruit known for its healing powers.

INGREDIENTS SERVES 6 SQUASH NECTAR

2 3-pound kabocha squash, halved, seeded 2 tablespoons brown sugar

2 tablespoons unsalted butter 1/2 cup minced shallots 1/8 teaspoon each ground cinnamon, clove, nutmeg, cayenne pepper 1 cup dry vermouth 2 quarts vegetable stock 1 stalk lemongrass, split 2 tablespoons maple syrup 1 teaspoon grated fresh ginger

HOW TO DO ΙT

Sea salt and freshly ground

white pepper to taste

1/4 cup heavy cream

Preheat oven to 350°F. Place squash on baking sheet, cut side up. Sprinkle flesh with brown sugar. Bake 35 minutes or until tender. Remove from oven. Cool. Scoop flesh from shell. Set aside. Melt butter in large pot over medium heat. Add shallots. Cook 2 minutes without browning, stirring often. Add cinnamon, clove, nutmeg, and cayenne pepper. Cook 1 minute, stirring often. Pour in vermouth. Bring to simmer. Add squash, stock, and lemongrass. Simmer 25 minutes. Discard lemongrass. Puree soup in blender until smooth. Strain through sieve into pot. Whisk in maple syrup, ginger, and cream. Bring back to simmer. Season with salt and white pepper.

PRESENTATION

1/4 cup açai berries 1/4 cup apple juice 3 tablespoons vanilla spiced rum 6 teaspoons fromage blanc

6 sprigs chervil

In small bowl, soak açai berries in apple juice for 10 minutes. Remove berries. Ladle prepared squash nectar into warm soup cups.

Drizzle with rum. Spoon a teaspoon of fromage blanc in center of each cup. Garnish with açai berries and

INGREDIENTS NOTES:

Dried açai berries can be found at Whole Foods, health-food stores, and other gourmet groceries. Look for fromage blanc at the same sources and at cheese stores. If unavailable, substitute Greek yogurt (Trader Joe's carries it), Quark, or in a pinch, Mexican queso fresco stirred with a little yogurt or sour cream until smooth. Lacking vanilla spiced rum, add a drop or two of vanilla to the recipe measurement of any reasonably good light rum.

luscious scrambled eggs, huge sandwiches. Competent Latin-style dishes include tamales with airy masa. Inexpensive to low-moderate.

Point Loma

C-Level 880 Harbor Island Dr., Point Loma, 619-298-6802. The name is the grade for food, but nice for visiting aunts, with scenic heated patio at water's edge and California-Mediterranean comfort food from chef Deborah Scott in laid-back mode, lovely for a sunshiny lunch. Moderate to expensive Humphrey's by the Bay 2241 Shelter Island Dr., Point Loma, 619-224-3577. The kitchen features seafood, juicy meats, and Prime steaks with seasonal veggie garnishes. Preshow prix fixe upper-moderate, à la carte expensive/very expensive.

Rancho Bernardo

Bernard'O Restaurant 12457 Rancho Bernardo Rd., Rancho Bernardo, 858-487-7171. Brilliant modern takes on French classics. You want to know what genuine (California-adapted) bouillabaisse should be? Or squab at its best? This is the place — and desserts are ravishing, too. Expensive but not exorbitant.

Rancho Santa Fe

Cavaillon 14701 Via Bettona, Rancho Santa Fe, 858-433-0483. A great neighborhood French bistro where Philippe Verpiand offers seasonal dishes emphasizing his home region, Provence. Don't miss panisse, a chickpea cake with marshmallow texture. Great coq au vin, slow-baked salmon, crisp-skinned duck confit. Moderate to very expensive.

Solana Beach

Pacific Coast Grill 437 S. Coast Hwy. 101, Solana Beach, 858-794-4632, A freeform menu integrates Mexican, Hawaiian, and Asian flavors into SoCal comfort cooking. Try the Bag of Bones (house smoked pork ribs) and any fruit creation for dessert. Moderate to expensive.

Sorrento Valley

Karl Strauss Brewing Company 9675 Scranton Rd., Sorrento Valley, 858-587-2739. Additional locations in La Jolla, Carlsbad, and Downtown. Go for honest-but-beautiful dishes like the mountainous Hump Day meat loaf

Top Speed

He marries, has affairs, does drugs, hugs Nixon, isn't chasing his lost mother.

lexander Dodge's glitzy set for the Old Globe's Sammy includes stately, show-case-windowlike structures framed by rows of blinking lights. They feature props for the scene, or people who pose, in Fabio Toblini's classy period costumes, and sometimes sing. The polished black structures roll on and off. It doesn't take long to see that the musical, based on the life of Sammy Davis Jr., resembles the showcases. The life of an amazing entertainer rolls by, but from afar and at top speed. Watching Sammy feels like window-shopping from a passing car.

"Your whole life just moves too fast," his wife May Britt tells Davis. The musical follows suit, with no time for development. Leslie Bricusse's book creates such a shallow, itemized portrait that Davis remains a one-note character: he's an orphan, a four-year-old wunderkind, has a car crash (loses an eye and his sense of balance; his struggle to overcome both, if told in detail, could have revealed more about the man); he marries, has affairs, does drugs, hugs Nixon, isn't chasing his lost mother after all, earns Kennedy Center Award, finale, and curtain.

Name performers usually have a signature song. Davis had a handful, most of them written by Bricusse, often with Anthony Newley: "Once in a Lifetime," "Who Can I Turn To?" "The Candy Man," "What Kind of Fool Am I?" Davis could sell a song like few others. When Obba Babatundé sings them, however, he's been encouraged to over-sell music that needs no extra hype.

The iconic numbers also create a problem. They dwarf those written specifically for the show. New songs — the ones sung to Davis, in particular ("Slow Down Sammy," "Black Sammy, White Sammy") — feel flat, and often preachy, by comparison.

Some portrayals verge on cartoon (Dean Martin, Sinatra, Eddie Cantor), and the women never rise above generic (an exception: Ann Duquesnay, outstanding as Davis's grandmother Rose). Babatundé's Davis has the hunched shoulders, the bebop head-nod, the firm grin, and manic energy down. And he sings and dances (and plays drums, for that matter) with bountiful gifts. Babatundé entertains throughout and deserves the jump-to-your-feet standing ovation the audience gives him. But in his nearly three-hour performance, Babatundé is, at best, only like Sammy Davis Jr. The hit-and-run script — scenes often just setups for the next song — never gives him the time to be the great entertainer.

Frozen

In Bryony Lavery's Frozen, a researcher asks Ralph if he feels any remorse for raping and murdering seven young girls. Dead-faced Ralph says no. He's just sorry "it's not legal."

Lavery based her play on the findings of psychiatrist Dorothy Otnow Lewis. In Guilty by Reason of Insanity, Lewis contends that profound abuse in childhood damages the brain's cerebral cortex and hippocampus. One result: an inability to determine right from wrong. Thus the root causes of crime, she says, are neurological. They make serial killers "ill, not evil." Lewis doesn't absolve murderers — she advocates lifetime imprisonment without parole — but says they deserve our forgiveness.

"I think you're lucky if forgiveness visits you," the playwright said in an interview, "and you're in agony if it doesn't." Lavery makes Frozen, and an ability to forgive Ralph, her test case.

Each of the play's three characters is frozen: remorseless Ralph, Agnetha (a forensic psychologist, loosely based on Dorothy Lewis, in denial about a recent loss), and Nancy (whose ten-year-old daughter Ralph raped and suffocated). You could almost say the murder literally damaged Nancy's left brain. Good and evil blur, and she's never felt less alive. Her other daughter's bromides about forgiving and "letting go" ring hollow.

In Ion Theatre's stark, deeply moving production,

Matt Scott gives Ralph the cold logic of an irrational mind. His thoughts would make sense in a parallel universe of cruelty. As the years pass, Agnetha and a visit by Nancy create an aperture back to a moral view. In one of his best efforts ever, Scott thaws from fierce to fragile, and Ralph's re-entry shock becomes his undoing.

Director Claudio Raygoza has staged the piece on the perimeter. Scenes unfold on small stages and surround the audience with pain. The languid pacing of scenes, however, includes gaps and pauses more empty than pregnant. Sunny Smith, emotionally apt as Agnetha, would improve if she quickened her words, as would the production in general.

They say serial killers have

100 times more rage than "normal" people (whoever they are). Nancy Shirley begs to differ. In Dana Hooley's excellent portrayal, the slaying of her daughter jumped Nancy into the cycle of violence. Her blastfurnace seething compares with Ralph's, and Hooley more than suggests that, if given the chance, Nancy wouldn't just murder Ralph; she'd relish it. How Hooley moves from blackout retribution to the open-eyed Nancy at the end is one compelling reason, among many, to see Frozen, which must close this weekend. ■

The Andrews Brothers

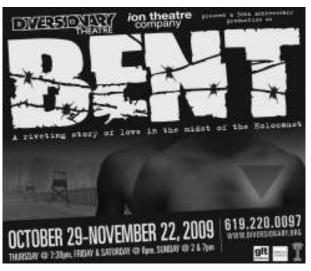

Like Forever Plaid, The Andrews Brothers is a musical revue held together by a sketchy plot. When Laverne of the Andrews Sisters has chicken pox, the trio's quarantined So three male stagehands, burning to strut their stuff, cross-dress as Patty, Laverne, and Maxene. The males entertain the troops with the tight, boogie-woogie harmonies that made the sisters famous - including "Don't Sit Under the Apple Tree," "Beat Me, Daddy, Eight to the Bar," and "Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen. Andrews Brothers won't usurp Hamlet's pedestal in the realms of gold. It's about sheer forget-yourtroubles entertainment. And the expert cast at Welk Resorts Theatre provides it. Bets Malone, Jeffrey Parsons, David Engel, and Johnny Bisom have worked together before, and it shows. Their voices blend beautifully. Even their shenanigans are flawless. Musical director Justin Gray added two trumpets to his band. And one of them — don't know which — gets to be the immortal "Boogie-Woogie Bugle Boy (of Company B)." Worth a try.

Dog Act

The apocalypse came and went, part bang, part whimper. Now everything's fragments, including language — malapropisms coined from fuzzy memories. Through this post-apocalyptic world (a metaphor for post-deconstruction?) travels a humble vaudeville troupe: Roz(etta) Stone and her dog (actually a man named Dog who strums a mean guitar). As they seek a mystical "China," they confront evil scavengers and potentially vile vaudevillians, Vera Similitude and Io-Io the Baby Face Liar. Though the plot of Liz Duffy Adams's fantasy is predictable, the imagination behind it's a stunner: the seasons quake into place; Shakespeare, Abbott and Costello, Billie Holiday, and Spike Iones make cameos; Roz talks a dazzling, cross-purposed poetry; and all tell tall tales. To open its new space in Rolando (former Cygnet Theatre home), Moxie Theatre reprised its popular production. The new version sports the original cast (Liv Kellgren, Jason Conors, Sylvia M'Laft Thompson, Jo Anne Glover, in top form) and, under Delicia Turner Sonnenberg's smart direction, makes for a funny, wildly theatrical show. 858-598-7620.

Joyful Noise

Tim Slover's "historical backstage drama," which Lamb's Players premiered ten years ago, still has too many notes. Scenes need compression, the dramaturgy's formulaic. But the play's dovetailing stories of a "fallen" mezzo-soprano and the politics behind Handel's composing ("compiling," actually) of the Messiah in 1741 — allow the company to sport Jeanne Reith's remarkable period costumes and fill in some of the script's blanks with lively theatricality. Co-directors Robert and Deborah Gilmour Smyth do fine turns as Handel (who, beneath Germanic gruffness, has a deep inner certainty) and Mrs. Pendarves, a florid arts patron. Colleen Kollar Smith (a touching Susannah Cibber), Teressa Byrne (Kitty: a feisty diva with a rocket soprano voice), Jim Chovick (a treat as humble King George II) make valuable contributions. Talented Jason Heil does what he can with Bishop Henry Egerton, the play's wordy villain. David Thayer, who used to work lighting wonders at Lamb's old National City space, devised a minimalist set with marbled, neoclassic columns. Special credit to cosound designers, Gilmour Smyth and Patrick Duffy.

Long Story Short

Brendan Milburn and Valerie Vigoda's musical about 50 years in the off-and-on love between Hope and Charles recalls Jones and Schmidt's I Do! I Do! a lot. It also borrows from Craig Lucas's magic realism. To anyone familiar with its are Hope and Charles on the same page (or even the same bookstore). One member of the interracial couple's running full speed while the other's gearing down. Some of the liveliest songs, like "Unpacking the Suitcase" and "We Should Get Married," play in their conflicting expectations. Melody Butiu and Robert Brewer are well cast for roles that require strong singing and acting skills. They meld with Mark Danisofsky's five-piece band (Diana Elledge's cello casts an elegiac patine over Victoria Petrovich's one-room set). Long Story could have an extended life. But the relentless pace works against it, since every scene unfolds the same way, which takes a here-we-go-again toll in the 138-minute one-act. The spunky, thought-provoking musical might improve if the authors shortened Long Story by two scenes.

Man From Nebraska

In Tracy Lett's drama, Ken Carpenter suffers a profound crisis of faith. He doesn't just tumble outside the box — the box disappears. He goes to London, where a kind of vague cultural exchange occurs: the emotionally blank have-everything learns from artists who have nothing (Letts is better with the condition than the solution, which just comes about). Cygnet Theatre gives the play top production values: Brian Redfern's minimalist set, Jessica John's detailed costumes, music by Jason Connors, and Eric Lotze's inspired lighting create contrasting worlds. And the supporting cast brims with sharp cameos. On opening night Michael Sears took a while to empty Ken convincingly (gestures indicated but felt unconnected to actual hurt). Sears did express how it feels to lose one's sense of permanence. In a subplot -Woman from Nebraska? — Robin Christ's Nancy struggles almost wordlessly to keep her world from breaking and herself from breaking down.

9 Parts of Desire

What if a diverse group of Iraqi women received more airtime than a five-second CNN cameo? How would they account for the devastation? What would they assert? If you've got a snappy answer, you're sound-bitten from watching too much CNN. For a decade, Heather Raffo conducted interviews, then arranged them into monologues. The women don't know each other. Their opinions are so divergent they might not get along if they did. Nine women come to full life and, even more striking, the voices don't cancel each other out. Raffo originally performed the piece by herself. Mo'olelo director Janet Havatshahi has three actors play the women. Lisel Gorrel-Getz (especially as Layal, the state-supported artist who has been "raped many times"), Frances Anita Rivera (whose great-hearted Amal is a heartbreaker), and Dre Slaman (fire-from-the-hip Huda) make indelible impressions on David F. The Savannah Disputation

Evan Smith's comedy creates the illusion of a dispute. Young, Evangelical Melissa squares off with Margaret, her sister Mary, and their priest, Father Murphy. The play takes potshots at religious rigidities on both sides. Some strike home, but Evans takes his themes and characters only so far. He'd much rather entertain than enlighten or, perish the thought, offend, and concludes with such a sweet sitcom wrap that everyone returns to their one-note ways with most scratches healed before curtain call. The Old Globe cast received a well-deserved standing ovation on opening night. Throughout Nancy Robinette (beatific Mary), Mikel Sarah Lambert (feisty Margaret), James Sutorious (pensive Murphy), and Kimberly Parker Green (perky Melissa) tried to make a 90-minute, joke-driven play character-driven. Their spiky interactions made the ride enjoyable, while the ride lasted. Deb O built her cluttered set on a familiar expression. Grave Matter

Point Loma — Late in the day on Tuesday, October 13, I stopped by the Fort Rosecrans National Cemetery to visit the grave of an old friend. As I entered the side that faces the ocean, my jaw dropped. A large backhoe and other earth-moving equipment stood silently over large sections of tom-up ground. Stacks of removed headstones and grave markers stood near large piles of dirt and deeply dug trenches. In other areas, the grass had been completely removed, leaving gravestones surrounded by bare earth.

Assuagement came in the form of a sign that explained what was going on: "We are in the process of raising and realigning grave markers and headstones... No graves will be disturbed."

Later on, I telephoned the number on the sign and was eventually transferred to Kirk Leopard, the cemetery director. He explained that gravestones eventually become misaligned, both vertically and horizontally, due to settling and the occasional earthquake. Every ten vears or so, he needs to send a crew out to realign

On October 23, San Diego Crime Stoppers issued an alert, asking for assistance from the public to help identify the "Back Room Bandit." The description of the suspect is nearly identical to that of the suspect in the La Mesa Hallmark store robbery. The "Back Room Bandit" has robbed businesses in Chula Vista. National City, El Cajon, the Midway area, and La Mesa during September and October. The businesses include a bakery, three pet stores, a florist, a deli, and a Baskin-Robbins ice cream shop.

You Can Ride but You Can't Hide

Spring Valley — At approximately 11:30 p.m. on Thursday, October 22, a California Highway Patrol officer traveling on northbound I-5 near SR-163 observed a motorcycle driving at a high rate of speed.

San Diego PD's ABLE helicopter was called out and was able to stay on top of the motorcycle throughout the short chase. The helicopter followed the biker from the I-5 to SR-94 eastbound to Spring Valley.

The rider made his way to his residence on the 3400 block of Helix Avenue, where the helicopter crew observed him opening his garage door, riding in, and shutting the door after him. The lone CHP officer arrived at the address to find an open front door. His backup was too far away, so they called San Diego sheriff's deputies to assist.

Bandit

Emerald Hills — On Monday, October 19, a gentleman lost five dollars in the Payquick machine at the Arco gas station located at 1817 Euclid Avenue. He went inside to report the defective machine, and both the cashier and then the manager said there was nothing they could do and that he would have to leave his contact information to be reimbursed on Wednesday, when the machine was next serviced.

What made the man's situation even worse is that the he originally came in with five dollars in change but the cashier would not take the change and sent him to the bank across the street. The five dollars were the last he had until he receives his next unemployment check.

I witnessed the incident and gave the man my number if he needed day October 19, it was evident that the digging of some large trenches had begun. As I walked through the Villa Montevino condominium complex, which is adjacent to the cleared open space, the purpose behind the activity became evident. Some flyers left for the benefit of the residents of the complex indicated that it's an Otay Water District project.

Wiry Creatures

Mission Valley — Residents of the Bluffs I condominium complex on Friars Road were recently reminded that coyotes frequently visit the lush compound looking for food. A notice was posted on bulletin boards with the warning to "be especially cautious at night when walking along the back path with small children and pets." Security personnel as well as residents have spotted packs of as many as six animals in past months.

Bluffs I is situated on a scrubby mound of earth stretching upwards about one-fifth of a mile, flat surfaced and steep. The coy-

filed in San Diego on October 7 by the Sierra Club, the Center for Biological Diversity, and other conservation organizations charges that the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service violated the Endangered Species Act when, in April, it cut protected habitat designations for the peninsular bighorn sheep by 55 percent — from 844,897 to 376,938 acres. The lawsuit also claims this reduction broke up habitat continuity, disrupting migration and interbreeding across

CITY LIGHTS

Once the most numerous of the desert bighorns, the peninsular bighorn sheep population in the U.S. dropped to 276 in 1996 and was listed as endangered in 1998. They dwell in low-elevation slopes in desert areas popular with real estate developers.

In 2001, the government marked off 840,000 mountainous and canyon acres in Riverside, San Diego, and Imperial Counties as critical habitat. In part, this means developers face a higher level of environmental review for those areas.

Currently, an estimated 800 sheep reside in the area from the San Jacinto Mountains to the border. partly helped by the 2001 designation, said Ileene Anderson, biologist with the Center for Biological Diversity.

Downtown San Diego — On Wednesday morning, October 21, at Golden

Hall in the San Diego Concourse, 590 people were sworn in as U.S. citizens; among them were 17 military servicemen.

Thai Yin came to the United States with his family when he was three years old. They were refugees from Cambodia. He described the ceremony as "...overwhelming."

As the new citizens exited the ceremony, they were greeted by people from two informational booths — one Democratic, the other Republican.

Another Chance for Fame and Glory!

THE READER SUDOKU PUZZLES:

RULES OF THE GAME

1) Submit one completed puzzle of any difficulty level (Easy, Medium, Hard or Evil) to the Reader each week for our ongoing contest! We keep track of each puzzle you successfully complete and the results are posted online at sandiegoreader.com. But your submission will only be counted when you successfully complete a puzzle AND get it to us by 7:00 a.m. Mondav.

2) Be one of the first 100 people who submit the correct answers to one of the puzzles and we will print your name in the paper along with your brief message (10 words or less, no URLs or phone numbers). This is optional, but it's a great way to express yourself. You may submit a new message weekly. We reserve the right to edit or reject inappropriate text.

3) The puzzle-contest ranking, shown online and in the paper, will begin anew every three months. Complete the journey four times a year!

4) Entries must be faxed to 619-233-7907 or mailed to Reader Puzzle,

P.O. Box 85803, San Diego, CA 92186-5803, or delivered through our mail slot at 1703 India Street in Little Italy, or scanned and e-mailed to:

Sudoku@sdreader.com. Submissions by e-mail must be attached in JPG format, 800 by 800 pixels, maximum file size of 1MB. Submissions that don't fit the format will not be counted or viewed.

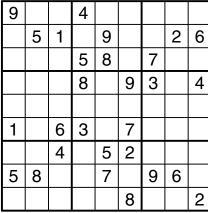

- 5) 10 Reader T-shirts are awarded weekly to contenders chosen randomly! 6) All answers must be legible and entered in the spaces provided
- 7) Late entries will not be considered.
- 8) One entry per person per week or you will be disqualified.
- 9) Employees of the Reader and their immediate families are not eligible.

I was living in Taiwan when I was little. My dad was a Marine and stationed there. We were shopping in this town with all these Chinese stores. They had these erasers with designs all over them that smelled really good. I sniffed one and then slipped it into my pocket. I didn't have any money. My sister saw it when we got home and told on me. My dad dragged me down there, and this poor guy didn't understand English. My dad was miming what I did, showing him how I put it in my pocket and now we're bringing it back. It was so humiliating.

wanted this bottle of ink when I was in third grade. It's the kind you use with those model airplanes that are thin pieces of plywood and you could put the two pieces together. I realized it was wrong, so I ended up digging a hole and burying it. I even buried a dollar with it. For all I know it's still there.

■ had a best friend in the late '50s that was a kleptomaniac. In those days, they didn't have terms and diagnoses for everything. You didn't have ADD or were bipolar and all that. I look back now, though...and the things he would steal. Oftentimes it didn't make sense. He'd steal things from my mom's sewing kit. Things like buttons. And it's not like he collected them or anything. Oh, that reminds me...I did actually steal something. I'm not proud of this, but as a boy, I would steal my favorite comic books from the five-and-dime. They were only a few cents to buy, or a nickel. But when you're a kid and you don't have any money, sometimes you resort to those types of shenanigans.

LEAD STORY

- If society were ever attacked by zombies, we would probably be doomed, and quickly. That was the conclusion of two university researchers in Ottawa, Ontario, who set up mathematical models hypothesizing zombie attacks as infectious diseases with the well-known characteristics of zombie biology from popular fiction. In fact, according to a July BBC News report, zombies are more threatening than virulent diseases because they can regenerate (unless decapitated or incinerated, of course). More troubling was the researchers' presumption that zombies move slowly, as in older movies, but in recent fiction, they're super-quick, making them nearly invincible.

Government in Action

· Scaredy-Cat Brits: (1) In June, the Peterborough City Council ordered retirees who come together for weekly coffee at the public library to give up hot drinks, in case one accidentally spilled on a child. (2) In July, the Dagenham Pool in Essex, citing (according to the manager) drowning risks, banned swimmers from doing "lengths" and forced them instead to swim "widths." (3) In June, the Brighton and Hove City Council ordered nature-lover Hilaire Purbrick, 45, out of the cave that has been his residence for 16 years, citing its lack of a "fire exit."

· Among the personal tasks allegedly demanded by Portsmouth (Va.) mayor James Holley of his public-payroll assistant Lorraine Stokes (from a list Stokes released in August, alleging Holley's abuse): affixing labels to boxes identifying Holley's assorted-color argyle socks; placing orders for "tummy support T-shirts" and "90-minute abs" videos; and locating retailers for his favorite English Leather cologne, Stri-Vectin Cream (for "turkey neck"), geese repellant, T. Barry underwear, grass seeds, and Gillette hair paste.

The Police Department

- Latest Domestic Disturbance Calls: (1) A couple fought with each other using water, mouthwash, and powdered whey protein (Bremerton, Wash., July). (2) A wife repeatedly punched her husband and then, as officers arrived, pulled him inside the house by his ear (Niceville, Fla., August). (3) A 78-year-old woman kicked her husband in the groin several times recently because she believes he had an affair 35 years ago (Lynnwood,

- San Antonio police chief William McManus announced in August an upgraded training program to teach his officers how to obey the law while off-duty. The department has had to fire ten officers so far this year for law-breaking, and included in McManus's program is a personal talk to each incoming cadet to stress that police officers must not commit crimes.

Chutzpah!

· In August, Jorge Iglesias petitioned a judge in Madison, Wis., to regain custody of his 66 roosters and hens that police confiscated in a suspected cockfighting raid. Iglesias said he feared that the Dane County Humane Society, temporarily holding the animals, was treating them with "cruel and barbaric" abuse. (2) Afghan refugee Fridoon Sadiqi filed a lawsuit against Britain's Home secretary in August after being turned down for political asylum because he had presented a forged passport to enter the U.K. According to Sadiqi, the rejection made him clinically depressed.

The Continuing Crisis

- Elsie Poncher decided reluctantly in August to go back on a promise she had made to her late husband. Richard Poncher had purchased a crypt (for himself) just above the one in which the body of Marilyn Monroe rests in a Los Angeles memorial park, but Elsie now needs money and thus offered the crypt for sale in August, planning to move Richard to a less-prominent place. Richard had been assured by Elsie that he could spend eternity lying face down "over Marilyn."

- Ultra-Dangerous Activities: (1) In May, a man in his 20s was killed in a fight at a community center in Calgary, Alberta, following a dominoes tournament. (2) Kenneth Reppke, 54, was charged with assault in Fraser, Mich., in July for allegedly smacking a woman in the head, knocking off her glasses, because she refused to sell him Boardwalk and Park Place in a Monopoly game. (3) Jason Keller, 40, was acquitted by a jury in San Francisco in June of hitting a fellow homeless man in the face with a skateboard. According to testimony, Keller had become angry during a discussion about particle physics.

This year's KGB Homegrown album may not be rotting on the vine, but from all indications it seems to be turning a little brown around the edges. Only 175 songs were entered in this year's competition for a spot on the record, compared with an average of well over 200, and the peak year of 1976, when 354 songs were submitted.

In the summer of 1981 Marc Berman staged 60 concerts in town, including one by the Rolling Stones, and by the end of that year he claims to have been making more than $150,000 per annum. Not bad. But not for long. The next year, 1982, he claims he made no money at all — due in large part to his efforts in promoting an unsuccessful NFL all-star football game during the player strike — and in 1983

he took another bracing dive, plunging more than $150,000 in debt. In July of that year he was also arrested for possessing cocaine on a small side street near Diego's in Pacific Beach.

When the invitation to audition for a local production of Gilbert and Sullivan's Trial by Iury arrived in the mail last winter, my first reaction was to drop it into the trash. I hadn't sung anywhere in public for nearly 15 years, and I had imagined myself safely retired from a lifelong ambition to star at La Scala. It was a fantasy I had been nourishing since the age of 16, when I was taken to the opera for the first time to hear a performance of Wagner's Tannhäuser at the old Met in New York.

Was the San Diego Zoo's Joan Embery viciously attacked by her own cheetah on the set of the Suzanne Somers Show? Or was the nationally publicized incident a product of the overly fertile imagination of the show's public relations staff? "Respected Animal Trainer Ioan Embery Attacked by Cheetah," howled a recent news release from the show, which also reported that Embery received "two long, deep gashes" to her face.

Padres owner John Moores is delivering on his million-dollar fundraising promise to Democratic presidential candidate Bill Bradley by getting San Diego's business types to open up their checkbooks. Moores and Padres co-owner Larry Lucchino said to be a one-time teammate of Bradley when both were undergrads at Princeton — have been putting the heat on everybody from their own employees to Qualcomm execs to consultants working on the proposed taxpayer-financed downtown baseball stadium. Padres employees among the ranks of $1000 Bradley donors include Moores; PR staffer Mary Michell: Moores's daughter Jennifer McCleod; Robert J. McCleod, who is married to Jennifer; Lucchino's secretary, Fav Scheer; and Dr. Charles Steinberg.

I asked [Russell] Banks if his new novel, set in part in Liberia, was like Walter Abish's How German Is It? Mr. Abish, when he wrote How German Is It?, had never been to Germany. Mr. Banks has been to West Africa but not Liberia.

July. I was in Sierra Leone, which is not that different, really right next door, and in its history bears the same relationship to England that Liberia bears to the United States. That was when the bodies started piling up in Monrovia. The roads were blocked and no flights were going in. I got stopped in Sierra Leone.

SHEEP AND GOATS

PLACES OF WORSHIP REVIEWED

Denomination: Southern Baptist

Address: 855 Brotherton Road, Escondido,

760-745-4995

Founded locally: 1949

Senior pastor: Todd Hitchcock

Congregation size: 400

Staff size: 7

Sunday school enrollment: n/a

Annual budget: around $600,000

Weekly giving: around $11,000

Singles program: yes

Dress: mostly semi-formal

Diversity: mostly but not entirely Caucasian and African-American

Length of reviewed service: 1 hour 30 minutes

Website: bbcesc.org

The lights dimmed in the purple quarter-circle church, and Pastor Hitchcock appeared behind the baptismal pool situated high in the back of the Sanctuary. New congregant Catherine, clad in a white robe, stepped down into the pool up to her shoulders. "As we know," explained Hitchcock, "baptism isn't what saves us. The blood of Jesus is what saves us. Baptism is a very spiritual act, a following of Christ in obedience, a physical representation of what has happened to us spiritually. And it's part of our membership requirement." Catherine was baptized as an infant, but "now that she has come to the point in her life where she has accepted Jesus Christ as her Lord and Savior, she wants to follow Him in obedience to baptism."

He spoke to Catherine. "Have you accepted Jesus Christ as your personal Lord and Savior?"

"Yes," she replied, sounding a little nervous.

"Then I baptize you in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit." As he spoke, he dipped Catherine to the side so that she was entirely submerged, and then raised her back up. "The word baptizo is actually a dyer's term," he said, addressing the congregation. "It means, 'to be dyed.' That's an interesting thought when you think about how we give up our life for Christ we've been crucified with Him completely. That's why we do full-immersion baptism; to show that our whole body, our whole being, is dedicated to Christ."

The lights rose and Hitchcock prayed and a congregant got up and prayed as well, begging Jesus for the strength to "perform this week in a way that's pleasing to You" and "not to do anything to grieve You." Then music director Bruce Gearhart led the choir and band (two saxophones, two flutes, guitar, drums, and piano) in a medley devoted to the name of Jesus. "I've been reading a lot of Scripture, especially Revelation," said Gearhart. "There's going to be a shout of praise unto Iesus like vou've never heard before! I want you to do it two ways. I want you to shout the name of Jesus!"

"Jesus!" boomed the congregation.

"Then, softly, like you're in a quiet place, just worshipping His name, calmed by His Holy Spirit."

"Jesus, Jesus," they murmured.

"One more time, for He is the sweetest name."

"Iesus."

The soft sound felt intimate, as did the song that followed, sung by Hitchcock's wife Dina. "Like oil upon Your feet/ Like wine for You to drink/ Like water from my heart/ I'll pour my love on You." As she sang, an image flashed on the screen behind her: the woman anointing Christ's feet with her hair.

Hitchcock took the stage to announce an upcoming ministry to Mexico, as well as another to the homeless of Escondido. "I'm calling it Project 1:8, from Acts 1:8. We're to be His witnesses in Jerusalem, which is our local community; Judea, which is a regional level; Samaria, which is a cross-cultural idea. since the Jews hated the Samaritans; and then the outermost parts of the earth." He talked about providing kits of necessities and about partnering with local businesses."In doing that, we connect with others. and share Christ with them."

Sunday was part six of Hitchcock's series "A Fruitful Life Is a Spirit-Filled Life." Next week would touch on "the impact that the Spirit has within our lives," but this week took on the uncomfortable subject of sins against the Holy Spirit. Why uncomfortable? Because Iesus savs in Mark 3 that "whoever blasphemes against the Holy Spirit will never be forgiven; he is guilty of an eternal sin." Scary stuff. But Hitchcock, addressing his congregation of believers, said, "Fear not. We cannot sin so often that God cannot forgive, and we cannot sin so badly that God cannot forgive."

What can we do that's unpardonable? "The unpardonable sin is fully conscious and stubborn hatred against

God. There is nothing that can be more unpardonable than rejecting God's redemptive plan for you. But if we still believe that Jesus is who He says He is, then we have no fear that our standing before God has been rejected.... The simple truth comes down to this: you did nothing to earn your salvation, and you can do nothing to lose it." And as for those who leave the fold: "If someone gets to the point in their life where they honestly say that they want nothing to do with God, then the truth is they probably never really had Him in the first place." Still, Hitchcock warned against grieving or quenching the Spirit — stifling "the fullness of the Spirit's blessing."

He closed with prayer and a challenge to grow spiritually.

What happens when we

"We're face to face with God in final judgment," said Hitchcock.
